The death and accident record for automobiles in Portland for the past week has been horrible. Narrow streets, congested traffic, speeding and carelessness covers the causes for these accidents. The traffic officials are now considering one way traffic rules. This will save time but it is not in the congested districts where accidents occur mostly.

New life was injected into the 1927 Exposition when the leaders in the movement met a few nights ago and discussed new plans for financing the fair. The scope of the undertaking has been narrowed and it is now proposed to make it more of a western states affair. The financing will be by issuing stock to the amount of $5,000,000 which will be sold at $25 per share. Two or three sites have been donated for holding the fair if the financing plans are successful.

"One-fourth of the soil of the United States is timbered or cut-over land in private ownership. A growing proportion of the lumbermen of the country recognize that the reforestation of this land is neither a fanciful theory nor a job to pass on to the next generation." This was the opening statement of a message from Col. W. B. Greeley, chief forester, read at the annual meeting of the Western Forestry & Conservation Association in Portland on Nov. 24, at what was said to be one of the most important meetings ever held by this Association.

As an illustration of the growth of coast-to-coast traffic 487,994 tons cargo passed through the canal from Pacific to Atlantic in September 1922 as compared with 394,503 tons in September 1921. 244,463 tons of this originated on the west coast, as compared with 218,453 tons in 1921 and 263,957 tons were destined for the east coast in September this year, as compared with 140,555 tons last year.

The rate commissioners of the U. S. have refused the railroads the right to lower their rates east and west in order to compete with the coast to coast traffic now being handled by coastwise steamers. Coastwise freight shipments have grown enormously in the past year. This increase has been at the expense of the trans-continental railroads. It is not easy for the average man to see complete justice in such a ruling. We have always been taught that competition is the life of trade. We are proud to see our water traffic grow. Portland is a fast growing port. We want more lines of ships calling here all the while, flying not only our own but foreign flags. On the other hand our great railroad systems should not be strangled. They are the arteries through which flows the life blood of our internal trade and development. As we see it, if they want to reduce their rates to meet water or land competition let them do it. There should be enough business for all.

WHY ARE WE INTERESTED?

If you would ask the people of such states as Montana, Idaho, Colorado, Arizona, Utah and New Mexico what industry was among their greatest employer of labor and producers of new wealth, they would say mining. If you would ask the people of Washington and Oregon what industry was their greatest employer of labor, they would tell you lumbering and logging. If you would ask the people of these states how conditions were when these industries were inactive they would tell you, bad.

Lumber is the barometer of prosperity in the northwest states, mining is the barometer of prosperity in the mountain and southwest states. Both these industries are dependent on sound business conditions which encourage general industrial activity requiring new construction, railroad development, hydro-electric development and building of all kinds.

Y. W. C. A. ITEMS

Mort more than 100 persons attended the Sunday afternoon services at the Y. W. C. A. which included an interesting and instructive talk by Mrs. J. M. Shaw on "What Would Be Left in the World Today if Jesus Had Not Come." She also gave a brief story of the conditions which inspired the writing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," by John Fawcett, a minister who had decided to leave the little church of which he had been pastor for a number of years to go to a larger church in London but even after the goods were boxed and packed in the wagons he and his wife decided they could not leave and sitting upon the box he wrote the song which is known to millions. "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing" was written by Robert Robertson of England, a man of unusual mental endowment but of a restless disposition and one who, as he expressed it, in the last verse of his song was "Prone to wander" and died an infidel. "Jesus Lover of My Soul," written by Charles Wesley in the year 1770 under circumstances of trouble and danger during the rise of Methodism in England. "Nearer My God to Thee," written by Sarah Flower Adams in the sick room of her sister whom she nursed through a long siege of tuberculosis and from whom she contracted the disease and died shortly after. "Lead Kindly Light," written by John Henry Newman at sight of the setting sun when on a boat in the Mediterranean, where he was seeking to recover his health. "Guide Me, O, Thou Great Jehovah" written by Rev. Dr. William Williams, a Methodist minister who endured many hardships among the hills inspired the hymn. Dr. J. Vinton from Shanghai, China, gave an interesting talk. Fay Palmer, accompanied by her sister, Ruth, gave a violin duet. Mrs. Fred Couch was hostess for the afternoon.

B. F. BELIEU

B. F. Belieu was born in Gundy county, Mo., July 26, 1851. Died in Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18, 1922. Mr. Belieu was left an orphan at an early age and was raised by a sister who still lives in Iowa and very near 100 years old. The family originally came from France where the name was spelled Ballou. Many of the family still retain that spelling. Some of the Ballous were well known publishers. Many of the family were ministers and professional men. His father, three of his brothers and grand father were Baptist ministers. His grand father's sister, Eliza Belieu, was the mother of President Garfield. Mr. Belieu spent several years at Hood River where he contracted and did carpenter work. Many beautiful homes throughout the valley were built by him. He came to St. Johns in 1906 and has resided here since. On August 27, 1871, Mr. Belieu was married to Sarah I. Cox in Decatur county, Iowa. Mrs. Belieu passed away in St. Johns on March 6, 1920, thus breaking a union of nearly 50 years. Seven children were born to this union. All have passed on but three—Mrs. J. B. Fletcher and Perry Belieu of St. Johns, and A. M. Belieu of Seaside. There are also six grandchildren and two great grand children. On October 10, 1921, Mr. Belieu was married to Mrs. A. M. Thornton, who with her family remain. His body was brought back and funeral service held Saturday afternoon. He was laid to rest in the Rose City cemetery beside his wife, daughter and one grand-child. Rose Temple, No. 43, Pythian Sisters will hold election of officers next regular meeting, Dec. 7, and all members are requested to be present on that evening.

A two weeks' series of evangelistic meetings will be held at the Evangelical church, corner Ivanhoe and St. Johns streets, beginning Sunday evening, under the leadership of the Rev. H. August Hunderup, evangelist.

Silk Chemises for Dusky Belles. Lurid purple silk chemises, size 32, are becoming popular with the dusky belles along the African Ocean, according to an announcement by a Chicago mail order house. The firm's foreign department announced the satisfaction of such a demand from Chief Angora in the Duchy of Congo of a recent order for such undergarments for 50 of the chief's favorite wives. Because of the order and Mrs. K. was necessary to have them made to order. "The results are quite satisfactory, however," the chief wrote. With the chemise order came funds for "shoes with watches in their toes," rubber boots with copper soles, gold milk stockings and several beaded bunches of beads and brightly-colored cotton goods. "Vapor Cure" for Whooping Cough. In Devonshire, England, the patentry treat the patient on a sheep's "Torma." A ferrous to the imprint that a sheep makes on the grass by lying in one place all night. When the animal gets up in the morning, a sort of vapor rises from the warm ground underneath into the cold air of the early dawn. The sufferer is taken out into the meadow where the sheep are at daybreak, laid face downward on the ferns, and has then to breathe this vapor in, not merely through the nostrils, but with open mouth. He must breathe it until the ground is cold and there is no more vapor to be pulled into his lungs. With this about the patient. When the patient gets back to bed, and in a few hours his cough has left him—or at least so say the Devon folk. One hundred sheets of good typewriting paper for 25 cents
