OREGON CITY, JUNE 26, 1896.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

The money question is extremely simple. It ought to be impossible to divide a nation on an issue so elementary. Wealth is anything that we possess in exchange for which we can secure any other valuable thing. Wealth includes capital facilitating exchange. The volume of money used is less important than the quality. At least 90 per cent. of the business is transacted, not by the use of money, but of the representatives of money, credit. It is ten times as important that the money of a state shall be of a fixed value—measuring quality, than that it should be of a fixed quantity. Whenever we really need money the rate of interest rises. Then the money of the world flows our way as naturally as water flows down hill. But if you strike down credit you strike down the very foundation of business. And any legislation which tends to effect the future value of money must injure credit. The use of more money than the country needs is far worse than the use of less. The Argentine Republic has about $100 per capita circulation. Will anybody contend that Argentina is a prosperous commercial country? It is the same with France, with her $40 per capita circulation. Great Britain's per capita is less than three-fourths the amount of ours, but Great Britain does a per capita business twice as large as ours. And it would be a hard job to convince the Yankee business men that they are only half as capable as the business men of England. England has less gold than we have. She has not increased her circulation a particle, while her business has increased five hundred per cent. (We have increased ours considerably since 1873. Moreover, interest on investments in England tends to decrease; the average current rate there is two and one-half per cent per annum.) Let us look at the time when we had plenty of money, the closing of the Revolutionary war, for instance, when it took $100 to buy a bushel of corn. It was the same at the close of the Rebellion, in the South, at least. It took about $1,000 of their money to buy a sweet potato. Take the blessed times we call the greenback times. We are told that everybody got rich at the beginning of the war. Let us see if that is so; let us see the effect of this paper inflation. Paper money is much better than the other, at that. Inflation is always in favor of the capitalist and against the interests of the laboring man. The man above all others who is in favor of an honest dollar is the man who has to give sweat in exchange for it.

A good deal of attention has been paid by the H.-use Committee on Post Offices to the question of one cent postage, and although this reform is not in sight this year it is understood that a favorable report will be made on a bill to enable business men to send out circulars, or letters, or postal cards with return envelopes on which prepayment of postage shall not be compulsory, but may be collected from the firm sending out the original letter, circular or card. The device by which this is to be regulated is simple, yet effective. The investigation undertaken by the post-office department precedent to its recommendation of the measure satisfied it that this innovation would result in an enormous increase in the sending out of "return" letters and circulars because the loss of postage to the business man from careless or unscrupulous correspondents who now use the stamped envelopes for other purposes would be entirely obviated.

It seems after all that the populist vote in Oregon has not increased. Taking as a basis the Weaver vote in 1892 which was 26,955 and comparing it with the vote for Gaston for supreme judge in 1896, there is a loss of 1,010. Gaston's vote is 25,955. By similar comparisons the republican vote of the state has increased 5,000 and the democratic vote 4,000. In ten counties, Baker, Clackamas, Clatsop, Grant, Harney, Malheur, Tillamook, Wallowa, Washington and Yamhill there was an aggregate populist gain of 1,063, while every other county shows a falling off.

The Herald and Courier, the true Simon pure anti-monopoly papers of Clackamas county, have had their vision so obscured that they have been totally unable to see the formation of the biggest monopoly in the leasing of the Clackamas river ever attempted to be organized in this county. These papers should be consistent even though their resources might be curtailed—Enterprise. The Enterprise is sore because we do not spell Simon with a capital S as it and the other monopolist papers do. We can't see wherein the boom company mentioned in any more of a monopolist that Mr. Cross, who has practically had control of the river for years. The paper also feels bad and mad because it can no longer keep its arm in the county's "sack." We are glad that the Enterprise has recognized the fact that we do not belong to its "Simon pure" gang.

MANY are the old settlers that have not kept up with the procession. So numerous are the farms of our pioneers that are hopelessly encumbered with mortgages that any one of them who is now in the exclusive possession of the broad, fertile acres that once were the joy and pride of his life, has become almost an exception. The "flush" times of the fifties and the sixties made them "too free." We find pioneers not alone in Clackamas county but in others of the earliest sections of the state, that from affluence have come down to pauperism. In very many instances, perhaps in the majority, the "plaster" could have been avoided by close economy and no loafing and by the determination not to borrow. Thus even prosperity brings a train of evils. But whether rich or poor now, the early pioneers of Oregon were heroes.

PRESIDENT CHEVELAND has named his vapor launch "Three Sisters." Oregon is thus again honored and it is in order for Gov. Lord and some of the other boys seeking notoriety to get up a subscription and present the president with a silver service, or what would suit him better a gold service—Albany Democrat.

The new officials of Clackamas county will assume the duties of their offices on Monday. The county court on Monday approved the bonds of all the county officers elect, except that of the recorder, Alfred Luelling, which was not presented. In view of the increasingly large amount of money handled by the treasurer, the bond required of him was raised from $30,000 to $50,000, and the new officer was given another week to provide sureties for the additional amount.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST.—The Y. M. C. A. membership contest closed Friday evening with appropriate exercises and refreshments at the Baptist church. The "reds" won with a score of 149 to 147. The "yellows" secured 132 members and the "reds" 108, but according to the rules of the contest each quarterly payment of dues in advance counted same a new member, i. e., if a member paid a full year's dues it counted four, while if he paid but one quarter it counted but one. The total membership of the Y. M. C. A. is now 375, which is a very good showing for a city of this size.

The steamer, Harvest Queen, will leave the foot of 8th street, at the O. C. T. Co's dock, at 7:30 A. M. sharp, for the cascades of the Columbia. Now don't come tearing through town at 7:45 o'clock—just in time to see the boat going around the bend—and then abuse the management for your tardiness. If you can't wake up and haven't an alarm, get a neighbor to come over and pound on the side of the house with a rail till you are awake. At all events don't be later than 7:30 o'clock. We can't keep five or six hundred people waiting on two or three who are habitually behind hand. Secure tickets at postoffice store till Friday evening. Tickets on sale Saturday morning at the boat.

LOVETT-CHARMAN.

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Charman on Wednesday July 1, the contracting parties being their daughter, Mary Jane, and James Paul Lovett. The beautiful marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church was performed by the Right Rev. B. Wistar Morris, assisted by Rev. R. Mercer. Promptly at four o'clock, Miss Allen of Portland took her place at the piano and as the strains of Lohengrin's "Wedding March" was heard Master Norwood Charman threw open the parlor doors and the bridal procession entered Mrs. Charman, the brides mother, entered on the arm of her son, Mr. Fred R. Charman, then the groom with his best man, F. T. Griffith, from the east door and took his place at the chancel rail. Then from the west door entered the bridal procession, little Louise Walker, niece of the bride, carrying flowers, followed by little Harriet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, and Master Earl Walker, nephew of the bride, each bearing a white satin cushion which they deposited in front of the chancel. Then came the maid of honor, Miss Lambert, who looked very pretty in figured organdie over yellow silk, and carried large bouquet Marchenli roses tied with yellow ribbons, followed by the bride on the arm of her father. The bride was a picture of loveliness gowned in white organdie over white silk, with silk tulle veil held in place by stephanotis and carried a large bouquet of white carnations. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lovett received the congratulations of all present, together with many telegrams—greetings from absent friends, after which the guests repaired to the spacious dining room, and partook of an elegant repast. The wedding cake was distributed to all the guests and the bride's cake to all the young ladies present, as it contained the coveted ring. The recipient of the same is supposed to be the next bride. Miss Nellie Lambert of Portland was the happy possessor. After refreshments as the bride ascended the stairs to don her traveling dress, she threw her bouquet in the midst of a bevy of young ladies in the hall, which was caught by Miss Angalls of Portland. After exchanging goodbyes and God speed, the young couple departed for a wedding tour to Alaska, mid a shower of rice, shoes and good wishes. The toilets worn by the ladies were handsome, some appearing in evening dress, with the elaborated decorated home, had a charming effect.

The entire house was darkened and electric lights turned on. The hall was decorated with ivy and red roses and stair rail was entwined with same. The two parlors were in white and cream roses and maiden-hair ferns, the ceiling being festooned from the center of parlors with smilax and ivy. From the electroliers suspended immense bouquets of white and cream roses. Every nook and corner being banked with roses. Where the marriage ceremony was performed an improvised altar had been arranged in the bay window. The chancel was made of cedar intertwined with ropes of small white flowers. A curtain of cedar and roses forming a Dresden effect was draped for a background, from the center of which was suspended a cupid bearing a wreath of carnations, the brides favorite flower. The sitting room was in sweet peas and maiden-hair ferns. The dining room was in pink, La France roses being conspicuous. The table was a piece of artistic work. Streamers of pink ribbon were suspended from the electroliers to the four corners of the table fastened with La France roses and festoons of smilax. In the center of the table was an immense cut glass punch bowl (a present from the gentlemen friends of the groom) filled with beautiful La France roses. The shades of the electroliers were decorated with pink sweet peas. Ferns and roses were banked in every conceivable spot. Scattered La France roses on the curtains gave them the Dresden effect. Miss Morey and Miss Robb of Baker City presided at tea and coffee table. Their assistants were Miss Etta Pope, Miss Lou Cochran, Miss Clara Fisher of Corvallis and Miss Lucy Lambert of Portland. The presents were elegant and numerous. No cards.

Miss Charman is one of Oregon City's favorite daughters and Mr. Lovett a genial, enterprising business man, and each have numerous friends who wish them prosperity on their journey through life.

National Matte Smelter.
A practical and simple method of smelting sulphide ores, such as nickel, copper, gold and silver ores. In localities where lead ores and fuels are scarce and almost unobtainable, our pyritic, water jacketed Matte Smelter has been recognized with highly satisfactory result, and has been thoroughly tested on various pyritic, sulphide and arsenide ores, in capacity of 2 to 50 per day. It is the most practical, cheapest and simplest method of gold and silver ore smelting and concentrating that is known to-day. It requires no extraordinary skill, no lead ores, no fluxing material, and no fuel of any kind for the smelter after it is started. The sulphur in the ore is its natural fuel only, and its cost has no comparison with any other process of concentrating.
We are prepared to furnish any size or capacity plant complete to substantial mining people set it up and furnish our men to run it for them on easy payments. Prices and specifications furnished with references and testimonials on application.
