The Peninsula and Cornfoot teams played a game of ball at the local grounds Sunday afternoon, in which the former was hopelessly outclassed and resulting in a score of 8 to 0. Only two hits was all the Peninsulaites were able to garner.

P. G. Gilmore, formerly well known citizen and business man of St. Johns, but who has been successfully engaged in the mercantile business at Newport, greeted his old time friends here the first of the week. He expects to enter the government service in the near future. "Pete" reports business thriving at Newport.

H. J. Davis, chief electrician at U. S. Naval Training station at Seattle, was a recent visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Davis. He also spent a week in Salt Lake City. Since his return to Seattle he has successfully passed the examination and been appointed Warrant Gunner, a commissioned officer.

As the government, under the conservation of news print paper, does not favor the enlargement of any newspaper, but on the contrary urges a reduction in size wherever possible, advertisers who anticipate using the columns of the Review for the Fall business should arrange for their space without delay. Our space for advertising purposes is quite limited, and the demand for such space is increasing, so it would not be wise to delay until such space has all been contracted for. Better see about it at once.

Bonham & Currier, the enterprising and well known mercantile dealers, close their thirteenth year of business in St. Johns the first day of September. From a modest beginning they have gradually expanded until today their three stores under one roof is one of the most complete and up-to-date establishments of Portland. Bonham & Currier have always attended strictly to business, and by courteous treatment, honest values, judicious advertising, and incorporating the Golden Rule in their daily business they have attained a prominence and a reputation that they may well feel proud of. Thirteen has at times been considered an unlucky number, but in this case their thirteenth year has proven the most successful of all. May they continue in business here for many years to come, and may each succeeding year prove more successful than the one preceding it.

The large illustration on the first page of this paper was designed by C. C. Woodhouse, a heavy St. Johns realty owner, and a mining engineer of considerable skill and wide experience. It took some months of painstaking effort on his part to make it as accurate as it appears. While it was made about five years ago, it is the best illustration available and proves Mr. Woodhouse's faith in St. Johns had not been misplaced and his prophecies are being fulfilled. The picture is well worth pondering over. In no better way could the wonderful advantages of the lower peninsula be depicted. Study it well.

Among the institutions that have located in St. Johns within the past year is the Peninsula Brass Foundry, founded by R. A. Bachman, and is already doing a flourishing business in making accessories for the ship yards. The Valveless Pump & Foundry Co. is a new company that has taken possession of the old Marine Iron Works plant at the foot of Richmond street converting it into a big foundry, besides erecting a good sized machine shop. The Associated Engineering Corporation has taken over the old box factory and is making a specialty of pulleys and blocks for ships. The Jobs Milling Co. has been transferred to the Rose City Flouring Mills and the capacity of the mill is being doubled.

Under a government conservation plan for news print paper is an order discontinuing weekly papers to subscribers three months in arrears. There are a number on the Review list who comes within this ruling simply because they have neglected to pay up when their subscription expired. We would regret very much to be compelled to eliminate these good citizens from our mailing list just because they have overlooked the fact that they are in arrears. Therefore, any subscriber who is three months or more in arrears is requested to remit as soon as possible, so that we will not be under the necessity of taking a single name from the list. Please remember this, as we shall not have the time to send out personal notices to this effect.

One of the establishments that secure the stability and substantiality of St. Johns is the erection of the immense municipal grain elevators and coal bunkers in North St. Johns. The cost will approach very closely to $3,000,000, and work on the same is progressing rapidly. Adjoining it will soon be erected an eight story concrete flouring mill, with several other industries in prospect. With the big elevators on the north end and the half million dollar municipal dry dock on the south end of St. Johns the substantiality of St. Johns cannot further be questioned. The dry dock is always busy. It is capable of lifting the largest ships coming into the Portland harbor.

On account of the government restricting the use of newspaper stock to low minimum as possible in order to conserve its supply, and in order to assist the government as much as possible along this line, this issue of the Review is not as large in size as it might have been. In order to confine the issue to eight pages much of the matter had to be curtailed and some writings eliminated. There is so much that could be said concerning St. Johns, its industries and business concerns, that a much larger sized paper would be necessary to tell it all, and at the same time carry enough advertising matter to pay for cost of publication. Owing, therefore, to lack of space, illustrations and details in connection with industrial plants and citizens of St. Johns whom have been largely instrumental in making St. Johns what it is today are largely eliminated. At a later period, when the supply of news paper is plentiful, we hope to get out a paper that will tell the whole story faithfully and well.
