WHAT'S THE HURRY?

So far as we know, but very few riders of bicycles are killed or injured by riding too slow. A good many meet with misfortune by riding too fast.

The public isn't afraid of the slow-riding cyclist. It's the get-there-Eli! whizzer that gives the public the bicycle face of tear and awful uncertainty. It's the "Hi-there! Get-out-of-the-way !"

face of fear and awful uncertainty. It's the "Hi-there! Get-out-of-the-way!" scorcher who maims and murders. Is there any excuse for allowing him to exist? Why is he in such a hurry? Is he going for the doctor or to ring in a fire alarm? Well, he may be, but the chances are he isn't. Then why does he rite so swiftly? We do not know. We presume he thinks he is enjoying him-self. He measures his pleasure by the number of feet he travels a second. He doesn't have time to look at hills or valleys or sunsets or moonrises. He is valleys or sunsets or moonrises. He is watching his cyclometer. He is a part Class Address of his machine, and muscle has usurped all the higher attributes of mind.

If he should hive a livery horse and attempt to lash it about the neighborhood all day at a killing pace, the police, the public, and the humane society would soon gather him in as a menace to would soon gather him in as a menace to gust 21, and a committee consisting of peace and safety-as a man unfit to Chas.
