

Do It Thoroughly

In your business if you can do anything particularly well, a scout will call on you, and offer you a better job. Seven tenths of the big men of today, in every calling, have been picked up by scouts in small villages or on farms. Don't say you haven't a chance, because you have; a scout is watching you every day, and you are promoted as you deserve. A good clerk in a country town is sought for by farmers, and he is soon picked up by a scout who has a farm to sell at a low price, on long time. And the more modest and capable you are, the more apt a scout is to find you. But you can't fool a scout; he knows good work.

There are times when it is a good thing to be victor in a flat fight. Some men cannot understand any other argument, and will annoy you until knocked down. Only one in ten thousand can be a genius, but anyone can be a hard worker, which pays better. The biggest business men are nothing more than the best workmen who have been promoted. The world is full of three-quarters men; they are three-quarters industrious, and cannot get all the way. A man should know his job thoroughly and fill it with enthusiasm. His work is his backer; his source of credit; his hope of prosperity and distinction. Be as careful of your job as you are of your note in the bank. Criticism will do you more good than compliments. A compliment makes you lazy; a rebuke causes you to become more active, and the more a rebuke hurts, the longer you have been needing it.

By the time some people make up their minds what to do it's too late. The best friend a man can have is a reputation for being fair, capable, industrious, polite, intelligent and temperate. Nearly all capable men are modest.—Exchange.

Proved His Claim.

While a building was in process of construction two of the lifters became engaged in a violent quarrel. So violent was it that the police were called in and the offenders taken before a magistrate. Both of the men were sober and industrious and good workmen. This, according to the testimony of the foreman in charge of their work, who had followed in hopes of being able to intercede for them.

The magistrate asked in astonishment the cause of the quarrel. It seems that one man had accused the other of stealing his coat.

"And I can prove it, too," added the man.

"How?" asked the magistrate.

"I always keep my card in the pocket," said the man.

The policeman were directed to search the garment. They found absolutely nothing. "Give me your coat," said the workman. It was handed to him. He took two dried peas out of the pockets and held them up triumphantly. "P. P. Peter Powell. That's my name. Them's my card."

He got his coat.—New York Globe.

Inner Significance.

I like to sing of blossoms, and I like to sing of bees.

As a rough and ready singer ought to do:

I like to sing of little birds that warble in the trees

And of flowers yellow, white or blue. But the thought that most delights me very seldom I express.

When I lift my nose or less exultant tone. It's a subtle, soft impression stealing through my consciousness.

That we're going to have a circus pretty soon.

Oh, the sunshine on the river and the cloudlet in the sky

And the blossoming that is scattered from the trees

Are things of beauty in themselves as they go drifting by.

Yet things of deep significance for me! Each joy is but a promise of the greater bliss to come.

I see a ring of sand in the moon.

And the breeze brings faroff echoes of the drum.

'Cause there's going to be a circus pretty soon.

—Washington Star.
