McALLEN & McDONNELL,  PORTLAND, OR.

J. W. Woodard, of Carus, was in Oregon City yesterday.

Joseph Kuerten left Thursday for a business trip up the valley.

Miss Laura Johnson, of Clackamas, was in Oregon City yesterday.

Mrs. S. A. Venable, of Silverton, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Johnson.

Preston Cooper was in from Carus yesterday, and is making preparations to leave for Eastern Oregon about the 24 inst.

Ex-County Treasurer M. L. Moore was down from Mount Pleasant Wednesday, for the first time since his serious illness.

C. F. Blythe and wife returned Wednesday from a six months' trip to California. He much prefers the Oregon rain to the California climate.

It is now almost an assured fact that several fraternal organizations will change their meeting place to the new headquarters of the Redmen.

Ernest P. Rands and Tom Brown left Thursday for the new hatchery on Salmon river, where they will make a survey for a flume and of the hatchery grounds.

Mrs. W. B. Wiggins and Mrs. George Herrin entertained their Sunday school classes at the home of the former last Monday evening. The party proved to be a very enjoyable affair.

On Monday afternoon the steamer Ruth entered the basin to unload some wheat at the Imperial mills and ran into the upper part of the breakwater, and was considerably damaged, although not disabled.

There will be special services in St. Paul's Episcopal church on next Wednesday. Dr. Williams' topics for next Sunday are "The Uses of Lent," in the morning, and in the evening, "The Law of Love." He will also conduct services at the chapel at Canemah in the evening.

A number of persons have asked us why the school board of Oregon City contemplates furnishing another room for pupils when the census shows nearly 200 less school children than last year. Many have also expressed the opinion that the proceedings of the board should be published by the city papers, the matter to be furnished by the clerk.

Attorney J. C. Moreland, of Portland, has been in Oregon City several times lately. It now transpires that he is trying to get a change of venue for the trial of Dan Magone on the charge of the robbery of Ladd's grave. In his affidavit for a change of venue he states that a juror cannot be obtained in Multnomah county, who has not talked or read about the case; and that severe comment has prejudiced the public against the desecrators. Another point is that many of the witnesses live in Clackamas county, and it would be a saving of expense to have the continued trial in this county.

Al Cannon, Greenman's driver, had a narrow escape from going over the bluff on Singer hill Tuesday afternoon. He had on about a ton of flour, and meeting a wood wagon the horses became scared causing the wagon to upset and breaking two wheels. The flour was all dumped out down the bluff, but the wheels breaking saved the driver and horses from going over.

McLaughlin Chautauqua Circle met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Caulfield last Monday evening. Prof. J. C. Zinser, the new leader, is thoroughly versed in Roman history, and makes the study very interesting. The lesson last week called attention to the cleydrae, an instrument used to prevent public speakers from talking too long. Something of this kind would probably be welcomed by some of our local audiences as a long-felt want.

Among the Clackamas county people, who left for Alaska on the steamer Oregon last Sunday, were James Ward, Robert Beach, John Bean, G. T. Watts, of Oregon City; Ed. Bolds, of Parkplace; X. Decker, Joe Decker, Fred Yerger and Joseph Steinbach, of Kelo. When a short distance from Astoria the coal in the bunkers of the Oregon caught on fire, and their was consternation among the passengers for awhile. The coal was unloaded at the dock and the fire was extinguished, which was smouldering in the bottom of the hold. The fire is supposed to have started from spontaneous combustion.

Mike Mulvy was in from Mulino Monday.

Register C. B. Moores made a short visit to Salem Monday.

C. M. Lake, one of Boring's prominent citizens, was in Oregon City Friday.

O. G. Morris, of Macksburg, was visiting his brother, J. K. Morris, this week.

A report was recently circulated here that Thomas Sagar was dying of scurvy in the Klondike country. A recent letter states that he is in excellent health, and owns one of the promising mining claims on Hunker creek.

Members of the St. Paul, Minn., city council, who are touring the West, visited the electric station and paper mills last Sunday. Portland people chartered a boat, and gave their visitors an excursion to the falls.

Miss Mary Gutteridge, aged 25, died near the Paine school house Saturday morning of consumption. She was a daughter of C. H. Gutteridge, of Springwater, and had been teaching school in the Paine district until she was taken ill a few weeks ago. The remains were interred in Mountain View cemetery on Sunday.

A number of the friends of ex-Councilman and Mrs. L. C. Oaples gathered at their residence Tuesday evening to celebrate the latter's 44th birthday. A very pleasant evening was spent in a social way, and the party did not break up until 11:30. The program was varied with games, music, etc., and refreshments were served.

This week the Oregon supreme court handed down a decision, which decides that women are entitled to vote at school meetings, provided that they have children of school age, or pay taxes. The matter was decided upon an appeal from Lane county. It has been the custom to permit women so qualified to vote at school meetings here.

D. F. Warner closed a very successful seven months' term of school at Union hall last Friday. This is one of the largest country schools in Clackamas county, and the report for the last month shows a large per centage of increase in attendance. Mr. Warner will spend his vacation at his home at Curriusville, and will probably begin with another term at Union Hall in April.

James Buckley is the name of a tourist who was doing the city Saturday afternoon. As he leisurely passed by Schwartz's store he noticed several pair of pants hanging outside. There was no placard displayed, "Take One Free," but he helped himself to a pair anyway. As he walked away Mrs. Schwartz called to him and he flung the pants back, and was taken in charge by Chief Burns. He was arraigned before Justice Scheubel, and sentenced to 12 days in the jail.

Chief of Police Burns went to Salem Monday as a witness in the case of the State of Oregon vs. Hessey, who was on trial for robbing a store at Woodburn. Hessey is a brother of the man, who was arrested in this city by Officer Shaw on New Year's night, and who was afterwards killed at The Dalles by the officers. This Hessey was captured in Portland shortly after the arrest of his brother, and returned to Woodburn by Chief Burns.

In speaking of the oratorical contest recently held at the state Agricultural college in Corvallis, the Times says: "The first upon the program was Miss Hulda Holden, who presented "William Tell, the Hero." She portrayed in a vivid manner the attitude of William Tell toward the tyrant Gessler, of his refusing to bow to the cap placed upon the pole, and finally how he ignited the great pile of patriotism that soon grew into an unquenchable bonfire. Her manner was easy and her gestures well placed.
