A HOME INSTITUTION.

The second annual statement of Wil lamette Savings and Loan Association appears in another part of to-day issue of the Courter. The members of the Association who have had the manage ment of its affairs during the past twelve months may well feel elated that they can present so favorable a report to the other members. It is only nineteen months since the Association commenced business and the total income has been from residents of Oregon City. The loans aggregate $3.350, mostly in small sums, no one exceeding $500, and has been the means to erect nine new residences in and around Oregon City. The total shares in force 295, have been only included in this statement, 230 in first series and 65 in second series. Since the statement was made, a third series has been issued with 130 shares. This makes 425, the total number of shares in force out of the original capital stock of $50,000. At last annual meeting the stockhoiders directed the board of directors to take steps to increase the capital to 1000 shares or $100,000, and the rapid manner that shares have been taken the last two months predicts that at the next annual meeting the stockholders will find it necessary to still further increase the capital stock. It is highly gratifying to be able to see so The aim of the association is mutual the following offices, to be voted for at ly one or more dollars put their savings in a common fund and the aggregate each

Usual Party Tactics Adverse to Purify.

It is one thing to be merely a repre sentative party with all the political f notions which are apparent at the present time, and another thing to be a party of purity, moved and actuated by a spirit of patriotism, with the fullest determination to turn away all the corrupting influences of time, while bristling with vital importance and battling against the political parasites that would want to sink the honest impulses of the truly American people, with naught but selfish interests at stake, to gratify individual wants and desires.

A party to long suc a d with so many disturbing elements, must give strength to their organization by crowding to the front men of ability, honesty, morality, justice, humanity and trusty fellowship, with a power in them to govern the people in conformity with municipal, state and national law, showing that statesmen like magnanimity, which has made some of the best men so famous in times past. The shivering imagination of a lost body and soul, weighed down by corrupting influences, being stung by evil temptations, must brace up with more commendable characteristeis that all political filibustering may have a more solid tooting on which to build, not only our hopes and wishes, but our fortunes and cur favors. The perpetuation of this government does not therefore hang upon the thread of ignorance, misplaced confidence or the tangling snare of selfishness, but tendons of steel tempered to fit the masses.

members who desire to build a home Every political servant or aspirant can have their loans from this common needs to show his strength by his ability and well known honesty, must act in harmony with American ideas, be consistant in principle, sound in measmembers thrifty. The monthly call on ures, ennobling, with a purifying presthem for a small deposit makes them idence, careful and straight in conmore economical and the money thus duct, practical in propositions and declarations enunciated and made plain tor creasing and will in the end make quite the country's good.

How many political servants are there at the present time that can pass muster under the ban of the foregoing propositions? The public is only too ready to answer the question, as they see the light of former years of prosperity growing dun over their principalities and gradually tading from the loss of the more buoyant old time spirit of seventy-
