

Pretty Church Wedding

On Wednesday evening, September the first, at eight-thirty, the Pioneer Methodist Episcopal Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Miss Nellie May Kemp, daughter of Mrs. Sarah A. Kemp, was united in marriage to Charles Wesley Mason. Friends and relatives of the popular couple filled the church, which was very tastefully decorated for the occasion by friends. The ring ceremony was beautifully read by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Kloster. The piano was presided over by Miss Alice Brown. Mrs. J. S. Hamilton, the bride's vocal teacher, sang "Because," as the bridal party ascended the stairs; then the wedding march pealed forth. First came the ushers, Edwin Galloway and Edward Bove; the groom, Charles Wesley Mason, and best man, Rufus Galloway; the matron of honor, Mrs. Myrtle A. Weeks; the bridesmaids, the Misses Beulah and Olive Zimmerman; the ring bearer, Master Wesley Mason, carrying the ring on a beautiful rose branch; the bride, Miss Nellie May, on the arm of her mother, Mrs. Kemp. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and looked very attractive in a cream white embroidered Georgette Crepe gown, with which she wore a veil caught on with a coronet of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Mrs. Kemp was charmingly gowned in black crepe de chine. Mrs. Myrtle A. Weeks wore a pretty white voile, and carried lavender asters. The bridesmaids, the Misses Zimmerman, wore smart frocks of pink organdie, carried bouquets of pink sweet peas. After the ceremony in the receiving line stood the bride and groom with Mrs. Kemp, mother of the bride; Mrs. Mason, the mother of the groom, also Wesley Mason, the little son of the groom. A reception was held at the home for the bridal party, and those that served, and the relatives of both families. Many costly and

Some Grape Vine

Last Saturday's Telegram had pictures and the following article on the wonderful grapevine at the Shannon home in Sellwood?
As proof positive that Oregon has a climate and soil admirably suited to the grape-growing industry Sellwood residents point with pride to a great Concord vine on the property of C. E. Shannon, 568 Tenino avenue.
The trunk of this monster is a foot in diameter, and the main branches are as large as a man's forearm. It covers 200 square feet of trellis, and it is said to be not only useful and ornamental, but profitable. Its yield last year was eighty-four quarts, besides numerous baskets of the fruit shared with neighbors.
The vine is in its twenty-fifth year. It was planted by John Porter, deceased. Among the pioneers who vouch for its age in Sellwood are Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wahlstrom. Its infancy dates back to the days when the Willamette was the connecting link between Portland and this residence suburb, when troublesome sand-bars were an impediment to navigation, and Captain Morgan and his steamer on the return trip sometimes could not land passengers until midnight.
beautiful presents were received. Mr. Mason came from Kent, Oregon, two years ago and is employed at one of the shipyards. He is treasurer, trustee and assistant Sunday School superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which both are members. The bride has resided in St. Johns for about eighteen years. Mr. and Mrs. Mason will reside with Mrs. Mason's mother, Mrs. Kemp. Mrs. Myrtle A. Weeks cut her visit in the east short one week so as to be at the Mason-Kemp wedding.

A Cleaning Machine

She always kept everything perfectly clean
From the cellar clear up to the top;
For neatness and order she surely was keen
And no one could get her to stop.
Her husband could never find comfort at home
For fear he would muss up the place
Where his wife with a broom and a duster would roam
With a stern sort of look on her face.
She never had time to be reading a book,
She never had time for a call,
Instead she was scrubbing some corner or nook
Or sweeping the stairs or the hall.
She swept all her beauty and gladness away,
She swept all the joy out of life,
Until she became an automaton gray,
A cleaning machine—not a wife.
She scrubbed all the love from the heart of her spouse,
Her children were playless and glum,
She had her reward—an immaculate house
Where nobody ever would come.
She swept and she dusted and scrubbed like a slave
Till she swept herself into the tomb
And the monument now at the head of her grave
Is a duster, a brush and a broom!
—Berton Braley in the Character Builder.
Candy is manufactured principally from sugar, syrup, honey, nuts, condensed milk, egg albumen, colors and flavors, chocolate, cocoa, egg substitutes and salt. Sugar is the chief ingredient of candy and there is no one food or food product that will yield quicker returns to the body in the shape of energy than will sugar, it therefore gives candy a high food value. The syrups, nuts, chocolate, cocoa and other ingredients entering into the manufacture of candy all give it a high food value when used rationally. Science has proved this and the great war demonstrated it. The candy and sugar industries are among the most rapidly growing industries in the west and are already employing tens of thousands of people. This is probably due largely to the fact that the public is just beginning to realize the value of these industries as food producers—and not luxuries. People are using more sweets and sugar as food and this is one of the chief reasons for the sugar shortage—Pacific Coast Manufacturer.

I hope in our campaigning, we won't disturb the map; too often we are straining to open up a scrap; too often, in the clangor of windmill and harangue, and 'other wild slambang, we sweat the other chap. Too oft we quit our labors, neglect our growing beans, to wrangle with the neighbors o'er what our campaign means; and it were better, saucer, to be a strict abstainer from tricks of the campaigner, and raise a lot of greens. The winter's drawing closer, the summer's almost spent, and wind won't pay the grocer, and talk won't pay the rent; and when the wolf is yelling before your humble dwelling, all kinds of want foretelling, your lost hours you'll lament. I hear the statesmen below, I see them paw the soil, but I'm the prudent fellow who sticks to useful toil; and when the snow is falling, I'll have a cow to boil. I'm working in the gardening, I'm earning useful rocks; perhaps I'll vote for Harding, perhaps I'll vote for Cox; but while the spuds are growing each day will see me hoeing, not idly to-and-froing to hand out roasts or knocks.—Walt Mason.

When a Life Goes Out

It is a natural desire that the funeral be conducted tenderly and with dignity and reverence; that the lines of pain and suffering be removed; that the drawn and sunken features of the loved one be restored.

This is not vanity on the part of the surviving family; but rather that they and their friends, as they look upon the face of the departed for the last time, may cherish in memory the face they knew and loved in life.

This is a part of the service included with the many other features that we employ, to lessen the suffering which is so apt to be forcibly present.
