CHAUTAUQUA ASSEMBLY.

An Entertaining and Successful Session.

Walter E. Hempstead, M. D., of Damascus, and W. G. Parker, M. D., of Oregon City, successfully passed examinations before the state medical board a few days ago. Dr. W. E. Carril is a member of the board.
Wednesday morning James Booten, the horse man, was driving a band of 40 horses, assisted by Ray Dunn. A dog ran out from the front of a house causing the horses to stampede. Dunn's horse was pushed to the ground, and he was tramped under foot by the horses until he was so severely injured that his recovery is considered doubtful.
Preston Huffman, aged 14, while fishing in Eagle creek above the falls last Saturday, was swept over the precipice and killed. He and three companions were crossing a slippery footlog above the falls when the accident occurred. The others reached the bank in safety. The deceased was a son of Samuel Huffman, who lives near the scene of the tragedy.
A farmhouse occupied by F. Griffith and a young man named Lowe near Carus, was burned to the ground Wednesday afternoon, and all the contents destroyed. The house belonged to Griffith's father, but he and Lowe were bathing in the house, and farming the place. They saw the fire from the field, which had evidently started accidentally, too late to be of any service. The house was a large one, and the loss is about $500, without any insurance.

The fifth annual session of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Association, is proving a greater success than even its most sanguine friends anticipated. The various daily programmes are proving satisfactory, and the attendance has been very good for the first days. The numbering of the camp tents was completed Wednesday evening. There are already 104 camps in the park, 15 more than last year, and the number is increasing every day.
Yesterday, was the third day, and the beginning has been very gratifying to Chautauqua people. The attendance has been very good, and is increasing. The programme has been excellent, and there are many good things yet to come. A number of notable lecturers have occupied the platform. Governor Geier responded to President Miller's address of welcome, and highly entertaining lectures have been delivered by Dr. P. S. Benson, of Chicago; Rev. W. E. Barton, of Chicago; President W. C. Hawley, of Willamette university; Rev. A. R. Bradford, of Montclair, N. J.; and Rev. O. C. Poling, of Portland, besides the splendid musical concerts and programmes, there has been the readings by the noted elocutionist, Maud May Babcock, the round table, programme of athletic sports each day, and then the all-important class work, with a score of the best instructors in the land. All this, and the programme is not half completed. It will be continued through all next week, with many good things yet in store.
Today there will be a lecture by on "Horace Mann and the American Public School," by President P. L. Campbell, of the Monmouth normal school; in the afternoon a lecture on "Leisure Moments" by Eugene G. Uplyke, D. D., of Madison, Wis. Tonight will be the great lecture of John Temple Graves, of Atlanta, Ga., on "The Last Hope of the Negro."

Coroner Strickland and G. B. Dimick, deputy district attorney, were summoned to Damascus Tuesday afternoon to hold inquest on the remains of James Welch, found dead on his place near Damascus Monday evening. It was his custom to drive his cows to pasture every morning, passing through a strip of timber on his way to the field. During the day Welch's younger sister and brother were in Portland, and upon their return, noticed that the former was missing. After a brief search his remains were found lying by the path in the timber leading to the cow pasture. The coroner's verdict was heart disease. The deceased was unmarried, and lived on his farm, his younger and sister assisting about the house and on the place.

Geo. H. Young, in connection with his second-hand store, has rented the adjoining storeroom and is laying in a complete supply of coffins, caskets and undertakers' supplies. Mr. Young is preparing to conduct funerals, do embalming, and render all services in line with the undertakers' business. County Coroner Strickland will have an office in the building. J. Henry Smith, of Portland, completed the plans and specifications Saturday for the improvement of the Singer hill road, and the city council committee on streets and public property are advertising for bids to do the work.

Some naughty editor has said that courting a girl is like starting a newspaper. It starts out a weekly, then becomes a bi-weekly, then merges into a daily, and if it has any enterprise comes out with an extra about once a year.

T. S. Lawrence has been awarded the contract for building the new elevated stairway from Eighth street to upper Seventh street. He does the work for $448. Property owners in the vicinity of the improvement will pay three-fifths of the expense, and the city the remainder.

The lawn social given in the St. John's school yard by the ladies of Mead Relief Corps Auxiliary Monday evening, was a social success, and the proceeds were about $40, which will be forwarded to the Oregon City volunteers at Manilla. The Oregon City Band furnished excellent music for the occasion.

Clark Hilleary, a well known farmer of Damascus, accidentally slid off a load of hay, and received injuries to his spine, from the effects of which he died on Sunday. The accident occurred Saturday. He leaves a family. The deceased was unloading hay with a derrick fork, when the apparatus broke, and he was thrown to the ground, lighting on his head.

Three ministers attending the Congregational national council in Portland, filled Oregon City pulpits Sunday. Professor H. C. King, of Oberlin college, preached at the Congregational church in the morning, and in the evening, the pulpit was filled by President George H. Bates, of Grinnell college, Ia. Rev. N. T. Edwards, of Escondido, filled the pulpit of the Methodist church in the evening.

Bert Greenman, of the Clackamas hatchery, has gone to the upper hatchery to assist in securing salmon eggs during the summer. J. W. Berriam, another attaché of the hatchery, has gone to Little Salmon, Wash., to do the same kind of work. It is not the intention to attempt to secure any salmon eggs at the Clackamas hatchery this year, but the supply of eggs will be secured from the hatcheries on the upper Clackamas, Salmon river, and the Little White Salmon river in Washington.

The Cascade range in Clackamas county is alive with prospectors, and some very promising mineral discoveries are being made. Several locations of gold and silver-bearing quartz ledges have been filed for record during the past week in the county clerk's office. J. F. Paso'd has filed a notice of location on the Silver Thread lode in the Bald Mountain district. H. W. Hunt, Asa Hawkins, C. C. Miller, and Robert Miller have jointly filed a notice of location on the Sky-lark ledge, and the following individual claims were located on the same lode: A. H. Miller, Ass Hawkins, Robert Miller, C. C. Miller and H. W. Hunt.

David F. May, deputy county treasurer, and for the past two years a member of the county board of examiners, died at his home in this city Monday, from the effects of a paralytic stroke. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. M. L. Rugg. Mr. May was 49 years and 3 months old at the time of his demise, and was born near Dallas, Texas. He came to Clackamas county with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jephtha May, in 1852. The former died about eight years ago, and the latter is now the wife of Rev. W. L. Molloy. The deceased had taught school for many years, and always took a prominent part in local politics. He leaves a wife and three children and many other relatives. Mr. May was elected county school superintendent of Clackamas county in 1885.
