children, came to Union Mills last Nov. has leased the farm of G. J. Trullinger. Mr. Clow says this country is all right except bad roads.

G. J. Trullinger, owner of the saw and roller mills at Union Mills, came across the plains in the typical ex-wagon to Oregon Territory in 1848, and located his present home as a Donation Land Claim in 1852 He crected his saw mill in 1858 and the grist mill in 1878 For many years he run a wool carding mawhich, which, some ten years since, was purchused by parties at Milwaukie and removed to that town.

Liberal P. O. and store I found doing a good business. J. A. Hannagan, the present proprietor, came here from Bri-(al Veil, January, 1898. This store caries a splendid assortment of dry goods, staple and fancy groceries. Mr. H. does is own freighting and sells at Canby prices.

At present the largest share of the trade of Liberal and Molalla goes to Canby because they have a level and smooth road, but when the new plank road from Oregon City is completed to Mulino the wheels will roll towards the county metropolis. A good winter and all-the-year-'round wagon road would be better than a motor line,

On the road to Marquam from Molalla we found George W. Jackson ploughing issued 1231 orders. for potatoes. He finds the Burbank the best general purpose spud. Last year he raised 3'0 bushels and sold the bulk last fall for 25 cents per bushel Mr. Jac'cson's father, Geo W. sr , came to this county from Illinois in 1845 and located the present D. L. C., now owned by George W. jr. His father died 5 years ago, aged 72. Thus one by one the brave pioneers who helped lay the the corner stones of this picturesque and fertile commonwealth are passing across the great divide.

Still farther on the Marquam road we came to the farm and hop fields of T. G. farrett, who, in '52 crossed the plains 8) acres. He never wore a nickname until a D. D. gave him the title of "Sinbad," but the boys who know uncle Tom the best have foresworn the nick name and say when he comes to town, here comes Bob Ingersol looking after wren Tsaser." > A half mile south of Mrs. Gray's is the old Bob Thompson homestead, A, H. Logan, leasee. The fruit here is a failure, but a good prospect for grain.

We found the village of Marquam flourishing. Our enterprising young merchant of this place, proprietor of the old grange store, finds business fair.

Alvin Cameron, a first-class blacksmith and horse shoer, of Eureka, Cal., came to Marguam last week and opened a shop at the old stand opposite the feed stable.

E. M. Hartman, the guardian of Unc'e Sam's mail depot here reports business good. For the month of May, 1899, receipts of the post fice were nearly double those of the same month in 1898. From August 1893 to August 1897 this office issued 1500 money orders, and since August 1st, 1897, Mr. Hartman has Marquam.

All is excitement at Marquam now. Hundreds of people assemble each evening at the fair grounds pavilion. This vast concourse of people is occasioned by the recent appearance of a medium sized white dog which Jasper would describe as having no particular ear mark, but a very short tail. This dog appears on the stage each evening having in charge three men, one of whom is called the "Little Doctor," an "end man," and the third, well, he is just a man. The dog has the "Little Doctor" so well trained that he is taking in hands full of money from some people who hitherto have been so close that they would squeeze a quarter until they made the eagle on it squirm.
