Chairman Wilson of the Ways and Who Have Recome Engaged. After you have placed the engagement ring upon the hand of your flances it is a question whether you should continue to hower valuable gifts upon the young lady. Flowers as costly as you can afford them can be sent as often as your purse will per-mit, but parents should have a say as to the acceptance or refusal of jewelry by the young lady; and in this matter it is best to obey the father and mother, for you will soon have the young lady all to yourself, and it is barrely possible that you will your-self object as strenuously to the importuni-ties for jewels which will undoubtedly rome from your young wife. The programme for opening day has not yet been completed, but the cere-monies will be of a character to warrant the unbottling of all the enthus asm which San Francisco and the adjoining cities and towns have been get. ing up for this occasion. It took the business men of San Francisco a long while to wake up to the importance of this Exposition, but there is no longer any room for criticism on this score, and it is safe to say that when opening day shall arrive the city will be more gaily decorated and its inhabitants will turn out more universally than on any other occasion that has marked the history of California.

A feature of the Exposition which h now been fully developed is that which is to include the display of citrus fruit from different parts of the state. There are in the state two citrus fair associations-that of Southern California and that of the Northern citrus counties. Both these fairs will be held this year in connection with the Midwinter Exposition, and it will be interesting to Eastern people to know that these grand displays of oranges and lemons are made in the months of January and February. The management of the state citrus fair northern district has just announced its dates to be from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15, and that of Southern California will be on at the same time. In addition to these citrus displays Fresno county has completed arrange ments to crect a model of her court house to be constructed of oranges and raisins, so that Eastern visitors will see more wonderful displays of the golden fruit than has ever been made

How Tropical Fruits Are Protected.

It may have struck you that most trop-ical fruits have thick or hard or nauseous rinds, which need to be torn off before the monkeys or birds for whose use they are intended can get at them and eat them. intended can get at them and eat them. Our northern strawberries, raspherries, cur-rants and whortleberries, developed with a single eye to the pretty robins and finches of temperate clinics, can be popped into the mouth whole and eaten as they stand; they are meant for small birds to devour, and to disperse the tiny undigested, nutlike seeds in return for the bribe of the soft number that surrounds them. But it is only seeds in return for the brike of the soft pulp that surrounds them. But it is quite otherwise with oranges, shaddocks, ban-anas, plantains, mangoes and pineapples; those great tropical fruits can only be eaten properly with a knife and fork, after strip-ping off the hard and often acrid rind that guards and preserves them. They lay themselves out for dispersion by monkeys, toucans and other relatively large and powerful fruit eaters; and the

Thackeray as a Showma

In Thackeray's case the justification of artificial names, if it be right to speak of justification, lies in this, that with all the solid reality of. the life portrayed we are never allowed to lose sight of the author and his art in portraiture. He is ever at hand to underline the snobbery or laugh off the pathos. There is a strong strain of the satirist in him, and satire is akin to allegory; there is even a strain of the caricaturist ready to emerge in the midst of his noblest art. He is especially fond of putting on the airs and graces of the showman. His pref-ace to "Vanity Fair" is headed "Before ace to "vanity Fair" is headed "Before the Curtain," and this great novel of real life concludes with "Come, children, let us shut up the box and the puppets, for our play is played out." And we accept Thack-eray's showman's humor.—Blackwood's Magazine.

MARKETING FEATURES. Poultry raisers should always save the feathers, and in the shape that brings the highest prices. And dealers prefer to have the feathers from the goose, duck and hen picked dry. If they are scalded, dealers prefer to do their own dreasing, as in many cases it is not thoroughly done by the poultry-men and redressing is necessary. But always save them dry picked if possible. Scalded geese are worth from 5 to 10 cents per pound less than dry picked, ducks from 3 to 5 cents less, and chicken feathers are worth about half price. Turkey feathers are also quite valuable. RAISING CHICKENS BY LAMP HEAT. My experience has been so unusual in bringing through a nest of deserted eggs that I send it for the benefit of the many readers of Farm and Home, says Mrs. Conrow of Erie county, Pa. Having a ben setting on twelve eggs, she left her nest, and not wishing to lose the eggs, I took a common cylinder and put some soft material in the bottom, then put in the eggs and covered them with woolen cloth. The cylinder was then hung un-der the hanging lamp and a lighted lamp set under it on the table, pulling the sylinder down close and turning the hamp down so low as to get the required heat. After four days nine nice chickens rawled out, the other three eggs being infertile. In a few days another hem left eleven eggs, which were treated in the same way, and after two days a inne more chickens hatched out. The chick-ens are all doing nicely.
