The skates can be folded for traveling and can be easily carried under the arm or like a small grip.

Vegete ian Boots.

Vegetarian boots are now advertised; the uppers are made of "pannus corium," the soles of closely waterproofed flax belting. To show that the skins of slaughtered animals are not necessary the vegetarians say that "India rubber, gutta percha, steel and iron and brass nails, and brass caps, cashmere and cotton, elastic and webbing, wool and list, cork and straw, silk and jute, and even brown paper and wax go to form the modern mystery which still carries the old name of boot or shoe."-London

A Slander.

A clever woman, in the New Orleans Picayune, says that it has been whispered to her that there will be a room in the Woman's building, at the Atlanta fair, where any of the sex so minded may steal away and smoke cigarettes, and she follows up the story with a talk against the evils of the weed for the feminine gender.

That such a story should exist at all is probably due to the ingenious brain of some newspaper space writer, and it has never occurred to the women interested in the Woman's building that there were women who might be addicted to the noxious weed. From the very inception of the enterprise the general trend of ideas for every department has been to make it thoroughly refined and womanly, and indeed the mere suggestion of eigarette smoking among women would horrify most of the members of the board beyond expression.

Distinguished German Who Piercely Attacked Emperor William. Ferdinand August Bebel, whose

flerce attack in the German Parliament upon Emperor William II. on the occasion of the debate relating to the curtailment of the right of free assemblage has caused so much commotion in Ger-many, shares the leadership of the Socialist-Democratic party in that country with Herr Llebknecht. Bebel is in every sense a self-made man. He was born Feb. 22, 1840, in Cologne, and received his early education in a village school near that city. Later on he attended a grammar school in Wetzlar, and in 1860 he removed to Leipsic, where he established his own business, that of wood-turner and carver, in 1864. Two years prior to that date be had joined in the workingmen's movement in Germany, and soon became one of the most aggressive leaders in that cause. From 1865 to 1890, when he removed to Berlin, Bebel was president of the Workingmen's Educational Club in Lelpsic and member of the perma-

PERDINAND AUGUST BEREL nent Executive Committee of the German Workingmen's Association. In he became identified with the editorial management of the Volkstant, a socialistic paper in Leipsic, and continued this connection until he became one of the managers of the Vorwaerts, the leading German socialistic daily published in Berlin. He was elected to the North German Parliament in 1867 and to the German Parliament in 1871. In the election of June, 1893, he was even elected in two districts, choosing the mandate from the Strasburg district. From the beginning of Bebel's Parliamentary career dates his uncompromising attitude against all monarchical institutions. Bebel is at present treasurer of the Socialistic party in Germany, to which office he was elected in 1892. During the reorganization of the party, in 1890, Bebel advocated parliamentariantsm as the chief means of agitation, but in this he was opposed by the extremists of the party. He served as a delegate to the international socialist congresses in Paris, 1889; Brussels, 1891; Zurich, 1803, and Breslau during the present year. On the latter occasion he made his famous speech, in which he said that socialism would crush imperialism, for which he has just been sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

Intelligence of the Beetle. Last week I came home one night, and by accident opened the pantry. I was surprised at finding at least a hundred big beetles scampering across the floor to escape into their lair. I saw that they all disappeared down a circular hole in one corner of the closet. Next night I sallied forth on a tour of extermination. I prepared a wooden plug to stop up the hole and a flat cudgel with which to annihilate the critters. I approached the pantry with a lighted candle, opened the door suddenly, and before the roaches fully realized my presence I had their escape completely blocked. It was a sight worth seeing. Some of them were in were in the center of the pantry playing "ring around rosy." When they saw the light they suddenly interrupted their sports and made a bee line for home. Astonishment was written on every lineament of their black bodies when they saw their escape cut off. I set the candle on the floor and belaborset the candle on the floor and belabored them right and left with my weapon. Soon I had the floor strewn with corpses. All at once my light went out. A venerable looking, patriarchal sort of cockroach, realizing that the salvation of his family and relatives lay in darkness, had climbed up the candle and thrown himself across the flame. Like Arnold Winkelried, he died in a trice, but before I could strike a match the last of the still living bugs had found some secret means of exit and had disappeared. That's what I call intelligence. I have that hero's body embalmed in my collection, and since that adventure I have the greatest respect for roaches. When I want to exterminate them now I treat them royally to 10 cents' worth of poison.-Houston Post.

The Southern Aurora

On Feb. 1, in latitude 66 degrees, longitude 172 degrees 31 minutes, we ran into open water again, having this time spent only six days in the ice pack. On the 17th the aurora appeared, stronger than I ever saw it in the north. It rose from the southwest, stretching in a broad stream up toward the zenith and down again toward the eastern horizon. The phenomenon this time had quite a different appearance from what we saw on Oct. 20. It now presented long shining curtains rising and falling in wonderful shapes and shades, sometimes seemingly close down to our mastheads. It evidently exerted considerable influence upon the magnetic needle of our compass.—C. E. Borchgrevink in

A HUGE UNDERTAKING.

Great Idea of the American Museum of Natural History.

The trustees of the American Museum of Natural History in New York have decided to establish an anthropological exhibit, which will be one of the finest in the world. They propose to have groups of figures illustrating the industries, mode of life and characteristics of every important race on the globe,

This undertaking will require many years to complete, but the first group will be in place within two or three weeks. For some time past attaches of the museum have been out west taking photographs and getting measurements of the various tribes of Indians in North America and on the north Pacific coast. Plaster casts have been taken of the faces, hands and feet of typical members of the tribes, and, together with the measurements and photographs, for-warded to New York. These data will enable the modelers to construct life size plaster figures, clothed in native

Little Nick's Surprise

The diplomatic representation of Nicaragua to the United States has been discontinued for the first time in many years, and as a measure of economy no legation will be maintained at Washington. This action is a matter of surprise to officials, owing to the importance of some of the questions, notably the canal, in which the United States and Nicaragua are mutually interested. Dr. Guzman has presented his letters of recall to the state department and has entered upon the practice of medi-cine at his home, which was formerly the Nicaraguan legation.

One Drawback.

There's no such thing in this life as complete satisfaction. If a man has no money, he is miserable, and if he has lots of it, it is next to impossible to invest it remuneratively. There is no business which is sure to pay, not even the business of stealing, but that's because there are so many persons in it, and there would be many more in it if the penitentiary did not prevent it from being open to everybody, and so be utterly ruined. -Boston Transcript.

Dead Hand In Evidence.

The hand of a dead man, from which two fingers are missing, will be introduced as evidence in the case of Mrs. Fannie Linsley against the Central Medical college of Missouri in a damage suit for $75,000.

Linsley's body was stolen from Ashland cemetery several months ago and dissected in a medical college. The remains were then thrown into a box and buried in the potter's field, where they were found and identified by the crippled hand from which two fingers had been cut during Linsley's lifetime.

THE WORST OF IT.

If the best of life, as it is said to be, is If the best of life, as it is said to be, is but anticipation, the worst of it is surely worry and vexation. They are the plows and harrows that furrow the brow and cut deeply into the nerves. It is constant plowing of this kind that tears up the nerve tissues. The greater nerves, like the bigger roots, may resist for a time, but the ploughshare gets down to them. Worry brings all sorts of other aliments of a torn-up system and at last the sciatic nerve is reached, a disturbance to which in the form of sciatica is retended by excruciating pains. St. Jacobs of has cured the worst cases of men crippled by it. Use it and make sure of a prompt and permanent cure.
