A Magnificent Showing

The following concerning the magnificent success of the Fourth Liberty Loan drive at the local ship yard is clipped from "Going Some," the bright and interesting ship paper:

Surging over the top with a smashing total of $810,000, the grand drive of the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign was brought to a brilliant close in our yard on Thursday noon. The fealty of the men to the Government cause was eloquently attested by the fact that a total of $674,500 was subscribed, exclusive of the management contributions of $135,500. Based upon actual employees' pledges, this affords a per capita subscription of approximately $120 per man. Practically every man in the yard was represented in the subscription list.

Never in the history of the yard was a greater spirit of enthusiasm shown than that which attended the climaxing program of Thursday noon. The thousands of men from our own yard were joined by large delegations from the Portland Woolen Mills and Peninsula Iron Works, who were invited to the yards through the management. Marie Dressler, the inimitable comedienne queen of the American stage, was the magnetic attraction, and through her efforts $30,600 was raised in about 20 minutes. On a previous visit Miss Dressler succeeded in raising $6,000 after talking to the night force. She had made the return trip to Portland expressly to talk to the day shift of our yard, and her reappearance was greeted with great applause. Her presence and eloquent appeal, interspersed with gems of humor, brought forth both laughter and dollars. At the conclusion of her remarks she recited a poem entitled, "Viva La France," which brought tears to the eyes of hundreds. Included in the day's subscriptions was one of $25,000 from the Peninsula National Bank. E. L. Thompson, treasurer and general manager of the Portland Woolen Mills, won the plaudits of the crowd by offering to double the subscription of everyone subscribing from his concern.

A humorous feature of the program was the unveiling of the "Slackers' Monument." It consisted of a pedestal fourteen feet high, erected opposite the Goddess of Liberty presented, at the opening of the drive by Sculptor Traglio, Jim and Chris Christensen and the boys of the night force. The "Slackers' Monument," by contrast, presented a farcical appearance, with its pedestal painted yellow and surmounted by a wooden representation of the Kaiser. The figure was the work of Dana Wright and was a clever caricature of Wilhelm, standing with arms folded and wearing an iron cross, on which was the inscription, "Slaughter." The monument was suggested by Labor Foreman Tom Thompson of the North ways and erected by Bert Pettitt and his North ways crew. The monument was hidden beneath a covering of burlap, and when unveiled caused widespread amusement. By a clever arrangement, the Kaiser dropped to his knees when the $750,000 mark was reached and stood as though in humble supplication, facing the Liberty Goddess. After the noon ceremonies were over, the shipbuilders went back to their work with rousing cheers for Miss Dressler, proud in the realization that they had "dug" to their last penny.

Oscar J. Oihus has invented a new device for testing spark plugs and electrical appliances. It has the external appearance of a fountain pen. He has demonstrated this device to many of the large accessory dealers and some of the larger automobile dealers of this coast, and they have been unanimous in pronouncing it a winner, having genuine merit. The inventor is in hopes that the Government will make use of this invention for the aviators as well as automobiles. Mr. Oihus has just returned from San Francisco in the interest of this device. He will commence their manufacture in the near future and fill the number of orders on file for the same as soon as the material required can be obtained in sufficient quantities.

There is nothing a soldier enjoys so much as pictures of home and the home folks. Send them a few home snap shots. Currin Says So.

High School Notes

Owing to a few fumbles, bad weather and a strong team opposing, James John went down to defeat before the Lincoln eleven Friday, October 4, with a score of 13 to 7. However, no one feels badly about the game, as our boys played a splendid and a close game. A number of our letter men are now attending O. A. C., thus putting a handicap upon the team. A fine crowd of James John students turned out for the game, showing that James John has the same spirit that was exhibited last year. This defeat, by a close margin, does not put James John out of the run for the championship.

The regular meeting of the Latin Club will be held Friday evening, Oct. 11. A highly entertaining program is promised on which the initiation of new members and a superlative Greek play will hold important places. The play is an original drama in five acts called "The Fisherman's Rope," and is calculated to put to shame the greatest writers of old Athens. The dramatic personae is as follows: Plesidippus, the Hero, Gordon Avery; the slave of Plesidippus, Trachallo, John Wolf; Scepornio, slave of Daedalis, Edward Rood; the Heroine, Palaestra, Verda McNiven; a slave girl with whom Trachallo is in love, Ermo Griswold; Daedalis, an Athenian lady, Hazel Greene; the Priestess of Venus, Ptemocrazia, Gertrude Hansen. The play will be presented in ancient Greek costumes and setting and promises to be very educational, as well as entertaining.

Under the direction of Miss Straube and Muriel Thomas the sphagnum moss pickers are making excellent progress, having picked a little more than one sack to date. Alto this seems a small amount, it must be remembered that the work must be done very carefully and that very few of the students have picked moss before. At present the work is being done twice a week, in the Patriotic Period and after school, but will probably be done more frequently as the work becomes firmly established. As it is necessary to wear a head covering for reasons of sanitation, some varied and unusual creations have appeared. For the present we have been apportioned ten sacks of the moss, but we expect to be given more as soon as we have finished the amount on hand.

"Paper, paper all around and not a scrap to spare, Paper here and paper there and paper everywhere!"

Thus did the Paper Campaign of James John close Monday, October 7, at 8:35 a. m., exactly one week from the opening of the campaign. And such a week! Tiny Frosh staggering down the halls under immense stacks of paper or rushing madly here and there in search of string for tying, and scales for weighing, their bad got paper! Staid Seniors, forgetting for the time their dignified mannerisms in their efforts to maintain a supremacy! But to little purpose, for the fourth terms were over, the top with an average 123 1-3 pounds per person, and a total of 3304 1-2 pounds. The Seniors came next with an average of 113 pounds per person. The Senior class has the honor of claiming the individual championship of the campaign, as Hazel Green brought 1010 pounds of paper. It has not been definitely decided to which class the booby prize will be awarded, but it will probably go to one of the Junior classes.

There were a number of humorous incidents connected with the campaign, one of which serves to show the zeal of the workers: In the canvass of the neighborhood for paper, a Senior girl and a Sophomore boy selected the same house on which to center their efforts. The Senior rapped at the back door at precisely the same moment that the Sophomore was announcing his presence at the front door. Needless to say, the lady of the house answered the front door first, and the Senior found it necessary to look for paper elsewhere. The campaign was a great success, as the total was 8000 pounds, and the receipts will be a welcome addition to the Student Body treasury.

The Freshman reception is always treated as one of the big affairs of the year at James John, and the entertainment Friday evening proved to be no exception. The entertainment was original and unique and was well carried out. The program

Shipbuilders' Books

Books of interest to shipworkers at the St. Johns Library:

Van Gasbeek—A practical course in wooden boat and shipbuilding, 1918. Fundamental principles and practical methods described in detail—especially written for carpenters and other wood workers who desire to engage in shipbuilding; fully illustrated.

Hodgson—Complete modern carpentry and joinery, 2 vol. 1917. Simple style of writing that does not bewilder the workman; many diagrams.

Johnson—Ship wiring and fitting. Treats of the systems of wiring most commonly used in the fitting of electrical apparatus on ships.

Verrill—Knots, splices and rope work. Gives complete and simple directions for making all the most useful knots in common use; weights, strength and construction of ropes; splicing, etc.

Hasbeck—Practical plumbers' work. Simply worded, so that even inexperienced readers can understand it.

Several new copies of Estep's How Wooden Ships Are Built have been received at the Library to supply the great demand for this book.

The Library also receives the following magazines on Shipbuilding: International Marine Engineering, Marine Review, Shipbuilder and Marine News.

was presided over by Hugh Whisler, who introduced the speakers of the evening. Mr. Fletcher represented the Faculty in his address of welcome to the Freshmen and new students and made them feel that they are now a part of our schools and that we are glad they are here. Mr. Fletcher's talk was followed by one from Merle Harrington, who told in a very interesting fashion of his experiences in attempting to enter the S. A. T. C. unit at O. A. C. The next part of the entertainment was given over to an original playlet called "The Quest of School Spirit," in which two Freshmen start out in search of school spirit. Their search led them thru the various departments of the school, which were represented by groups of students. The music department was represented by a vocal duet by Gladys Keeney and Gladys Coon, a piano duet by Louise Lott and Glenna Jones and a violin solo by Melfor Wesseder. The art department was well represented by Denby Coon with a number of rapidly drawn patriotic cartoons. Genevieve Brown acted as guide for the Freshmen thru the Literary department, which was composed of representatives of the school clubs. Together they gave a little play within a play with a widely varied cast. Alice Brown was a vampire, representing the Philaenacum; Paul Chatterton a villain from the Ciceronian; from the Sodalita Latina, Harlan Hiatt as a gentleman of ancient Rome, while Gladys Coon represented the Sociedad Costellans in the role of a Spanish senorita. With a large knitting bag in which to put their Student Body dues, Rudy Anderson impressed the two Freshmen with the importance of the finance department. A small paper campaign was staged by the Public Welfare department in which the Freshmen labored diligently in gathering paper. The last to be represented was the Athletic department, and the part of the two football fans was well portrayed by Amanda Steele and Hazel Greene. By their conversation about James John's football defeat of the afternoon, the two fans impressed their audience with the fact that James John can take defeat with the right spirit. The two Freshmen had asked for the school spirit in each department, but had not been satisfied with the assurances of the various departments that it was present. As a grand finale the representatives of all the departments gathered upon the stage with Isabelle Gargely as the personification of school spirit. The spirit informed the children that the spirit which they sought couldn't be found in any one department, but it was to be found in the school as a whole. John Wolf, president of the Student Body, who had been unable to be present during the early part of the evening, arrived in time to speak forcefully of the spirit of James John.—By Stanley O'Connor.

A Generous Offer

S. Benson has most generously offered to donate for use as the site for a Government reconstruction hospital a large tract of land on Willamette boulevard, just southwest of Columbia Park. The tract contains approximately seventy acres and Mr. Benson offers as a gift the entire area, or as much of it as may be needed. The land is known as the Mock tract and is the site of the home of the late John Mock, Portland pioneer, from whom Mr. Benson bought it several years ago, paying, it is reported, $300,000 for the property, which now has a value in excess of that amount. Mr. Benson offers to convey the title to as much property as may be needed either to the city or the Government, with the sole stipulation that it be used as a hospital for soldiers. It is expected that Mr. Benson's offer will be submitted by the Council to the Federal committee that is soon to visit Portland on a tour of the Pacific Coast in search of suitable hospital sites. The land offered lies high above the river, and Willamette boulevard, on which it fronts, is considered one of the city's scenic drives.

Mill Destroyed by Fire

The Western Lumber Company's mill, at the foot of Marcum avenue, in East St. Johns, one of the plants engaged in airplane spruce production was totally destroyed by fire early Saturday with a loss estimated at $40,000. None of the lumber designed for airplanes was burned, it is said. The fire started near an electric switchboard in a saw filer's shed. Charles Root, a night watchman, discovered the flames and attempted to put them out. He sustained severe burns about the hands and face before he gave up the attempt. Then he turned in an alarm. There are no fire hydrants near the mill. Fire engines pumped from the slough, but were hampered by soft mud, which choked their hose, and were unable to combat the flames successfully. A high wind fanned the blaze and the flames swept thru the mill and into 75,000 feet of unfinished lumber piled close by. A heavy rainfall at the time saved cottages in the neighborhood. The plant was a comparatively small one, employing about 30 men. The mill and yards covered about one block. Mr. Gritzmacher, president of the company, says he has not yet decided whether to rebuild. He indicated that his decision would rest largely on the possibility of salvaging the machinery in the destroyed mill.

Business in Good Hands

Vancouver Barracks, Oct. 9, 1918.—I wish to take this opportunity to thank my many friends and patrons for their favors of the past years. The call of duty has led me away from your midst and I have disposed of my office to Dr. A. B. Calder. You will find Dr. Calder a broadminded, christian gentleman with an experience of more than twelve years in the practice of his profession. He was the first secretary of the Oregon Board of Chiropractic Examiners, and has served continuously on this board, filling the office of president at the present time. He is worthy of your confidence and patronage. With heartfelt good will toward all, I am, fraternally yours, Herbert F. Jones.

The Royal Tailors of New

York and Chicago have arranged with Mr. W. W. Rogers, The Raincoat Man, who has been connected with them for five years, to display their complete line of over 500 all wool fabrics at 202 N. Jersey street. This will enable the people of St. Johns and vicinity to secure tailored to individual measure clothes at practically peace time prices, plus advanced cost of labor, due to the fact that the Royal Tailors are now using woollens from their $3,000,000 stock purchased before the outbreak of the war. In anticipation of present conditions, which were easily foreseen to a certain extent, due to European hostilities.

More Men Than Women

American women who are disturbed by the news that "hundreds of young American soldiers are marrying in France" will be comforted by study of the census reports, which show that the excess of men over women in the country as a whole is quite sufficient to provide those hundreds of French girls with husbands and still leave a good margin to spare. Nor is there even a remote probability that this advantage will be swept away by the war.

There were in the United States proper when the census was taken in 1910 47,332,317 men and 44,639,989 women, an excess in favor of the men of 2,692,328; and it was a greater excess by more than a million than was noted in the census of 1900. If the ratio increase has been maintained in the last eight years—and there is no reason for believing that it has not been—this would mean that there are now nearly 3,500,000 more men than women in the United States. Of course, no American girl wants to see her particular sweetheart captured by a French woman, but it would seem that American women as a whole might view the situation with equanimity. With so many men to spare, why waste them in bachelorhood unnecessarily?

Somewhat more than one-half of the population of the world has been enumerated with distinction as to sex, and the result shows a slight excess for males. Out of about 894,000,000 counted in 1900, there were a little over 4,000,000 more males than females. Europe was the only continent to show an excess of females, and this is attributed largely to emigration to other continents, but it does not, on the other hand, entirely account for the excess of men in the United States as it might be expected to do. There is in the United States an altogether puzzling excess of males in the most important class of the population, the native whites of native parentage.

In 1910 the ratio in this class was 194 males to 100 females, as compared with 106 males to 100 females for the population as a whole. It is interesting and also inexplicable that the numbers of males and females among those born here of foreign parents were almost identical. In Europe, however, the ratio of about 96.7 to 100 females has been maintained ever since agencies of enumeration were perfected. Our own tables show an excess of males at every census. Even the Civil War did not wipe this out. The absolute amount of the excess was greater at each census than at the one preceding except in the census of 1870, which followed the war, with its loss of soldier lives and the falling off of immigration.—Oregonian.

Portland Now Closed

Portland today stands closed for public gatherings, as a result of the threatened spread of Spanish influenza in this section. Public meetings, schools and places of amusement are closed down by order of the Mayor and at the suggestion of the Surgeon General of the United States. At a conference of city, state and Federal health officials yesterday it was decided that the city had the chance to forestall a serious epidemic of the maldy by prompt action in preventing persons from congregating in public places. Crowding in the streets, stores, street cars and other places where persons are brought into close contact also was discouraged in the proclamation of Mayor Baker, which was issued last night.

Millions of worms have invaded Littleton, West Virginia. For three days they passed steadily a half mile from that town in such numbers as to drive farmers from the fields. Work was discontinued in order to shovel the invaders away from homes. The army is traveling a straight course. It is 100 yards in width, three miles long and several inches deep, so says a dispatch from that place.

Price Knocked Down $2,000. Fine hotel site near station. St. Johns; 160x137 1/2 feet. Address 837 Willamette boulevard.

Come in and hear the late records. You are always welcome. Currin Says So.
