very tall fibbing. In debate on February 15, 1878, Senator Thurman said that there was not, very much damage to the grain crop in his opinion, a single man in the senate, excepting a member of the committee, who had the slightest idea that the bill was "even a squint towards demonetization." Senators Allison, Voorbees and James G. Blaine uttered similar opinions in that debate. None of them, it they spoke the truth then,

Senator Howe and General Garfield before he became president, condemned the crime of 1873 in language equally forcible. Representative Bright of Tennessee said it was "a fraud that smells to heaven. It was a fraud that will stink in the nose of posterity." "It was a colossal swindle," said Mr. Rolman in a speech delivered in the house of representatives July 13, 1876. Other prominent statesmen who were mem bers of congress at the time the ill omened measure stole its way through both houses, were equally ignorant of the "colossal swindle." Even President Grant, who signed the bill, did not know that it demonetized silver.

dangerous to put clover hay in barns requires 60 pounds more power to draw over 20 feet high (to the square) on ac count of spontaneous combustion. As ordinarily stacked, and especially in the prairie country, the stack suffers first by the deposit of moisture on the LNGINEERING outside during the heating period, a damage which has been estimated by scientists at not less than 13 per cent. It suffers from insufficient raking, from leaning to one side or the other on account of unskillful building, from blowing off the tops during severe windstorms and from the waste that comes from handling these stacks in the winter, many farmers having from one to five stack bottoms covered with snow or wet with rain during the latter part of the winter season. The remedy for all this is the hay shed. Hay sheds can be built very cheap ly and of any size desired and located wherever it may be convenient. For th hay shed proper there is nothing needed but telegraph or native poles, or in default of these 6 by 6 timbers for sides and ends, and a roof which may be of boards or shingles. Authority for the foregoing tells in the Iowa Homestead that the most convenient width is 26 feet and roof one-third pitch. This will enable 16 foot boards to be used for roofing without waste of material. The shed can be made of any length desired. Where timbers are used, set posts in the ground and spike the timbers to the posts, so that in case the posts rot off they can be replaced with others. The hay carrier can be attached to this as it is to a barn and should extend from the end the usual length. The hay shed can very easily be converted into a feeding shed on three sides, preferably the north, west and south, leaving the east end open as a place at which to unload the hay. The sheds should not be less than 13 feet wide and 7 feet high at the rear; 8 would be better, thus allowing the wagon to be drivthe winter, thus protecting the manure from the waste unavoidable where it lies unused through the summer season. We have thus given the general outline of a plan which can be modified to suit circumstances of each farmer. A hay shed 26 by 40 will hold from 85 to 40 tons of hay, depending on the care with which it is filled.

Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me i must keep up the use of tobacco for the time being, at least. I tried the so-calted "Keeley-Cure." "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I secidently learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ugo to-day I consider myself completely cured: I am in perfect health, and the horribic craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.

Yours very truly, C. W. HORNICK.
