Community Club Notes

That a definite program will be outlined for the St. Johns Community Club and be published from time to time was a decision reached at a meeting of the advisory board of the Club which met at James John high school on Tuesday, following a noon luncheon. In order that the needs of the different parts of the district be more determinate, a chairman from each precinct will be appointed who shall look after the needs of his own particular locality and bring to the attention of the Club matters pertaining to that need. A membership drive will also be launched as one of the objectives for the new year.

It was deemed advisable to have the next meeting, which will be of social nature, on Oct. 31st, when a Halloween party is planned, at the Y. W. C. A.

Members of the board attending the meeting were W. T. Fletcher, vice president, now in charge of the club in the absence of the president; Mrs. E. A. Blew, secretary; Dr. E. P. Borden, F. F. Drinker, A. E. Jones, Harry Ormandy, H. W. Bonham, Mrs. R. G. Brand, Mrs. J. M. Shaw and Miss Beatrice Rundall.

WILD ASSES IN SCRIPTURES
 Mention of the Animals is Made Many Times in Pages of the Old Testament.

Wild asses are mentioned several times in the Old Testament; for instance, in Daniel 5:21. Referring to the punishment that came upon King Nebuchadnezzar, it is stated—"And he was driven from the sons of men, and his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses. . . ." An account of the wild asses in practically the country over which Nebuchadnezzar reigned, is given by an ancient Greek writer who had been a soldier in Mesopotamia and Assyria. This writer is Xenophon, who lived from 430 to 355 B. C. He was an officer with the Greek force that joined the expedition of Cyrus the Younger, king of Persia. When in that country the officers of the Greek force were murdered, and taking command of the ten thousand of his countrymen, Xenophon led them northward through a hostile country to the place on the Black sea now called Trebizond. His account of this feat is called Anabasis, the up-country march, and is a Greek text-book in our high schools and colleges.

October 1st Mr. Wm. Gatton of 607 N. Syracuse street celebrated his 61st birthday. His family and friends spent the day with him and had a fine birthday dinner. Those present were Mr. Wm. Gatton, his sons George and S. R. T. Gatton, daughter, Mrs. A. J. McClure and family, Mrs. Lillian Gatton and family, Samuel Laethe, wife and family, Wm. Brooks, wife and family, Joseph Brooks, wife and family, O. F. Mason, wife and daughter, the Masters Cruger and Mr. Johnston. There were three children, ten grand children and twenty-four great grand children. A very pleasant time was had by all, and they departed wishing him many returns of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray entertained a number of friends Wednesday evening, Oct. 4th, at their home, 625 E. Richmond street. The honor guest of the evening was Miss Jennie McNiven, who left following Saturday morning for Eugene to attend the University there. A delightful time was enjoyed by every one and a dainty lunch ended the evening. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Roberts and son Walter, Miss M. Plasket, Miss N. Johnston, Mrs. M. Penton, Miss L. L. Currier and Miss McNiven.

FIRST TO FLY OVER CHANNEL
 Jesuit Named Grimaldi is Said to Have Crossed Historic Strip of Water in 1751.

Who was the first man to fly across the English channel in a mechanical device? We all think that the honor belongs to Bleriot and he will retain it until adequate proof to the contrary is produced.

It is now declared, however, that this feat was accomplished 150 years earlier by a Jesuit named Grimaldi, who in the summer of 1751 flew from Cape Gris Nez to Dover, says Le Petit Parisien, Paris. (Translated for the Kansas City Star). The story goes that Grimaldi used an apparatus constructed in the form of a black eagle, which was easily maneuvered at widely varying levels.

Serious documents are in existence, it is said, both in the Gergame library in Italy and in the British museum, establishing the truth of this extraordinary accomplishment.

COFFEE HOUSE AND INN.
 The coffee house and the foreign mail service were both young things together. When coffee was the newest beverage and the London coffee house tables were the regular rendezvous of those who talked big business in the days of clipper ships, the foreign mail service to all continents was just beginning and ship's mail pouches hung in every coffee house of any importance.

Letters for far ports, for Africa and those lonely single settlements that were the outposts of the white man a century or so ago were generally not sent through the national postoffice, but carried to the coffee house to await the sailing of the first ship. Matters of marine insurance were settled over a cup of coffee, too, and talk of crews and cargoes and consignments and consignations were heard at the tables. In brief, big business began over a cup of coffee.

DEDUCTIVE REASONING FAILED.
 Three detectives were shadowing a Frenchman who had pocketed some goods from a counter, and whom they suspected to belong to a gang. After rounding a corner they found he was no longer visible, but soon came to a restaurant with the inscription—"Tel on parle francais." "He'll be in there," said the first. "No," said the second, "if he thought he was being followed he would avoid going where he thought we should expect to find him." "Yes," said the third, "but he would guess we should be smart enough to think of that, and would turn in after all." So they went in and searched, but without success, for the Frenchman could not read, and therefore had not stopped.
