WILL FOSTER TRUSTS.

Representative Benton McMillin of Tennessee, among the ablest opponents of the Dingley tariff, declares steadfast adherence to these propositions as advanced by him:

"There is now in the treasury $218,000,000 surplus, or $118,000,000 in excess of all outstanding obligations and the hundred-million gold reserve. This is more than enough to meet all estimated deficiencies prior to June, 1899. There is no way to get this money back into circulation except this, unless we do it by buying our bonds at a premium. With a revival of business it will be found that no general increase of tariff taxes is required. Then why all this mad rush to increase taxes?"

"All admit that the McKinley bill was beyond all reason as a measure of taxation. I have gone through this bill, section by section, so far as possible. I have made calculations as to what the rates of taxation by the bill are, and what the effect will be. The McKinley bill was tame and moderate in rates when compared to this. This bill not only imposes the McKinley-bill rates, but increases them, adding 16.67 per cent in addition to the McKinley rates. The taxes are not imposed on luxuries. Much the largest per cent of the aggregate, as I calculate, is upon the necessities of life.

"Not only have the gentlemen increased the burden of taxation, but in doing so they have taken good care of the corporations and trusts which now control the sugar market. Notwithstanding the fact that sugar manufacturing can be done in this country as cheaply as anywhere in the world; notwithstanding the manufacture is in the hands of the most gigantic trust organized in this or any other county; they give such a margin to the trust in the way of difference between the tax placed on raw and refined sugar that they not only perpetuate its existence and power, but continue its enormous profits and dividends. The hearing show that the sugar schedule of the bill was framed in New York and furnished to the committee.

"Another of the many unwise and oppressive bits of taxation carried by this bill is that whereby the duty on tin plate is increased.

"The duty of $4 a ton on pig iron is retained in this bill, notwithstanding the fact that we are becoming heavy shippers of pig iron to other countries. The duty on pig iron could be reduced without hardship to anybody. We are now making pig iron in the southern states cheaper than it is made anywhere else in the world.

"Another objection which may be urged against this bill is that, by reason of its cutting us off from foreign competition through insurmountable duties, it is the best shield and protection on trusts and combines that was ever constructed.

"Already these organizations in restraint of trade, to limit production and put up prices, flourish to a degree in our midst that is alarming. This bill not only makes it possible to create others, but increase the duty on articles manufactured by concerns that are banded together as trusts and defy all anti-trust laws and increase the cost to the citizens. This is the reason why I denominated it, and correctly, at the beginning of the debate, as a hotbed and summer-house for the propagation of trusts.

"It is not claimed that every trust in the world would be dissolved by the mere act of enlarging the free list. It would still be possible to organize trusts, but many times more difficult. But by constructing walls around our shores and excluding the markets of the balance of the world we vastly facilitate the organization, operation and perpetuation of trusts. No sane man can deny this proposition. It is reasonable even if we had no experience. And our experience would teach us that this is so even without reason.

"What is to become of this country if these combinations are permitted to go on, protected by our tariff laws and defying our state laws? Already many of them defy state laws, and none of them, so far as I know, concede the authority of the general government to control them."

Is 1840, the expenses of the national government were, per capita, $1.39, and they continued to increase slowly until in 1869 they were $1.91 per capita. The civil war opened the door to dishonesty and extravagance. In 1870 the ratio had jumped to $4.26, and last year it was $7.26. The government at Washington has become a leech that sucks the life-blood out of the masses for the benefit of the pampered few.

As in the former fights for a class tariff the claim is made that the burden of the restored McKinley rates will fall upon the luxuries of the rich, tobacco, liquors, silks and laces. This statement is accepted as being truthful by the followers of the protection theory. They do not stop to inquire into it. They do not think for themselves. On March 15th a summary made of the schedules of the new bill was given to the public press by Mr. Dingley, the author of the bill. "From sugar," he says, "we estimate $20,000,000 additional revenue." "We place the increased revenue from wool at $11,000,000. Anticipating that the imports of woollens will fall of nearly 50 per cent from the enormous imports of 1895, we estimate the increased revenue from this source under the proposed rates at $14,000,000."

This is an increase of $35,000,000 on wool and woollens admitted by Mr. Dingley. The table which he published in this connection showed that his taxes on wool and woollens, on the basis of last year's importations, would be $44,500,000 as against only $1,500,000 on silks, $1,800,000 on liquors and $7,600,000 on tobacco.

As usual the analysis of the bill and the statements made by the hirelings do not agree. If sugar and clothing are luxuries of the rich, the rich will pay the tax; but if they are not the common people will be fined $64,000,000 more next year for eating sugar and wearing clothes than they were last year while the rich will be fined $10,000,000 more next year for wearing silks, drinking liquor and smoking tobacco than they were last year.

In other words, for every dollar of increase on silks, liquors and tobacco combined the new bill has made an increase of over $8 on wool, woolen goods and sugar. It is the rankest specimen of class legislation ever enacted. It is absurd. It is a farce to the thinker, a decoy to the fool—Telephone-Register.

The majority vote of Chicago Tuesday is as follows: Carter H. Harrison, democrat, 144,828; J. M. Harlan, independent, 67,972; N. C. Sears, republican, 57,506; W. Hesing, business men's, 15,116. Total, 287,434. Harrison's plurality, 77,736; Harrison's majority over all, 2222. Complete returns show the election of 23 democratic aldermen, six republicans and five independents. The democrats will have a majority of eight over all in the next council.

The legislature of California was smirched by the bribery of a dozen members to pass a so-called disguised in the "coyote bill." Money was freely used to corrupt members of the Idaho legislature. The late Oregon legislature therefore stands not alone in its grandeur of Satanic cunningness.

The municipal election in Ohio and Michigan on Monday show remarkable democratic gains, they electing the majority of mayors in the states named. In Michigan where McKinley received 78000 majority the republican candidate for supreme justice received a plurality of but 29,000.

"Prosperity," says the Nashville American, "is to be restored by hauling money out of the pockets of the many to place it in the pockets of the few whose pockets are already full."

Every official elected at the city election at Woodburn on Monday was a free silver man.

"Cures talk" in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as for no other medicine. Its great cures recorded in truthful, convincing language of grateful men and women, constitute its most effective advertising. Many of these cures are marvelous. They have won the confidence of the people; have given Hood's Sarsaparilla the largest sales in the world, and have made necessary for its manufacture the greatest laboratory on earth. Hood's Sarsaparilla is known by the cures it has made—cures of scrofula, salt rheum and eczema, cures of rheumatism, neuralgia and weak nerves, cures of dyspepsia, liver troubles, catarrh—cures which prove
