But how low can we make the price, is the question we ask ourselves when marking our goods for sale. That's what makes ours an ever-expanding business, it's a potent advertiser; it tells the story through the purse in thousands of homes, only to be retold in countless others by appreciative money savers.

CIRCUIT COURT.

Kellogg vs. Bogus and Smith-Hess vs. Liebe--Three Indictments for Martin--Other Transactions.

The chief case in the circuit court last Thursday was that of Francis E. Kellogg, vs Fletcher Bogus and wife and Edwin Smith, to set aside a deed from the Bogus to Smith. The instrument covered 45 acres of land at Beaver Creek, valued at $10,000, and it had been executed and filed for record within 45 minutes after plaintiff had taken a default judgment against the Bogus for $302 in the justice court, and while the justice was making a transcript to file with the county clerk. The plaintiff alleges that the deed was fraudulent. The defense claims that the $300 consideration named in the deed was a sum owed the grantee on a loan that had been out-lawed, but which, owing to the roving habits of the grantee, the grantors had no previous opportunity to pay. It is claimed that the land in dispute was the homestead of the Bogus, and as such was exempt from execution, and that such exemption fees the transaction from attack on the score of fraud. Judge McBride took the matter under advisement.

An order for a writ of review was granted in the case of Christian Muralt vs. Clackamas county, and the mandate was served on the county court Thursday. The controversy is over the amount of damages to be awarded the plaintiff by reason of a change in the location of the Lynn road, a few miles up the Abernethy creek. The viewers first appointed by the county court awarded Muralt damages to the amount of $175. The court deemed that award excessive, and rejected the report of the viewers. On the same petition the county court appointed another set of viewers, and they awarded Muralt but $15. Their report was accepted and the road was ordered opened. Muralt based his application for the writ of review on the allegation that the county court exceeded its jurisdiction when it appointed the second set of viewers on the one petition. Judge McBride unhesitatingly agreed with that view of the case, and ordered the county court to pay the $175 damages or abandon proceedings under that petition for a change of location.

The grand jury Thursday evening reported not-true bills against Jim Kerns, who was held for assaulting I. M. Parke, and G. W. Allen, who was held for assaulting Heman Lee, a gun being the weapon alleged to have been used in each case.

Bruce Minkler, charged with larceny in having stolen a horse in East Portland last August, pleaded guilty to the charge, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or go to jail for 25 days. He has already been nearly three months in jail, and he will continue there until his term shall be completed.

Mrs. A. D. Crim was granted a decree of divorce from P. H. Crim, on the ground of cruelty, and Sarah J. Dickerson got a divorce from C. D. Dickerson because of cruelty and failure to support, there being no appearance on the part of the defendant in either case.

The grand jury reported a not true bill in the case against Otis Shelley, Clarence Williams and Milo Brayton for indecent exposure.

August Krause Saturday filed a suit against the Oregon Iron & Steel Co. He alleges that he has a farm of bottom land on Rock creek, a small stream that flows into the Tualatin, and that since the defendant built a dam across the latter stream, in 1888, Rock creek has failed to drain his land as formerly, which has caused him damage to the amount of $1000, which he seeks to recover, and he also wants an injunction to prevent the defendant from maintaining the dam.

The jury that went out Friday night to deliberate on the case of Charles Lescor, charged with assaulting Charles Roadarmel, of Clackamas, with a dangerous weapon, stood nine for conviction and three for acquittal on the first ballot.

There was no change during the night, and the next morning the jury came into court and asked for additional instructions as to what constituted a reasonable doubt, and where the line separating justifiable defense from unjustifiable assault lay. Judge McBride gave the desired instructions, but they did not help the jury any, and at 10 o'clock it reported that it could not agree. It still stood nine to three. There being no probability of a change the jury was discharged.

The Stricklin boys, who reside near Marquam, have had considerable trouble with their neighbors, especially with Milton Shively, and two of the cases that have resulted from the uncongenial relations were in court Saturday. G. W. Stricklin, who was indicted here a year ago for assaulting Shively with a gun and also for carrying a concealed weapon, was recently located near Albany, where he was teaching school, and he was brought answer to the indictments against him. He pleaded not guilty, and, in default of $150 bail, went to jail to await further action in the matter. His brother, J. C. Stricklin, was tried on a similar charge last fall and the jury disagreed. Saturday an equity suit, brought by Shively against J. C. Stricklin, that practically asked for the canceling of a contract which the latter held for a hopyard on the land of the former, was heard. The contract was for five years, three of which have passed. Failure to cultivate the land or harvest the crop, according to contract, as well as failure to pay satisfactory, are alleged. He plead not guilty and the trial which will take place at the February term of the circuit court. A bail of $150 released the defendant and he has returned to his school near Albany to resume teaching.

Three indictments were returned against E. E. Martin, ex-deputy county clerk. Two of the indictments are for burglary, in having "raised" the face of county warrants and indorsed the county treasurer's name on the back, and one for uttering the forged warrants. At his trial Wednesday he plead not guilty to the three indictments reported against him, and asked the court to fix his bond, and it was placed at $10, for which sureties were provided.

The grand jury Tuesday returned a not true bill against Robert Gardner, M. J. Walsh and George Anstened, charged with stealing liquor valued at $100, from the warehouse of the Electric hotel, last June; also, a not true bill against Clemens Barth, who was held for stealing two circular saws from G. J. Erickson, last June.

Two indictments were reported against Charles Thompson, one for larceny by stealing a mare, valued at $60, from Mrs. C. A. Muecke, and the other larceny of a getting of the value of $50 from Henry Richter, the former offense being alleged to have been committed September 30, and the latter October 15.

The receipt of the damage case of Mrs. Elizabeth Less vs. the Oregon German Baking Company and Theodore H. Liebe was an order Judge McBride Tuesday morning. In 1893, her husband, Christian Hess, was in the employ of the bakery company, and was suspected of stealing money from the concern. The arrest of himself and his wife, at the instance of Liebe, followed, and Hess was so wrought up by his trial that he shot Liebe and committed suicide in November, 1893, leaving a long letter fully explaining his action. Liebe recovered. In 1895 Mrs. Hess brought this action for $25,000 damages for malicious prosecution. A change of venue to Clackamas county was granted, and the case was heard here three years ago, the jury awarding the plaintiff $9500, which was cut down to $9250 by the court. No decision at this writing.

To Cure Catarrh

Do not depend upon snuffs, inhalants or other local applications. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, and can be successfully treated only by means of a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which thoroughly purifies the blood and removes the scrofulous taint which cause catarrh. The great number of testimonials from those who have been cured of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla prove the unequalled power of this medicine to conquer this disease. If troubled with Catarrh give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial at once.
