These good resolutions are generally made while the effect of the use of tobacco practically paralyzes the crav-ings of millions of irritated nerve centers and just as soon as the effects commence to pass away these good resolutions weaken, showing conclusively that the use of tobacco is not a habit but a disease of the nervous system caused by the eduof the nervous system caused by the edu-cation of the nerves to crave for the nicoof the nervous system (aused by the edu-cation of the nerves to crave for the nico-tine poisoning. What then is the easy, permanent, natural way to relieve your-self of the use of tobacco? Certainly not by discontinuing it and suffering the nervous reaction and piostrating effects and mental degeneracy sure to tollow the long and continued use of tobacco. Does it not suggest itself to you that the natural thing to do is to take a remedy that is specifically prepared to eradicate the ef-fects of the meotine in the system and to overcome the nerve craving effects and re-store the tobacco irritated nerves to a nor-mal and healthy condition? To the, we all say, "Yes, where is the remedy ?" You will find it in No-To-Bac. This is easily said and we all naturally ask for proof. Certainly. If No-To-Bac fails to cure. BONAPARTE'S OPPORTUNITY.

How He Took Advantage of the Overthrow of the Constitution.

All night long, from the 16 to 17 Brumaire, a committee of the Ancients was in session, minutely perfecting their plans. Next morning at 7 the faithful majority, having been summoned according to form, convened as the council, for the doubtful members had either not been summoned at all or had received notice of a later hour. As soon us a quorum was present, Cornet, a well known butt for the wits, rose and denonnced the terrible conspiracy which was menacing them. Regnier then moved that, according to articles 102, 103 and 104 of the constitution, both branches of the legislature should meet next day at noon, and not before, in the palace of St. Cloud; that General Bonaparte should be intrusted with the execution of their decree, and that to that end he be appointed commander of the 500 have been subscribed by Chas. G. Paris garrison, of their own special guard and of the National guard; that he therefore appear and take the oath, and that these resolutions be duly communicated to the directory, to the five hundred, and also to the public by ated in San Bernardino county and produces a salt of superior quality, printed proclamation. The motion was carried unanimously. During these proceedings all the generals present in Paris except Jourdan and Augerean, who had not been invited, but including the stanch republican Lefebre, commander of the garrison, had gathered in and before Bonaparte's house. They had been requested to come in uniform in order to arrange for a re-view. It was noticed that Bernadotte, though present, was not in uniform. He had so far yielded to the blandishments of his brother-in-law as to come, but declared that he would obey only what was at that moment the chief authority in the state. Lefebre was in uniform, but having met on the way bodies of troops moving without his orders, and not being initiated, he was naturally startled. But Bonaparte knew his man.

"Would you, a supporter of the republic, leave it to perish in the hands of these lawyers?" was his greeting. 'See, here is the sword I carried at the Pyramids. I give it to you as a mark of my esteem and confidence."

'Let us throw the lawyers into the river," came the expected answer.

A few moments later arrived the an thoritative summons from the Ancients. Bonaparte stepped out on the porch and read their proceedings aloud. By a united impulse the officers flourished their swords in response. It was but an instant before they were mounted, and with Bonaparte in front the cavalcade, headed by men either already famons or destined to become so-Macdonald, Serurier, Murat, Lannes, Andreossy, Berthier and Lefebre-proceeded to the conncil chamber. It needed but a hasty glance, as they passed through the city, to see that preconcerted orders had already been carefully executed. The Dress Made of Cigar Ribbons.

Mme. Ida Lane Ney of Vienna has discovered a new use for cigar ribbons. For the past five years she has collected the narrow, yellow bits of silk used in tying cigars together, and to each of these she has "joined" a strip of black dress silk of equal length and Review width. Lately she found that the piece of goods was large enough to make a dress, and acted accordingly. There are 3,000 cigar ribbous in the dress.

Khabarofka is a wretched looking litle place, about a quarter the size of Vladivostok, although it is the capital of eastern Siberia and the residence of the governor general. It lies about 49 degrees latitude north, or 6 degrees north of Vladivostok. In the public garden is a bluff commanding a birdseye view of the river, beach and steamers. Here is a monument, in bronze, to Governor General Adjutant General Nikolai Nikolais vitch Muravief, who took part In two exploring expeditions - 1854, 1855-and gained the title "Amurski" for his services in the acquisition of this Amur region to Russia. The chief street in Khabarofka is called, after him, Muravief-Amurski. On the statne's pedestal are engraved the names of himself, his wife, about 26 military officers and seven scientific men, who 'shared in the toils and daugers of his expeditions." Near the statue is a band stand, where a military band plays on Sunday evenings, and a little temple of the Blessed Virgin, the Bogoroditza, with painted pictures inside the walls. Further on is a pretty little wood, left for shade. Behind is the governor's house, a fine brick building, with sentries pacing before it. Past the wood a steep parts leads to the bathing place, where one has the choice of wading in from the stony beach or diving from a niche or socket prepared for it. regular bathing house at the end of a

How Mrs. Carlisle Keeps Cool.

Mrs. Carlisle's prescription for enduring the heat is first of all not to worry or fret. Do all your work early in the day and try to find some light employment, either physical or mental, to keep your thoughts from the thermometer and how "awfully hot it is."

The wife of the secretary enjoys her home to the utmost. She has the house rid of many of the heavier hangings and thicker rugs as soon as the weather becomes oppressive. The large, airy rooms are clad as far as possible in cool summer attire, and the intense heat of the midday is shut out .-- Washington Letter.

Her Heart Upon Her Sleeve.

The up to date girl, says the New York Sun, wears her heart upon her sleeve. It's a gold or silver heart, to be sure, and it dangles about her neck from a long, slender chain, but it is of locket pattern, and within it are a likeess and the lock of hair-presumably of her sweetheart. The hearts are about an inch and a half long and appear in all grades of expensiveness. Sometimes they are of richly chased gold set with precious stones, but again they are simply of frosted silver. They are known as "Trilby hearts."

ren in arms I will arrest them. Let no man look for precedents in the past. Nothing in history is comparable to the end of the eighteenth century, nothing to the present moment. Your wisdom passed this motion; our arms will execute it. We desire a republic founded in true liberty, in civil liberty, in popular representation. We are going to have it. I swear it in my own name and in that of my brethren in arms!" "We swear it !" was the antiphonal response of the assembled generals. Some one indiscreetly suggested that Bonaparte had sworn, but not the oath of allegiance to the constitution required by their previous action, but the president hurriedly declared all further proceedings out of order, the assembly having adjourned by its own act.-Professor W. M. Sloane's "Life of Napoleon" in Century.

The Fly's Mouth.

The fiv's month is really nothing more nor less than a tongue which, at the proper time, runs in and out of a hole in the fly's head, like the tongue of a snake. Even this latter effect may be proved to be a delusion if you are careful in examining a fly while in the act of eating, for it is then that it may be seen that the combination month and tongue is simply a tiny black, threadlike proboscis which unfolds from be neath the head, where there is a little

When this combination tongue and dilapidated wooden pier.-Fortnightly mouth is unfolded ready for business, it spreads out, dividing into two flat leaves, which are planted smoothly and evenly over the surface from which the little insect hopes to extract a meal. Should the surface prove dry or unyielding, the fly is equal to the emergency, and by a muscular feat he immediately changes his smooth, soft, leaffike tongue into a rasp which works with lightning rapidity over the lump of sugar or other substance, the particles thus dislodged being quickly sucked into the stomach. In case the meal is a liquid one the mouth and tongue combine to make an excellent pump for transferring the food to the place where it will do the most good .- St. Louis Republic.

The Pogonip.

The following explanation is given of the remarkable condition expressed by the word pogonip: "This is said to be a name given by the mountaineers of Nevada to a sort of frozen fog that appears sometimes in winter, even on the clearst and brightest days. In an instant the ur is filled with floating needles of ice. To breathe the pogonip is death to the upgs. When it comes, Indians as well is whites rush for shelter. It appears to se caused by the sudden freezing in the ir of the moisture which collects about he summits of the high peaks."-New fork Ledger.

tion, and the time between coming and going is so brief and guests arrive so nearly at the same time that the hostess is on duty a much shorter time than when receiving under the house roof. Light refreshments only are servedices, cakes, punches or lemonade, cafe au lait and the like. Salads and froids are oftener than not excluded from the menu. The host is expected to be in evidence, his absence being less excusa ble at the garden party than at the indoor "at home."
