THIRD and OAK STREETS

Molalla.

Ed. COURIER-HERALD: Having finished a flying visit to Molalla prairie, where I found your paper in general circulation and well appreciated, I thought a few lines would not come amiss. In comparison with other sections that I have been through, I must say that the personnel of Molalla (including the people and surroundings), is well deserving of a credit mark of not less than 98. At this date every farmer is busily engaged in putting in his crops, well pleased with the fulfillment of the promise, "that seed-time and harvest will never fail." The little burg of Molalla is an ideal point of distribution, centrally located, with side-walks radiating in all directions for a long distance out into the suburbs, provided with a large and substantial store filled with every necessary required, and owned by Levi Robbins, alongside of which looms up the gigantic windmill of Jacob Harless. The buzz of machinery and the string of wagons awaiting their turn gives the visitor an idea that this must be a good place to live. A blacksmith shop in which the merry ring of the anvil continually reminds you of Goldsmith's poem, while opposite stands, with pleasant surroundings, the Hotel de Perry, with the usual village accompaniment of livery stable. Here also is to be found industries that have grown up and thrived under the influence of home patronage; an undertaking establishment that has met the requirements and saved many a dollar for those who needed such things; harness shop, carpenter, wheelwright and many other concerns wanted in daily life is all supplied by home industries. The health of this section has always been at par—so say the oldest inhabitants—until that scourge of the east, la grip, made a raid on this community and kept the resident physician, Dr. J. J. Leavitt on the move day and night. The dental wants of the people here is also supplied by a resident professor of dentistry, J. W. Thomas, whose success is manifest by the large practice he enjoys. A daily mail carried by the veteran mail carrier of Oregon and flawless in his time schedule, with a fourth class postoffice, conducted by a lady whose executive ability leaves nothing to be desired. All this and much more constitutes a unique and very pleasant place to live.

Among the many good traits pertaining to the people of Molalla, there are some that stand prominently forward, and always found to exist in well regulated communities. The first is their unceasing efforts to secure good roads, and each succeeding year happily marks their progress in that line. The second is the sacred care with which they guard their city of the dead. The cemetery in Molalla is all that the most fastidious corpse could desire when the final summons tells him to "come home." The third is probably the most important of all for it deals with the increasing demands for the instruction of the young and rising generation. In this connection the present school house shows that although built while struggling in the throes of financial panic they did not stint the means to supply a large and commodious building with primary and high grade apartments, all equipped to date, and overhead a fine hall well furnished, for the use of all legitimate public occasions. The last occasion on which it was used was on the night of the 8th inst when a drama and farce was presented by the pupils of the school under the management of Mr. MacKrell, who is a past master on the stage, and assisted by the lady teachers, the Mesdames F. E., Patty and Zelma Shaver, whose rendition of characters was worthy of a metropolitan stage. The quaint and natural rendering of the character of a matron, by Ola

Dibble, with Ellen Shaver as her maid, who was a veritable Mother Hubbard, all combined to make every one happy and pleased. The male actors from the heavy villan to the irresistible darkey all were a success. The orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Thos. Dibble, would alone have insured success. Without the orchestra the drama would have been richly enjoyed, but both together gave a feast that will be long remembered, all of which goes to show without any leave of contradiction that talent and timber exists on Molalla prairie equal to any emergency.

Since the above was written, Michael Clifford, aged 25, whose wife, Annie, is postmistress at Molalla, died after an illness of 14 months, consumption being the cause. He was well known in the community and carried with him the esteem of all who knew him. The funeral services were conducted at his home by the Rev. Mr. Haines, and a numerous cortege of sympathizing friends followed him to his last resting place in Molalla cemetery.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it,—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney poison in the blood is liable to attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease; the worst form of kidney trouble. Kidney trouble can be detected although it be slow and deceptive. First, by analysis of the urine; second, by a simple test of setting the urino aside in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, when a cloudy or brick dust settling indicates it.

It was for just such troubles that in his infinite power and goodness the Great Physician caused Swamp-Root to grow for the benefit of mankind, leaving it for His servant, Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist to discover it and make it known to the world. Its wonderful efficacy in promptly curing the most distressing cases is truly marvellous. You may have a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, by mail free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper.
