

Occidental De Luxe Combination Range On Easy Terms Burns Gas, Coal and Wood

The above is an exact reproduction of the Occidental De Luxe Combination Range. It is the last word - the very best that Craftsmen have ever designed.

It is a handsome range. Notice the stove pipe is hidden. Notice also the full width splashback of white enamel, nickel trimmings and white enamel oven door. All exterior castings are black enamel. The top is highly polished. Easy to keep clean.

The Occidental is the only combination gas, coal and wood range without any change of parts. It is in reality a gas range built into a wood and coal range. The gas heats the same oven surface as the wood or coal.

PRICE $147.50

Terms $15 cash, $13.50 a month

Occidental Combination Range Like the range shown at the bottom of ad. White enamel and nickel Trimmings. Burns coal, gas and wood.

The Cash and Carry Grabateria The Changing Times

The era of Chain Stores came about because a group of men with large capital could, by starting stores in different localities increase the outlet of merchandise emanating from one source.

The Chain Store system is nothing more than any other store except the buying part is concentrated at one place. The buyers for these stores have their headquarters at the source of production and they buy direct from the packer or the producer.

It goes without saying that a buyer who can buy the same sort of merchandise for several hundred stores can command a better price than a buyer for just one store.

The secret of advantageous grocery prices in St. Johns is this ability to buy in connection with many other stores. That is why you have had established by this store better prices than prevail almost anywhere in Portland.

Coupled with this buying capacity, the activity of the owners, the acquaintance with the locality because of our long residence here ought to convince any one that we can do business at less cost than the average grocery.

We always believed that "a word to the wise was sufficient."

Denial of alleged statements that selfish interests are attempting to force the city council into acquiring the Caples tract in St. Johns for a playground is made by E. Wilson. "A delegation of twelve honest citizens interviewed the people and got their sentiments and wish concerning the proper location of playgrounds and park," said Wilson. "Between 2000 and 3000 of these people petitioned the council for the Caples tract. "While the delegation was interviewing the citizens, there was no undue influence used in representing the tracts of land offered for playground; neither did they solicit signers from the industries by intimidating the employees." —Contributed.

Watch the Peninsula Grow

An ideal industrial community would be one in which there was work for all the inhabitants and inhabitants enough to do all the work.

An ideal location for such a community would be a site having ample space for manufacturing plants along the lowlands bordering the waterfront and broad hillsides for homes for the workers.

An ideal development for such a community would be one that offered the greatest degree of comfort and enjoyment in the living quarters of the town and the highest degree of efficiency in the manufacturing section.

Such an ideal arrangement, as far as natural conditions go, is found in Portland's great industrial and shipping center—the Willamette-Columbia Peninsula.

An issue of the St. Johns Review published Nov. 11, 1904, contained this statement: "From a population of 250 people in 1902 at present St. Johns has more than 2,000 inhabitants." The district which was then the town of St. Johns now has nearer 10,000 inhabitants.

Do you realize what the future may be of the district in which you live?
