STREET RAILWAY DEVICES.

Among Them a Scheme to Keep Conductors Honest.

It is many years since Mark Twain's lines immortalized the enforced punching of variously colored slips by street railway conductors to prevent their "holding up the company"...

The cars of the trolley line between Minneapolis and St. Paul are fitted with admirable appliances to prevent accidents to passengers careless in stepping on and off.

The managers of this same line have carried the street car advertising notion to a greater length than the managers of most other trolley lines in the United States.

HER LIFELIKE STATUE.

It Signaled Her Departure From the World of Artists.

Before her marriage she had been a famous sculptress. She had made several portrait statues of well known men, and every one predicted for her a still more brilliant future...

"I am sure you will like it, general," she said, with a winning smile. "It fairly lives and breathes. I confess I am in love with it myself."

"Oh, it's a statuette, is it?" he asked. "Well, yes, you might call it so," she answered, as she went out of the room.

"This is indeed fame," I thought, and when I got to The Graphic office there was another inscription, with flowers and all the rest of it.

"Welcome to M. and G." The G. worried me a bit, but then the name of the man who went out with me commenced with G.

"Why, you egotistical idiot," he remarked politely, "it's nothing to do with you! It's the marriage of Prince George and a Princess May."

The Price of Songs. The following list shows that a great deal of money is made from popular music in England:

Sir Arthur Sullivan is said to have realized £10,000 by his celebrated song "The Lost Chord." Balfe appears to have received high prices for the copyrights of some of his songs.

"I Dream I Dwelt in Marble Halls" he got £8,000, the same for "When Our Lips" and £5,000 for "The Heart Bowed Down." When recently put up for auction, £1,212 15s. was obtained for the copyright of Michael Watson's song "Anchored."

An English writer says that if the Prussian conscription were applied in India England would have 2,500,000 regular soldiers actually in barracks, with 800,000 recruits coming up every year—a force with which not only Asia but the world might be subdued.

THEY COINED WORDS.

A Young Lady's Interesting Dream of Invention and Wealth.

"Good morning," she said. "You look quite griggish."

"Griggish?" he interrogated. "What kind of a look is that? Is it—is it anything alarming?"

"Oh, no, silly! Don't you know what griggish means? I manufactured it ages ago out of grig, a grasshopper—something blithe and sprightly, you know. That reminds me, I had the most interesting dream the other night. I dreamed we kept a word store."

"A word store?"

"Yes, we coined words and sold them to the inventors of foods and of typewriters, and!"

"How were they sold, by the yard or by the dozen?" he interrupted.

"Neither way. We sold each word according to the amount of brains expended in inventing it, except the words pertaining to bicycles—they came high, because they were so fashionable. Oh, it was quite a large store, all divided up into departments. There was the bicycle department, the cigar department, the electrical department, the patent medicine department—in fact, all lines were represented in which inventions might be made needing names. You see, we sold a name for so much, and then if the invention proved successful we shared in the profits."

"Well," said the man, "I hope you showed more taste in the matter than the person who invented such words as 'cupograph,' 'mimeograph,' 'comptometer' and 'operaphone'—they give one literary indigestion."

"Oh, yes," she replied, "our coinage was of a much higher order. Of course we had words ending in graph and phone and cycle, but they were exceedingly cheap, and inventors were rather ashamed to be seen buying them. Words like 'pegamoid' came high. I wish I could remember all the lovely names we coined," she went on.

"The only one I can think of is 'hamwich,' a substitute for ham sandwich. Don't you think that's choice? I dreamed that we sold it to a restaurant man and he made a mint of money out of it."

WARFARE OF CLASSES. Modern Football More Play to Yale's Old Freshman-Sophomore Struggle.

The organization and development of intercollegiate athletics now absorb much of the energy that used to be given to the furious internecine warfare of classes.

On the bloody day appointed both sides massed in heavy column with Napoleonic tactics, while the New Haven fathers surrounded the field.

And the Tyrants of '58 cheered his mates with the noble lines: Let them come on, the baseborn crew! Each soil stained churl—black!

What gain they but a splinter skull. A sod for their base black!
