The latest rumor from the war is to the effect that the first returning transports will bring the wounded Oregon soldiers home, and in due time the dead will also be brought here for burial. It is stated that the American troops are marching on to Malolos like a whirlwind, and that the insurgents have lost faith in Aguinaldo, and he and his family are preparing to flee from Aguinaldo. The Oregon boys have won laurels for themselves, and deserve the honorable mention that they have received.

S. D. Bennell and Will Harris, of Beaver creek, returned yesterday from Dawson City, where they have been for over a year past. They had been mining, but each had attacks of typhoid fever during the past winter, and have come home to stay. Messrs. Bennell and Harris state that there is considerable sickness at Dawson City and vicinity, and give it as their opinion that there will be much fatal illness when warmer weather comes. They state, however, that the remainder of the Oregon City contingent, are in good health and doing fairly well.

A Medal of Honor.

Joseph H. Kuerten, superintendent of the soap works of the Oregon City Manufacturing Company, has received a medal from the kaiser of Germany for bravery and honorable service. Mr. Kuerten went into service in the King's Hussars, Seventh regiment, on the 15th day of October, 1865, and served in the war of Prussia against Austria until 1868. He distinguished himself in four battles and returned home as a corporal. He was only 19 years old when he went into the service, and was married after the close of the Austrian war. In 1870 his regiment again entered into active service during the Franco-Prussian war, when Mr. Kuerten's oldest daughter, now Mrs. William Shehan, was only five days old. He participated in several battles and returned home in the month of July, 1871. The medal contains an engraving of William I and is appropriately engraved on the other side. The certificate accompanying the medal was signed by the minister of the interior, Von der Recke, and was countersigned by V. Wintzgeralde, German consul at Portland. Mr. Kuerten was born at Cologne at Rhine in 1845, and learned soap making in his father's establishment, who was an extensive manufacturer. He came to the United States in 1881, and has been connected with the Oregon City Manufacturing Company since 1888.
