RECONSTRUCTION OF ELECTRIC LINE.

The Portland General Electric Co. has commenced the work of reconstructing its entire line between Portland and the generating station at Oregon City. The work, which will cost a large sum, will be done in sections, the worst places where there is most danger of damage from storms, etc., being attended to first. The work was started at Oswego and is progressing both up and down the river, the holes for poles through this section having to be blasted in solid rock. The setting of poles will be begun this week. The poles used will be 30 feet in height and 12 to 14 inches in diameter at the top. These large poles will carry more wire than the old ones, and are intended to be absolutely safe, as far as danger from wind storms, sleet, etc., is concerned. The old line has stood well, the only accident to it being caused by the great sleet storm last winter, when six poles in the Oswego section went down. The new line will be made as straight as possible, avoiding all unnecessary crooks and turns, and will follow the line of the new county road through Oswego. As fast as sections are rebuilt, the wires will be changed over to the new poles so as to avoid any interruption to business.

THE LOVEJOY SUIT.

Judge Stearns of Portland confirmed the report of Attorney W. D. Fenton, referee, before whom, upon a change of venue from Clackamas county, was tried the case of Amos L. Lovejoy, William R. Lovejoy, Elizabeth M. Gowdy, Nellie Lovejoy and Albert Hudson against the Willamette Falls Electric Company and the General Electric Company, filed May 20. The plaintiffs were represented by Attorneys George E. Chamberlain, Whalley, Strahan & Pipes, and the defendants by J. C. Moreland. The findings in the case are in favor of the defendants who are to recover costs from plaintiffs. Thus the suit for Abernethy island is settled in favor of the company.

Thus no one will say that Hog Hollow is a pretty name. Yet it designates a lovely valley embowered in fern-clad hills in which live some of the loveliest rural landscapes that ever fascinated the masculine eye. The melodious whistle of Cahill's mill is the town-clock of the Hog Hollowites or Hollowers.

Will Moore, the suit club fraud, has been having trouble. Last week he was arrested on complaint of one of the members of the club who had paid $40 or $7 and drew out but received no suit. On Tuesday his shop was closed for a rent bill of $9. He appeared before Justice Dixon on Wednesday at 10 a. m. for trial and asked until 1 p. m. to get dressed. During the meantime he disappeared. The 30 odd persons who drew suits and did not get them are in the "soup."
