Dr. W. T. Lyons has removed his office from the Barclay building to the old Methodist church on Seventh street, where he has very neat and pleasant rooms fitted up.

It is probable that Oregon City will soon have two more attorneys. Colonel J. B. Eddy and O. H. Byland have each announced their intention of hanging out their shingles.

A move is well under way for the organization of a boy's brigade. Frank Weed is manager, and Scott Godfrey was elected captain. Another meeting will be held at the armory tonight.

Dr. W. E. Carl has been invited to give a paper on the "Proper Basis of Teachers' Salaries" before the National Teachers' Association, at its meeting to be held at Los Angeles, Calif., in July.

Albert Fankhauser, aged 78, died at his home near Payn last Thursday. The funeral services were conducted at the Evangelical Association church at Harmony last Tuesday afternoon, and the interment was made in Multnomah cemetery.

Miss Peabody now has about 30 pupils in her kindergarten school, and is doing excellent work. She is assisted in her work by Miss Albee. It is interesting to note the interest taken in the elementary principles of education by the youthful tots.

An Astoria dispatch says that Dr. Duvall, 65 years old, who has been in that city for six months, died Sunday at St. Mary's hospital. Dr. Duvall was formerly a resident here. His son, J. R. Duvall, lives at Ely, and is foreman of the picking room at the woolen mills.

The proper committees are making active preparations for the G. A. R. encampment to convene at McMinnville June 20th. Mrs. Emma Galloway will give the address of welcome on behalf of the Women's Relief Corps. There will also be a musical response by C. V. Galloway.

The Roseburg Daily Review of Friday, contained a two-page account of the commutation of the death sentence of J. M. Olberman to life imprisonment by Governor Geer, who was sentenced to be hanged on April 28th. A complete account of the killing of Casteel is given, the history of the trial and attendant circumstances, together with cuts of Circuit Judge Fullerton, District Attorney Brown, Sheriff Stephens, Olberman, and a picture of the Scaffold, upon which he was to have been hanged. This is enterprise for an interior daily.

C. W. Cottam, a retail shirt peddler, has filed a suit in the United States circuit court to recover $5,032 damages from the municipality of Oregon City for malicious imprisonment. Thomas F. Ryan, ex-city recorder, Chief of Police Burns are made party defendants. The complaint specifies that on December 27th, 1897, that he was imprisoned for two days in a foul and loathsome cell, without having obtained a license for selling his wares; that he suffered great pain and humiliation, and was released on a writ of habeas corpus from the county court. He wants $5000 damages, and $32 expenses.

Myron Babler, superintendent of Seaborg's salmon cannery near Fairhaven, Wash., has been visiting his home at Logan for several days past. He said that there is a striking difference in the method of doing road work between Whatcom county, Wash., and Clackamas county. There instead of grubbing out and plowing up the entire 60 feet in width of a roadway, they improve a space in the center sufficiently wide for a track, macadamizing or planking it. As a result, Whatcom county alone has 350 miles of macadamized and 120 miles of planked road. This plan might profitably be adopted in this county, instead of trying to get over too much ground.

The county board of commissioners held a special session Monday to consider matters pertaining to the proposed bicycle path between here and Portland. President Clark, Secretary Huntley and F. J. Meyer, of the Clackamas County Wheelmen's Association, held a conference with the commissioners, who expressed a willingness to consult the interest of the wheelmen in the location of the path. In the afternoon the board went to Portland and held a joint conference with the Multnomah county board. It was decided to build the path on the river route through Milwaukie and Sellwood, and the respective boards will at once make preparations to purchase the necessary implements. The two counties will meet on the dividing line, which is on the Milwaukie road. The path will be in sight of the river nearly its full length, and is on the route which is the choice of a large majority of the wheelmen. As there are only about 600 wheels in Clackamas county, Bicycle Tax-Collector Cowing has permission to sell tags in Portland, having disposed of 100 there Saturday, and leaving 300 more Monday to be sold.

He states that the company have 90 acres of ground planted in cottonwood trees there all growing nicely. The cottonwood is of very rapid growth. Mr. Grazer telling of young trees planted on the lower Columbia, that grew to have trunks 16 inches in diameter. Often, however, it takes cottonwood trees eight or ten years to attain this growth.

TEACHERS' MEETING

Regular Monthly Session at Parkplace last Saturday.

The Clackamas County Educational Association held its regular monthly meeting at Parkplace last Sunday, and proved to be an unusually pleasant and profitable occasion. County Superintendent Bowland presided. At the morning session, Principal J. W. Gray, of the Parkplace school, gave the address of welcome, and mentioned some interesting things in the history of the association. At the close of this excellent address, the assembly sang "America." M. Hiatt presented his method of teaching geography and explained the action of the winds and ocean currents. The discussion that followed was participated in by Professors J. C. Zinser, of the Barclay school; S. T. Adams, of Willsburg, and J. W. Gray and others.

An invitation was accepted to hold the next meeting of the association at Harmony, and Mrs. Lillie Rowland and Miss Lizze Shipley were elected members of the association.

An excellent lunch was served by the women of Parkplace and Gladstone.

At the afternoon session Master Francis Galloway gave an excellent impersonation of a Swede's comment on a clergyman's statement that going into the water in relation to baptism, only meant going near the water. He responded to the appreciative applause with another comic impersonation.

Miss Longacre, of Portland, sang "Every American Girl is a Queen," and responded with a song-recitation, "Wild Zingarella."

Professor E. A. Milner, of the Portland High school, gave an excellent practical illustration of "Inductive and Deductive Teaching of Arithmetic." While he pointed out the advantages and disadvantages of inductive methods, he showed that the only practical way to teach arithmetic was by the deductive plan.

Little Miss Beth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Cooper was enthusiastically applauded in her recitation.

Mrs. C. H. Dye gave a very entertaining talk on the early history of Oregon, and explained how it could be advantageously taught to the pupils in the public schools. The address was similar to the one delivered by her before the Barclay school Friday afternoon. She spoke of the geological early history of Oregon, of the immigration period, of the formative period of the first government and the romances connected with affairs in Oregon. All these things were told in such a delightfully pleasant way, that the auditors were sorry when her lecture closed.

The following teachers and members of the association were in attendance: Portland—E. A. Milne, Miss Longacre, Alaze Watkins, A. N. Spaulding, Willsburg, S. T. Adams. Milwaukie—Supt. and Mrs. N. W. Bowland, Ida Starkweather Dery, L. L. Moore, Ada McLaughlin, Mainie Rogers.
