Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately a friend advised trying Electric Bitters, and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life and robbed the grave to another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50cts. guaranteed, at George A. Harding's drug store.

A Partial Rejoice.

Editor COURIER-HERALD:

Permit a not sophisticated farmer to express a little surprise that the Oregonian can get off such a tirade as the following, without even a partial rejoinder from some level-headed quill drive. In the Weekly of Aug. 18th, under the caption of "Bubonic Statesmanship" it says:

"In this country the work of drouth Black Death is efficiently performed by Bryan and his fellow conspirators. There is no excuse for these self-appointed substitutes for plague and famine in the United States, and there should be no toleration for or patience with them. We have men banded together to drive us into the same extremity of financial distress into which calamitous visitations threaten to drive India. No extenuation can ever hereafter be invented that will be adequate to condone or excuse the men, whatever party they belong to, who have in time past urged free coinage of silver in the United States."

Oh just save us poor wretches—do please Mr. Scott; plead guilty. Is there nothing under the shining orb of day that will in some measure tend to mitigate our offense—nothing whereby this heinous crime can be expunged? Is it possible, turn which way we will there shall only meet us your indignant frowns? Since hope is fled and the Oregonian will ne'er embrace us, then with Solomon let us consider:

With the U. S. abounding in mountains of silver and her streams strown with nuggets of gold, must these vast treasures lie hidden in the earth, when in less than a year ample means could be had for building and equipping the Nicaragua canal, whereby we could command the commerce of the world. Let us have a live president—one that is prudent and able to direct the energies of a progressive people. To revert more particularly to what is enclosed in quotation marks. Does it not sound very much like the bellowing of Bashon's bulls? See his pointed horns-sullen eyes and stiffened neck as he treads the earth, throwing dust heavenward, while with majestic tail he lashes his sides, and—drops his excrement. This is all there is of Harvey Scott.

CONSPIRATOR,
of Clackamas.
