Four Facts for Bicyclers.

When riding in the city, use the handlebars. They are designed for that purpose, and may save a doctor's bill or a lawyer's fee.

Slim girls, whose lack of avoirdupois will permit it, are discarding corsets for their wheeling wardrobe, saying that they ride better, feel better, and look better without them.

Don't ring your bell too often, there is already noise enough in the city; don't fail to ring it when necessary, as there are funerals enough everywhere.

Dismounting from a wheel is not one of those things that "were well done quickly." Dismount slowly even where danger threatens; otherwise, the chances are you will jump from the trying pan into the fire.—From "Bicycle Notes," in Demorest's Magazine for December.

A gentleman went into Holman's to buy some wall paper for his parlor and looking through the many samples found some patterns that were fine, decided upon one. "What is the price of that paper?"
