A Musical Sentry.

The author of "With Plumer In Matebeleland" tells of some humorous sentry incidents.

A trooper had gone down to a water hole after the sentries were posted. On returning he was challenged, but, not knowing the countersign, the sentry refused to let him pass.

"Hang it all, you know me well fool at this time of night?" pleaded the soldier.

"Can't be helped. You know the orders, and unless you give the countersign there you are, and there you will remain!" retorted the sentry. And he did remain there until the visiting officer admitted him in the small hours of . the morning.

On another occasion the countersign, was "Nordenfeldt," the name of a certain kind of gun. A soldier, on approaching the picket, had a hazy recollection that some sert of a gun had been mentioned as the countersign and in answer to the challenge gave "Maxim."

"That's not it," replied the sentry. "Ob, well, the other kind of gun!" bazarded the man.

"Well, that's near enough. Pass in," said the sentry.

An orderly officer, on going his rounds, was astonished to find the sentry singing at him in this fashion: 'Hi tiddle de hi ti! Who goes there!"

"What do you mean, sir, by chal-lenging in that fashion?" asked the off

"The last time I was on duty, sir, I was told to challenge in a more musical voice, and that's the only tune I know, sir," replied the sentry.

The Evolution of the Sideboard.

The dresser began service in the kitchen as a table, advancing until it was composed of a top and two shelves below, supported by four legs. It was then used not so much as a place for dressing the meats as a serving table, on which dishes were placed before being allotted to the members of the bousehold. At a later period a portion of the dresser became inclosed, and after that an extra shelf, with sometimes a hood, was placed on it. It was not | then an article of kitchen furniture, but stood in the hall or living room. As a result of the desire to reduce the quantity of furniture in the ball the credence and dresser were combined as one article, with a closet and shelf below and several shelves above, the whole surmounted by a canopy. Then it was like some of our sideboards, though it was not known by that name until the eighteenth century, when it assumed the long, low table form, with drawers and cupboards below. The name sideboard prior to this had, however, been applied to tables as early as the sixteenth century .- Architectural Record.

Scotland.

Prior to the year 258, which witness ed its invasion by the Scoti, a tribe who inhabited the northern portions of the country now known as Ireland, Scotland bore the name of Caledonia, literally the hilly country of the Caels, or Gaels. The word cael, or gael, is a corruption of Gadhel, signifying in the native tongue "a hidden rover," while Scot, derived from the native scuite, means practically the same thing-i. e., a wanderer. The Caledonians were the inhabitants of the highlands the termi nation dun expressing the Celtic for hill, fort, stronghold. The Scots were the invaders from Scotia, who appropriated the Hebrides and western islands. whereas the lowlanders were the Picts, to called from their description by the Romans, pieti, painted men,-"Names and Their Meaning."

A Feculiar Problem.

The Lengbow gives some amusing pieces of Lewis Carroll's humor from the forgotten pages of Oxford pamphlets. During the election at Oxford in 1865 he gave vent to the following Euclidean

"Plain superficiality is the character of a speech in which, any two points being taken, the speaker is found to lie wholly with regard to those two points."

A note is also given on the right appreciation of examiners: "A takes in ten books and gets a third class, B takes in the examiners and gets a second. Find the value of the examiners in terms of books; also their value in terms when no examination is held."

Sandy's Retort. The parish minister of C--- is a practical though not a cultured preacher. The other Sunday, when on his way home at the close of the afternoon service, he overtook Sandy Smart, the village half wit, slowly trudging along, and, being a bit of a wag, addressed him as follows:

"You've got an excellent pair of shoes on, Sandy; but, losh, man, they're sadly in need of blacking!"

"Aye, sir," readily replied Sandy

There is a story current in Washington of a charming girl whose partner said to her as in waltzing they just missed a statue of the Venus of Mile:

"We mustn't dance too near that or somebody will accuse us of breaking it." The girl turned ber lovely eyes on the statue. "Why," said she, "somebody's broken it already."

IVY AND SUMAC POISON.

to Treat a Patient Suffering From These Painful Afflictions.

Mrs. A. M. Huntington in The La dies' Home Journal adds to the stock of general knowledge on the cures for poi-

It may be distinguished by its brown, hairylike stem, its three leaves (in clusenough! What's the use of playing the ters) and white berries. It is also known as the poison tak. Sometimes it takes the form of a bush and other times that if a vine. The poison ivy and the poison sumac are utterly unlike in appearance, but both belong to the same general order-rhus.

The poison somac grows in swampy places and is known also as poison dogwood and poison alder. It grows from 6 to 25 feet in height, in shrublike form, and the foliage consists of about five pairs of opposite and terminal leaflets. It can always be recognized in the fall by its color and white berries.

Ivy poison is very painful. First the skin is very itchy, then red and swollen, eventually breaking into blisters. The face often swells so much that the eyes are closed.

Having described the plant and told how to detect the poison, I append a number of recipes for the cure of the latter when the poison is in its first

Bathe the affected parts with a saturated solution of baking soda (bicarbonate of sodium) in water that is warm, not hot, as that changes the soda into washing soda, or

Bathe with warm water and soapgood, pure scap-or

Bathe with alum curds, a tablespoonful of powdered alum to a pint of milk, or Eathe with weak ammonia water, Premature Burtal.

A bill has been introduced into the New York legislature looking to the Furnished Every Week by Clackaprevention of premature burial, and it has brought before the public an old discussion and not a few new facts. An estimate of the number of people who are buried alive every year is somewhat startling. A doctor of long experience who has given particular attention to this subject is of the opinion that 5 per cent of all the persons who are supposed to be the victims of sudden death are buried before consciousness has quite left the body. Especial attention is called to the unseemly haste which attends most funerals in common life, and it is pointed out again that there are no human means of determining the entire absence of consciousness in a seemingly dead body except the beginning of decay, for which the surviving friends as a rule will not wait. It is now proposed to furnish storage receptacles at the cemeteries, where all bodi s may be kept under supervision until decay sets in. This practice is followed in several European countries.

It is becoming quite the thing for the women to call upon a justice of the peace to decide legally for them whether their hats are on straight, or, in other words, whether their new dresses fit them, before they pay the bills. Three cases have recently got into court through the efforts of the milliners to collect their money, and in each case the defendant put on the dress so that the judge could decide on the fit, and in each case the judge, who took great pride in his knowledge of proper form. decided that the thing was just horrid. It is now asserted by one of the lady editors, who shows a mean spirit, that these exhibits proceed from a desire to advertise the dresses and not from a de. C. R. Noblitt to L. H.
