WATER SUPPLY AT A COUNTRY HOME. county has a more complete water supply than that of Judge Meldrum. The tank, of several thousand gallons capacity, in the square tower of the windmill, supplies water at will not alone to either of several hydrants in the house or the *pacious yard, but also, at a distance of several hundred feet, in the carriage house, or at the feeding place or the watering trough in the barn. In order not to commit a sin of omis-sion, the judge has also had a sewer and a drain tile laid from the house to the Willamette river, thus rendering the sanitary arrangements no less complete than the water distribution.

Hoodlemism.—Recently a small boy was given control of the hose before Marr & Robertson's store, and he squirted water on Mr. Weismandel and a man with him. Subsequently, he bakery, about 120 feet from Seventh street, when an apple flew whizing by his face which apparently came from the front of the same store. Mr. Weismandel herewith announces that he will not submit to such hoodlumism, and that if the law cannot give him redress he will get a pocketful of rocks to assist him.
