COMMENTARIES.

Matters Concerning Local Everyday Affairs Noticed by the Courier-Herald Reporter.

Oregon City talent is making its mark in the world, and slowly but surely some who were born here are developing remarkable genius in the world of science and literature, with more victories yet to be achieved, for Native-born Oregonians are yet comparatively young. An Oregon City boy carried off the honors of the oratorical contest at Yale last year. Now Professor Wortman, who was recently elected professor of paleontology, first saw the light of life in Oregon City 42 years ago. He received the groundwork of his education in the Oregon City public schools. Professor Wortman has resided in New York for many years, and has already become famous by his scientific researches, and it is thought that he will eventually succeed Professor Marsh, who is one of the foremost scientific men of the country, but whose advancing years will compel him to resign. Edwin Markham, too, the author of the "Man with the Hoe," is a native of Oregon City, and there are others to hear from.

There is a material falling off in the criminal business before the courts, since the office of district attorney was placed on salary.

Its a game of hide and seek now between the deputy fish commissioners and the fishermen on the Clackamas river. It keeps both crowds pretty busy to watch the maneuvers of the opposing forces.

There is no question of the patriotism of the Oregon volunteers, and if their services are needed, they will remain there until the last Filipino is subdued. If their places can be readily filled by regulars, let them come home by all means, if they so desire. If the boys start home in May and reach here during the June days, there will be a bigger time in Oregon City than was ever seen at any Fourth of July celebration ever held here.

A more active movement in Clackamas county real estate is certainly more encouraging, and is no doubt the forerunner of a more prosperous era of development. The immigration of new blood into the county, accompanied by capital and thrift cannot fail to assist in improving the conditions of the community and state.

President Miller and Secretary Gray are now jubilant over the already very encouraging prospects for sixth annual session of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua. In the matter of talent it will surpass any former gathering, with such celebrities as Sam Jones, J. Dewitt Miller, Camden Coburn and Frank Beard. An effort is now being made to secure Bob Burdette, and President McKinley may be a visitor at Gladstone park, and if he does come he will say something.

Secretary Tozier of the Oregon Press Association, and Secretary Lee of the Portland City Press Club, feel very much as if they had been sat down upon by the citizen's committee, who are to entertain the visiting editors next July. Since last December Tozier and Lee paid out over $80 for postage, besides stationery and their time to further the plans for national gathering of editors in July, and when a salaried secretary was needed, an outsider was chosen. When at Denver last year, Tozier was offered the position of recording secretary of the national convention, a lucrative place, if he would use his influence to have the next convention meet at Hot Springs instead of Portland, but he refused to prove a traitor to his own town.

The electric cars for the Workmen excursion to Portland to visit Industry lodge will leave here at 6:20 Monday evening.

Rev. J. B. Goddard, better known as the Illinois "cyclone" evangelist, is conducting a series of meetings at the United Brethren church. Services at 8 p. m. each evening. Special subjects handled each service. On Friday evening this week "The Trial of Christ" by jury of twelve men. This service is a very interesting and impressive service. You will do well to be present. Mr. Goddard is nonsectarian and not working for any particular denomination, and all, of whatever creed, are invited.

The barber's commission, S. H. Howard, of Portland, president; F. G. Meyer, of Salem, secretary, and F. T. Rogers, treasurer, convened yesterday, and will remain in session today. The time for registration expired on April 24th, and applications for examinations are only being received now. The board are busy winding up their registration business, and will adjourn to Salem to complete their work. Six hundred and forty-nine barbers have been registered and there are three applications for examination.
