Quaint Garter Customs.
There are several quaint customs in connection with garters. A description of two, however, must suffice. The one is that prevalent in several mid-European countries, of taking off the bride's garter by the best man at the breakfast, and cutting it up, and distributing the pieces among the grooms-men and guests.
The second is, or rather was, the practice in the German Imperial family of giving the bride thirteen pairs, one pair of which was kept as likely to bring her good luck. This pair is always made of pale blue silk (the maiden's color), and has diamond clasps. Another pair was sent to the museum of Berlin—where there are something like ninety most interesting specimens—and the remaining pairs were given as keepsakes to the young nobles and others who attended the bridegroom at the altar.
Judging from the modern specimens, garters are even nowadays scarcely less dainty, elaborate, or costly than of yore, though perhaps often worn more for ornament and sentiment than for use.—Kansas City Star.

Woman as Medal Designer.
Mme. Anie Mouroux, a French woman, is now on a visit to this country and has achieved a world wide reputation as a designer and maker of medals. She designed a number of war medals, for the French government, and has done other notable work. She was a winner of the Prix de Rome, which was established in 1900, and during all that time she was the only woman who contested the honor. When she was selected the award narrowed itself down to a group of six.

Up to Specifications.
"I do not insist," the old gentleman said, "that the man my daughter marries shall have wealth, provided he has sound judgment and unusual elevensness."
"Well, you must admit, sir," the youth replied, "that I showed sound judgment in selecting you as a prospective father-in-law, and considerable cleverness in getting Grace to accept as ordinary-seeming and poor a chap as I am."—New York Sun.

Final.
"She refused you."
"Tentatively."
"What do you mean by 'tentatively'?"
"She said she would marry me when my salary got to be $10,000 a year."
"That wasn't a tentative refusal."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ELECTRICAL Housekeeping

Eight hours is insufficient time for human hands to perform all the household tasks. However, it is possible to establish the eight hour day in the home by making use of the electrical hands that are offered to you in the form of the electrical dish-washer, washing machine, ironing machine, vacuum sweeper and many other labor saving devices.

These untiring "household assistants" will do your work quickly and efficiently. Your home can be run systematically with these electrical hands for they never disappoint you or grow tired. Your time and energy can be devoted to the better things of life, when you keep house electrically.

Glad to show you any time—
