

A Tabor Story.
 Count Raymond, since Modjeska's husband, was arranging with Senator Tabor for Modjeska's first appearance in Denver, and the founder of dramatic art in Denver asked what parts she played.
 "Well," said the count, "there is 'Merry Stuart.'
 "Who wrote it?" asked Tabor.
 "Schiller," said the count.
 "Is he a first class dramatist?" asked Tabor.
 "Surely, surely," said the count.
 "He is most illustrious."
 "Humph! Never heard of him," commented Tabor. "What else does she do?"
 "As You Like It," "Antony and Cleopatra," "Macbeth."
 "Who wrote them?"
 "Shakespeare."
 "How's he? Good writer?"
 "Excellent, excellent."
 "Well," said Tabor, ruminatively, "those fellows may be all right as authors, but they ain't well enough known to suit the people out here. What we want is something popular, something that everybody's heard of. I tell you what you do—you get her to give us something of Hoyt's?"

Fearful Fate of Ravallac.
 In these days when executions, if held at all, are mostly carried out in private, it is difficult for us to understand the feelings of savagery with which an old time mob witnessed a public execution. Here is Honorable Burton's account—of the scene when Ravallac, the assassin of the king, had, after shocking tortures, been torn asunder by wild horses: "The executioner had begun to dismember him and was about to cast his remains into the second cauldron when the vast crowd prevented him from doing so. They each required a portion of the body of the king's assassin, and most of them obtained one. That night many bonfires blazed in and around Paris, and in their midst were consumed pieces of Ravallac's frame; on barn doors in other places were nailed similar scraps of his body, as heads and ears and various organs were nailed as a warning to others of their breed."

Grant and Pickett.
 New evidence that the great men are the true men—true to themselves, to their country and to their friends—appears in a story told in Colonel Nicholas Smith's book, "Grant, the Man of Mystery."
 While Grant was president General G. E. Pickett, who led the fatal charge against the Union forces the last day at Gettysburg, called at the White House to pay his respects. Grant knew that his old comrade at West Point had been made a poor man by the war and offered him the marshaling of Virginia, while sorely needing help. General Pickett knew the heavy draft made upon the president by office seekers.
 "You can't afford to do this for me," he said, "and I can't afford to take it."
 "I can afford to do anything I please that is right," Grant replied quietly.

Peppered Ice Cream.
 "There's pepper in that," said a restaurant waiter, pointing to a small silver shaker he had placed beside a heaping dish of ice cream he was carrying to a guest. "Sure, it's to put on the ice cream, too," he replied when an inquirer failed to see the connection between the two.
 "Lots of folks want to put pepper on their ices. You see, if a man's stomach is sensitive the cold cream hurts him, but pepper is stimulating enough to overcome the effects of the cold. And the funny thing is that you don't taste the pepper at all. The ice cream is so cold that it kills the other. If you don't believe it I'll give you some with pepper, and you'll find that there's no taste of pepper there at all."
 There wasn't.—New York Sun.

Miles' Grave.
 "Which is the deepest, the longest, the broadest and the smallest grave in the churchyard?" said a pedestrian to his companion while meditating among the tombs in the burying ground at Esher.
 "Why," replied his companion, "it is that in which poor Miles Button lies buried, for it contains Miles below the sod, Miles in length and Miles in breadth, and yet, after all, it is but a Button-hole."—Pearson's Weekly.

Effect of Tight Lacing.
 "Is tight lacing unwise?" a teacher asked a young lady in a physiology lesson.
 "Yes, it is very unwise," was the reply.
 "Why is it unwise?" the teacher pursued.
 "Because it busts the corset," said the young lady.—Exchange.

If you would be comfortable during the warmest month of the year, clothe yourself in white. Then if you are not cool, you will appear so anyway.

OUR MEN'S TOGGERY is showing white trousers even. Then there are white union suits, the B. V. D. and single garments; white negligee shirts, white duck hats, white neckties, and white canvas shoes.

FOR THE LADIES: the Seersucker krinkly underwear, white shoes, stockings and skirts, and yards and yards of the prettiest white material for dresses from the filmy Kobe silks to substantial Indian Head muslin.

OUR GROCERY DEPARTMENT carries all that goes to make the inner man comfortable at all seasons, but just today while this copy is being written, a water melon from our commodious refrigerator sounds actually soothing.
