ONCE UPON A TIME.

Oh, yes, he's a decent young fellow;

He courted at fair and at frolic;

I've nothing against him, my dear, And it's likely he thinks he is courting.

And it's insery ne things he is courting.
And it's wholesome, a bit of a fear,
But when I think back to my girlhood,
And your grandfather, he was the boy!
If these days were those days, my darling,
By this I'd be wishing you joy.

He toasted me more than he ought, And I don't like to think to this day, dear,

How he looked the day after he fought. Twas all a mistake that he fought for; The other boy wasn't to blame. Twas only a fancy of Taibot'o

That Mike laughed in speaking my name.

He'd not even pass me the tes,
But he'd look in my eyes and than whisper
"If I was that teacup, machree!"
If I gave him my hand just in friendship,
He'd sigh to his boots or as deep,
And say in his beautiful accents,
"Ah, when can I have it to keep!"

t seemed that I couldn't well help it;

I just plagued him out of his life,
Though still to myself I kept saying
That I should some day be his wife.
And then came the day of the jaunt, dear;
Twas to an old ruin we went;
And he wandered me off with himself, like,
And I for the once was content.

I fancied a little blue flower
That grew in the crack of the wall,
And he climbed like a goat till he'd pick it,

And some way he managed to fail.

I don't know to this day how I did it;
He'd have slipped to his death, at the last,
But I caught his two feet in my hands, dear,
And held for his life safe and fast.

And that boy as he hung upside down there And groping about for his life, Calls up, "You've my fate in your hands

dear,
Let go if you'll not be my wife!"
Could I murder him? No, that I couldn't!
I gave him no answer at all.
I only held fast till he'd managed

To catch his two hands on the wall.

And, well, you might fancy the rest
If you could, but these days are so different.
And each thinks her own day the best.
There'll not be another like Talbot,
No matter the day or the year.

And your boy's nice, quiet, well mannered.

I hope you'll be happy, my dear!

Sandwich Islanders and Their Ills, When a Kanaka feels a bit out of sorts be imagines that he has not been diligent enough in his devotions to some particular god. He immediately procures a bunch of awa or something in the nature of a comforting drink, and after a short prayer to his mountain or river deity he murmurs apologetically, "Here's your food" or "Here's your drink," as the case may be. Then he devours the sol-ids or liquids himself. If the Kanaka's health improves, the god is appeased. If sickness still creeps over him, he turns to the Kahuna. One of the guild is immediately hunted up and approached with a bunch of awa or a pig. Then the Kanaka dilates upon his infirmities, and the Kahuna begins preparing to drive out the sickness or the evil spirit, The patient is stripped and laid flat, and with a bunch of ti leaves the Kahuna rubs him all over, murmuring meaningless words the while. If the Kanaka gets well, the Kahuna's influence is increased. If the Kanaka dies, he was a doomed man anyhow, and the Kahuna did his best. Such of the Kanakas as patronize a Kahuna nowadays do it covertly, and the Kahunas keep under cover .- Honolulu Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Astrology of the Day. Astrology seems to be gaining in pop ularity, and many are turning to it for pointers concerning the fate that is in store for them. Meteorologists are consulting the planets in relation to change in the weather, and scientists are seriously discussing the probability, or even possibility, of the larger planets exerting an influence on the earth sufficient to affect conditions of life or health.

Astronomers do not believe in astrology, but are willing to give the unique science credit for assisting to develop the science of astronomy. Long before there was an interest taken in astronomy there were many careful observers of the heavenly bodies. The names chosen by these men for stars and constellations remain unchanged, - Edgar Lee in Arena.

There is no more desolate place than the Sault Ste. Marie junction, and it was raining that afternoon. There is a dirty little station and the train dispatcher's house on one side of the main track. Opposite is a deserted log cabin. There is nothing else to be seen. In summer the commonest flowers shun the spot. The old man with the crape on his hat sat looking out at the box on the truck. A part of this decrease is due to the cessation of smuggling of distilled cent countries. But after reasonable de ductions on that score have been made it is estimated that the shrinkage in the ise of ardent spirits by the Swiss them selves is not less than 25 per cent. The decreased consumption is obviously due not only to the extinction of private stills, but to the fact that a higher price must be paid for the product of distil-leries. The joint effect of diminished consumption and of the greatly improved quality of the liquors sold is expected soon to show itself in the statistics of al-

We have said that the purpose of th Swiss legislature was not to abolish the use of distilled liquors, but gradually to supplant it by that of wine or beer. To that end, while the price of spirits was raised, that of fermented liquors was lowered by relieving them from certain excise duties. So far as wine is concerned no marked change took place in the volume of consumption between 1885 and 1890. This is attributed, however, to the remarkable decline of the home production in the period named, a decline which had to be made good by importation.

In the case of beer, on the other hand, the effect of the liquor monopoly on the habits of the Swiss people is unmistakable. The consumption of beer in Switzerland increased between 1885 and 1890 from 36 liters per capita to 45 liters, showing an advance of some 25 per cent. So far as the Swiss experiment has gone, it seems to show the possibility of supplanting to a considerable extent the us of ardent spirits by that of those ferthe guardboats even during peace ma mented liquors, such as beer, which contain relatively little alcohol. - New Churches as Places of Refuge In War. Our ancestors transacted a good deal of business of one kind or another in and about their churches. To begin with, the churches of old England in turbulent times were regarded as places of safe custody for public and private property. In the border land of England and Scotland the idea was carried out still more completely, and churches, or at least their towers, became regular fortresses and not infrequently were objects of ofadministration takes it under fixed confenses and defense. We may note in rural England that in the cases of ancient churches the towers are often not merely disproportionate in size to the rest of the church, but are carefully and strongly built, evidently with an object. Even in peaceful Surrey and Sussex the belfries are veritable strong rooms with barred windows and massive doors and often contain a massive treasure chest, Hither, at the first alarm, money and valuables were hurried, for beyond the security of thick walls and bars and bolts there was an ægis of sanctity which in a superstitious age protected the building from the most ruthless of foes. The fortresslike construction of many of the border land churches is an interesting study to antiquarians .- London Standard.

One marked difference between the very poor in the English cities and the corresponding class in American towns is that the latter buy their clothing of tailors and manufacturers, and therefore get it new, while the English poor, and particularly the English women of low estate, prefer the castoff finery of "the quality" that is sold at the secondhand shops. The result is that the American laborer and his wife make a better appearance in their cheap but simple and suitable garments than the London navy or hawker, with a shiny, ill fitting broadcloth, and his wife in a garish hat with broken feathers and unfashionable, not to say bedraggled with the best results, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a family medicine, comprehensive in its scope, has never been thrust upon public attention in the guise of a universal panacea for bodity ills. PLASTERS.

If you are thinking about buying a plas er, remember that you will place it upon your body and cannot get a plaster that will be too good for you.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER is the best plaster made. Your druggist may have some other plaster on his shelves which he is anxious to get rid of, or else some worth-less imitation purchased at a low price for the purpose of substitution. Do not accept his "just as good" plea; insist upon havany Silecter that fails in either point. There are two wars you can tell the Gennine Improved Fish Brand Silecter.
