A POPULAR MISTAKE.

The Idea That Professional Men

Have an Easy Time. "People who work with their hands, especially farmers, are apt to think that professional men have an easy time of it," said a lawyer of this city. "It's an amusing mistake. The farmer stops at sundown, and the laborer works ten hours at the outside. The average professional man works from 12 to 14 hours day in and day out, all the year around. Often, at a pinch, he will work from 16 to 20 hours for several days in succession, and he will work when he is sick or suffering severe physical pain, something the manual toller wouldn't dream of. Of course he takes short intervals of rest, like everybody else. The human engine isn't capable of absolutely sustained endeavor for over an hour at a stretch.

"Watch a day laborer, ho seems to be plodding along like a machine, and you'll find that he really rests more than half t' time. He looks at some well dressed doctor, lawyer, broker or man of affairs and says to himself: 'Oh, you doggoned lazy rascal! If you had to work like me! The truth only is that the chap he envies is putting an amount of concentration and continued energy into his daily toil that would kill the man who works with his hands alone in less than a week.

"I don't mean this as any reflection on the laborer, who is also no doubt doing his level best. I simply mean that the demands on brain production are a third again as severe as the demands on muscle production. For sheer staying qualities there is nothing in the world that equals the nervous, high strung, frail looking modern professional man."-New Orleans Times-Democrat

JESS AND THE BEAR.

Brain Saved the Man, but Lost His Life In the Bargain.

There is a story connected with the last bear killed about here which fond grandpapas often told the children seated on their knees. It appears that the celebrated "Uncle Jess" had spent all his life as a trapper and bunter, and never a mishap had befallen him. But one night, in his anxiety to shake a coon, he climbed the shell of an old tree.

As he began shaking the neighboring limb the stump to which he was clinging gave way, and he sank feet first into the hollow center. All efforts to escape were impossible, and the pious hunter had resolved to pass the remainder of his life in prayer, when toward night his supplications were interrupted. Looking up, he beheld the eye of a bear looking straight down at him.

Then the animal turned about and backed down the inside of the stump. Hardly knowing what to do, Uncle Jess put up his hands in protection and grasped the bear. Now it was the bear's turn to be frightened. He scrambled up again, while the hunter hung on for his life and was carried with safety to the top.

but that was no easy matter to the blithely made for the frontier. beast, and he fell with a heavy thud to the ground below and was killed, while Uncle Jess went home and told the truthful tale, to be handed down to his children.-Springfield Republic-

According to a lecture on Siam delivered recently in London by John Bartlett, that country has more than its share of priests. The population of Siam, he said, amounted to about 6,000,000, and a curious feature was the large preponderance of Chinese, more especially in Bangkok. The Chinese practically controlled all the trade and commerce of the place. There were hardly any Slamese merchants. One million of the people were in the priesthood. He had traveled up river through the main territory of Siam for a distance of 350 miles, and during the journey it had been absolutely impossible to get out of sight of a temple. In each temple there were from 10 to 300 priests, supported entirely by the people. Of the 1,000,000 priests only 300,000 were actively engaged. The remaining 700,000 were passing through the priesthood.

Franklin's time bonored and cumuative adage, "For want of the nail the shoe was lost, for want of the shoe the horse was lost, for want of the horse the man was lost," should have the addendum of twine and paper bags put to it to make it complete.

Few things are more aggravating than to be ready to tie up a package and find no string, or to carry a few apples, oranges, eggs or bulbs a short distance and find no bag to hold them. Strings should always be wound in a ball and kept ready for immediate use where the family may find them, and paper bags, as soon as emptied, should be folded neatly and laid in a drawer for use as needed.

Boys of the Olden Time.

Boys have always been boys. There is no doubt that Shem and Ham pitched coppers or played jackstraws on the shady side of the ark, while Noah, who couldn't find them, had to feed the stock bimself, or that David held up two flugers to Jonathan when he saw him across the block and that they therewith went in swimming in the Jordan against the express prohibition of their mothers.-Minneapolis Journal.

Greasy baths may be made perfectly clean by lightly scouring with a wet flannel dipped in common sait.

The farmer gets along all right if things don't go against the grain .-Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Mint Melting Pot.

"Yes. we recive lots of things that we hate to see go into the melting pot," said an old mint attache. "Folks in financial stress bring Uncle Sam all manner of heirlooms which are bought over the counter for their naked weight in gold or silver bullion. Art or antiquity don't count at the mint, and a candelabra by Benvenuto Cellini himself wouldn't bring more than a lump of raw metal fresh from than a lump of raw metal fresh from the smelter. We get plate of every description, old watch cases, rings, rhains, snuff boxes, spectacle frames and jewelry mounts without number.

"In this section of the south there are several speculators who make a business of traveling through the rural districts and buying up all the old gold and silver they can find. They are experts in judging of the fineness of metal, and they pay as little as they can, so there must be a big profit in the trade. As a rule, the stuff they bring us and that finds its way here through other channels is old and broken and uninteresting, but now and then something of rare artistic value turns up in the lot, and we would be only too glad to take it out and make good the coin value, but the law for-

"That, by the way, is no doubt the very reason why we occasionally get such articles. People who are poor and proud would rather have the identity of their relics lost forever in the melting pot than run the risk of exposing their straits by leaving them with the pawnbrokers."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Good Pince to Leave.

"The Indians of Mexico," says a cor-respondent of Forest and Stream, "know nothing of the laws of contagion. They display an apathy toward certain loathsome diseases which surprises a foreigner.

"In a recent hunting trip in the Sierra of Pueblo our party of eight was descending toward Zacapoaxtla. We rode leisurely, for the trail was narrow and hemmed in by Indian huts. At the door of one of these stood a woman and a little girl. We stopped to inquire the way, when the following conversation took place:

"'Good morning, senora." "'A very good morning, at your orders, senor.' "This is the road to Zacapoaxtla, is It not?"

'You are quite right, senor.' "'And is it very far?"

"'On the contrary, it is a very little ways.

"A thousand thanks for your kindness, senora." "There is nothing for which to offer them, senor.' "'Is the little girl sick, senora?"

" 'She is a little sick, senor.'

"'What is the matter with her? "'She has the smallpox, senor.'

"'Ah, good day, senora!" Hard to Get Out.

The Dumdum Bullet.

The dumdum bullet secured its name from the Indian arsenal by whose officers it was devised, and the name should not be spelled in two words or even hyphenized, as a great many people appear to think. Dumdum is a town and a military station about four miles northeast of Calcutta.

The small caliber builets have slight effect on those struck by them, and it was to obviate this difficulty that the dumdum builet was devised. Smith-What's the trouble with quarreling.

Jones-Oh, it's the old, old story. Each declares the other is at fault. Smith-Well, perhaps they are both at fault. Each should make some allowance for the other.

Jones-But that's impossible. You see, Brown hasn't got a penny of his own, while his wife is quite wealthy, and she makes him an allowance of $6 a week.-Chicago News.
