Among the things needed in St. Johns, which would seem fully justified by the $350,000 monthly pay roll, which we are reliably informed is now the pay roll mark in St. Johns, are the following: First class hotel, opera house, apartment houses, at least 350 more tenement houses, hospital, first class lodge room, modern home laundry, Western Union Telegraph office, public play ground, besides other institutions that might be mentioned. Here is certainly a fertile and profitable field for the investor.

In a recent ruling of an Eastern Exemption Board a young newspaper man was exempted upon the grounds that his business was a patriotic necessity of the government. We believe this decision was a just one. Fully half of the correspondence that reaches our office each week, are requests for the immediate publication of various items which the government wishes to put before the people, in order to stir up their patriotism and rally their services to the government. It is impossible of course to print anything like all we receive, but every loyal newspaper strains its resources to the utmost to give freely just the services that the government is requesting. In both the first and second liberty loan, there is not a shadow of a doubt in the minds of anyone who is acquainted with the facts that it would not have been possible to succeed in this undertaking had the newspaper men not loyally and without stint, given their space without any compensation. An effort was made before the last loan was launched, to have it launched through paid newspaper publicity but the government rightly judged that the newspapers were loyal enough that they would give their services gratis, so the money they had to spend was lavishly used in getting out the most expensive class of posters known to the printers trade and the newspapers did the rest. The only thing a newspaper has to sell is its space and when the government needs and demands that, they should be just as willing to pay for as they are to pay for any other commodity which the government purchases, in the propagation of its plans.—Mt. Scott Herald.

In a personally signed letter to his followers in the fields of conservation, Gifford Pinchot makes a plea for legislation to allow waterpower to be developed in the western states. Conservation policies gone to seed have tied up our national resources of power in the form of coal, oil and waterpower until the nation faces a fuel famine and is putting out electric lights. Now Mr. Pinchot realizes the terrible mistake that has been made and that our gigantic struggle for existence requires us to use all these great resources and open every possible electric power plant. There are untold millions of undeveloped water horsepower, enough to run every train, trolley, factory, mill, mine, and electric power plant now run by steam made with oil or coal, going to waste. Pinchot now charges that the power companies and those who have developed the hydro electric water power plants have prevented this waste from being utilized by demanding unreasonable legislation. He comes forward with radical concessions and demands waterpower legislation when Congress meets in December "based on principles fair to both sides," which he then proceeds to state. First he says the thing to do above all else is to secure development of water powers on terms fair to the public, and he practically gives up his dream of universal public ownership and public development. He now says the nation must have prompt development and that waterpower sites "should be leased for periods long enough to permit sound, attractive and profitable investment, but never longer than fifty years." What Mr. Pinchot adds about corporations sharing their profits with the government and the people, about state and federal regulation, and about the people having a right to complete information is camouflage. The Pinchot house of cards has tumbled. The conservationists have seen the error of their campaign in holding up coal, oil and power development and want to get on the band wagon to save their faces.—Pacific Coast Manufacturer.

The death of John F. Carroll, editor of the Evening Telegram, which occurred Tuesday, is a matter of sincere regret on the part of thousands of his admirers. His affable nature and his skillful treatment of all matters pertaining to the public weal had endeared him to all who knew him or knew of him. He was a credit, in every sense of the term, to the newspaper fraternity, and his private life was far above reproach. John F. Carroll, for the good he has done and the work he has accomplished, will live long in the hearts of those who knew him as he was, and who loved him so well.

A Special Exhibit

For one day only the St. Johns Library will have a special exhibit of Christmas gift books in attractive editions which may be purchased in Portland; books and aids for church workers and club leaders, including books on the five subjects of religion, social and economical problems for the minister; books, pictures maps and Sunday School Times for the teacher in the Sunday School to use, to make her lessons so interesting that the boys and girls will want to come every Sunday; books in which the Bible stories are told in such a charming and simple way that the children will read them for themselves; books maps and magazines for the Missionary Society with inspiring articles on the missionary work in all countries. Plan your work for December 10th so that you can visit the library on that day and get ideas for your Christmas books, and also put in your reserves for whatever books or other material in the exhibit would help in your work.

The much advertised book, "Over the Top" is now in the St. Johns Library. Have you read the other popular books on the war? Hill Top on the Marne, The First Hundred Thousand, The Pentacost of Calamity, At Sula Bay.

Wedded Fifty Years

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester celebrated their golden wedding at the residence of their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Evans, at 532 E. Charleston street. A mock ceremony was performed by G. W. Muhm, which every one present enjoyed. The bride was attired in a crepe de chine de lace curtain, while the groom carried the bride's bouquet of mistletoe. After congratulations an elegant supper was served from which everyone there received their full capacity and extended congratulations to their hosts, Mrs. J. W. Evans. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. R. Sylvester, Mr. and Mrs. Schrader, Mr. and Mrs. Simon, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Muhm, Mr. and Mrs. E. Corlett, Mr. and Mrs. W. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Gawer, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Oihus, Mrs. M. Countiss, Mrs. R. D. Garland, Mrs. Bringman, Mrs. Spahan, Mrs. A. Kerr, Mrs. Moxon.

Twelfth Anniversary

The twelfth anniversary of the Deborah Livingston Union of the W. C. T. U. was a real success. About forty women gathered at the home of Mrs. J. C. Scott last Monday. After the devotional exercises a very interesting program was rendered. The beautiful words, "The Gates of Gold," were sung by Mrs. O'Hara and Miss Alsberg. They responded to an encore by singing "Sweetest Story ever Told." A brief history of the work for the last twelve years was given by Mrs. S. J. Kerr. The financial report was given by the treasurer, Mrs. Sarah Turrell. Mrs. Albert Carey, of Portland, sang, "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother," Reading by Mrs. Turrell, entitled "A Letter From Billy." In response to an encore she gave, "Jimmie and the Farm," Miss Lyle, recently of California, sang, "Somebody Knows," reading by Mrs. Catherine Turrell, entitled "The New Church Organ." Mrs. Lawrence Butts sang, "Just for Today," reading by Mrs. J. V. Scott, "The Master is Coming." Every number on the program was beautifully rendered and thoroughly enjoyed by all. A birthday offering for the Union amounted to $3.65. Ten new members were secured. Refreshments were served. Out of town guests were: Mrs. A. E. Plattner, of Seattle, who was one of our charter members; Mrs. Deleyer, of Vancouver, Mrs. A. Christensen and Mrs. Albert Carey, of Portland, all of whom were members here a few years ago.

Increasing the Service

Important changes have taken place in the local police department. Capt. Jenkins, who has been called to serve at headquarters in Portland, has been succeeded by Capt. L. A. Harms, who is a worthy successor to the position so capably and satisfactorily filled by Capt. Jenkins. The new captain is one of the most trusted and most efficient police officers in the Portland service. He is well known by some of our older citizens, for about a quarter of a century ago Capt. Harms was a resident of St. Johns. This place at that time was only a very small hamlet and much of the land was in its virgin state. He can tell some interesting reminiscences of the days of old, and of the wonderful progress that has been made since. The new captain is a pleasant and congenial gentleman, as well as capable and efficient police officer, and St. Johns can congratulate itself upon securing his services since Capt. Jenkins has been called to other work. The service here has been augmented by the addition of Sergeant E. E. Lyon and Sergeant Joe Day, the latter serving as night sergeant. A motorcycle man has also been added to the force. Capt. Harms is now urging the extension of the St. Johns police district to Peninsula avenue, believing this entire section could be more efficiently policed from the St. Johns headquarters.

A fastidious old gentleman was enjoying a cigar with a friend one afternoon. The guest, having reached the end of his Havana, hurried the stump on to the well kept lawn. "What made you throw your cigar there?" said the old man angrily. "See how unsightly it is on the lovely grass." "That surely won't do any harm," said the other, "for nobody would notice a little thing like that." "My dear fellow," solemnly replied the old grumbler, "it's just little things like these that constitute tidiness and tidiness is half the comfort of life." His friend said no more for a time, and in a few moments he arose hurriedly, disappeared, and was absent for a full twenty minutes. "Where on earth have you been?" said his host, when he returned at last. "Oh! I've only been across the meadow to spit in the river."

An American editor had a notice stuck up above his desk on which was printed: "Accuracy! Accuracy! Accuracy!" and this notice he always pointed out to the new reporters. One day the youngest member of the staff came in with his report of a public meeting. The editor read it through, and came to the sentence: "Three thousand and nine hundred and ninety-nine eyes were fixed on the speaker." "What do you mean by making a silly blunder like that?" he demanded, wrathfully. "But it's not a blunder," protested the youngster. "There was a one eyed man in the audience."

A countryman journeyed to the city to visit some relatives and to see the sights. Fascinated by the Metropolis, he remained until patience on the part of his hosts, a married couple, had ceased to be a virtue. Too polite to openly remonstrate, they both threw out many hints, but all in vain. "Don't you think, my dear fellow," remarked the husband one day, "that your wife and children must miss you?" "No doubt. Thanks for the suggestion; I'll send for them."
