-Mr. Risdon, who keeps a boarding house in this city, has a black deadhead named Jack among his customers of re-markable peculiarities. Tired and al-most starved to death he came last winter to Mr Risdon's house and mutely begged a portion of his ample store of provender. The kind-hearted landlord set before him a six-quart pan filled with food. Jack devoured it all, went to the pump and drank a quantity of water. and then stretched himself under a shed for a succee. This grand feast cap-tured Jack's heart for aye. Mr. Ris-den's efforts to get rid of him and his United Brethren Charch.—Rev. P. B. Williams, Pastor.
