

Crescent Steel Range Saves Fuel! Is a Great Baker!

The Crescent Steel Range is made in St. Johns. It is a handsome durable range. It is made in six designs. The prices vary according to the size, attachments etc., but all Crescent Ranges are simple in pattern. The makers had three things in mind: first, a durable range; second, a range that would give the most heat with the least fuel; third, a range that would bake and roast with satisfaction.

Crescent Range bodies are made from one sheet of heavy cold rolled Wellsville Polished Steel. There are no seams.

Triple walls are formed by an underlining of heavy asbestos board and steel plates, strongly riveted. This construction prevents radiation of heat and insures durability.

You can see a complete line of Crescent Ranges in our window all week.

THE MASTER QUALITY

The quality that has made masters of men, has lifted them above their fellows, is that trait of character which conquers difficulties.

Possibly nothing lends more to determination and achievement than the purposeful cultivation of a savings account at the Peninsula National Bank. It implies the putting down of useless indulgences, and the steadfast following of a well defined purpose.

The saving that accomplishes most is the saving done under difficulties, for not only does it provide a cash capital but it brings out the master quality that surmounts obstacles and makes achievement inevitable.

It has been decided by the officials of the Portland Railway, Light and Power Company that St. Johns cars shall be routed over the new Broadway bridge via Williams avenue. While it is gratifying that the St. Johns cars will pass over the new bridge, yet it is to be regretted that they shall not be routed via Mississippi avenue instead of Williams avenue, which would lessen the running time to some extent. The officials declare, however, that it would not be feasible to run by way of Mississippi avenue, owing to sharp curves along the line. It is likely to take some time before the new routing takes effect.

Bickner hall has undergone a wonderful transformation, at considerable expense to the owners. A handsome paneled and decorated ceiling has been placed, and the sides of the hall frescoed and beautified. The floor of the main hall is covered with fine canvas, splendidly adapted for dancing purposes.

A banquet hall large enough to seat seventy or eighty people has been added, and a kitchen with gas appliances has been installed. Large, roomy and well finished lockers have been built in for depositing regalia, etc., and throughout the hall is admirably suited for lodge and entertainment purposes. Besides the Knights of Pythias, it is the home of the Masons and Order of Eastern Star, all being particularly well pleased with the new quarters.

The Bachelor club, after a vacation of several months, will inaugurate another series of dances in the St. Johns rink, the opening dance to be given September 10th. The dance loving portion of our inhabitants will be pleased to learn that the Bachelors will resume operations along this line. Their dances are so splendidly conducted, so well appointed, so free from all objectionable features; they are so courteous in reception of guests and in looking after their comfort, and the hall and floor placed in such perfect condition, that it is a keen pleasure to be in attendance. The Bachelor club is the finest, cleanest and in every way the most excellent social organization of its kind that the city has ever possessed, and one in which the city can take pride. Only young men of clean characters and congenial habits can belong to the club, and its influence toward better living, higher ideals and purer lives is inestimable. All its dances are invitation affairs, and carefully selected. Long live the Bachelor Club.
