"If your sickness is like hers, Mrs. Jacobs' story will interest you."

"I was very sick indeed," writes Mrs. Mollie Jacobs, of Felton, Kent Co., Delaware. "and our family doctor said I had consumption. I thought I must die soon."

METHODS.

The city expressmen combine is about six weeks old, and was almost forgotten by most people until mentioned in "Today's Happenings" in a daily paper.

It's the sleek man, not the long and sho't pair, that has been doing the recent buglaries in Oregon City. The way in which he pulled the pants from underneath the pillows covered by sleeping men's heads without waking the baby was a caution.

It's fun to watch the candidates for county clerk on the republican ticket crawl into their holes every time Adolph Aschoff decides he will run for clerk.

Bob Gardner was given a year's absence from town. He was made the scapegoat of many another man's sins. He never got into trouble unless he was full of whiskey. Some body was to blame for this, according to certain ethics.

O. H. Byland says that a man has a right to go to any employe of a printing office and engage space in a newspaper to use as his own. A man that don't know any more than this, should not be permitted a certificate to teach school.

An effort will be made by the local democrats and populists to secure William Jennings Bryan for an afternoon speech at Oregon City during the campaign. It will be a free affair and no admission will be charged. Thousands of people would no doubt come to town on that day to hear the orator of the Plateau.

In spite of the efforts of U'Ren and his side partner, L-Legged Porter, the union of populists and democrats is progressing swimmingly. The most encouraging reports are being received from every precinct.

A well-known republican attorney threw out the insinuation a few days ago that were I employed on the Enterprise, I would be whooping it up for U'Ren. Not so; the files of the Enterprise, when I was employed there, disprove this assertion. I never did have any use for the man, and always avoided him as I would a snake, when employed in offices where he held friendly relations.

The "Note and Comment" man on the Oregonian is almost as much off his base as the Oregon City reporter of the Telegram, when he said that U'Ren contracted space in the Courier-Herald. U'Ren did nothing of the kind. He sneaked in when the manager was out, and made a contract with a sick boy, who had been confined to his bed, and did not comprehend what was wanted with the space.

Candidates for road supervisors will be nominated at the county conventions, the same as candidates for justices of the peace and constables. Of course, the candidate for road supervisor will be selected at the primaries, but the nomination will be ratified at the county conventions.

The practice of drawing up long-winded resolutions over the death of an individual should be abolished by legislative enactment. These resolutions are formal affairs, and have a tinkling brass sound that is almost enough to wake the dead from their slumbers. An appropriate obituary notice is the proper thing, but this resolution business has been run into the ground. Some papers positively refuse to publish death resolutions. In some instances they are only published to give people a chance to air their names.

Now that good roads are coming, it is high time that Oregon City business men were preparing to buy the surplus products of farmers. These roads will prove of but little benefit unless they can market their surplus. Good roads cost the taxpayers money, and an effort should be made to reap the benefit from good thoroughfares.—G.

Money to be Refunded.

Before the adjournment of the county commissioners, the county clerk was notified to inform the city that the commissioners were ready to refund the $500 which the city subscribed for the improvement of the Molalla road.

On June 3, 1899, the city approved and passed an ordinance appropriating $500, to be used on the improvement of the Molalla county road leading into Oregon City. The ordinance provided that the money subscribed should be repaid to the city, upon the completion of the improvement.—Oregon City edition of the Evening Telegram, December 11th, 1899.

County Selling Warrants.

Nearly $8000 worth of road and county warrants were issued during this month. The treasurer is now out of funds with which to pay the warrants, consequently they are being sold, and bring from 1 to 2 cents premium. The road warrants go for their face.—Oregon City department of the Evening Telegram of Nov. 23rd, 1899.

says: "According to agreement made in Salt Lake City, if your preparations proved a benefit to my bald head, I was to send you a testimonial. There is a fine growth of new hair started. Am not troubled any more with dandruff and that annoying itching of the scalp. I had tried everything I could hear of before I saw you, but received no benefit. You can use this if you wish. Please send me half-dozen bottles."

We have thousands of testimonials equally as strong. All hair and scalp troubles readily succumb to these meritorious preparations. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Co-operative Plan Assured.

William Galloway, president of the Prunegrowers' Association of the Northwest, said Monday that he had received over 100 letters from growers, who could not attend the convention last Friday, but heartily in favor of its action. This morning he received a letter from a prune grower at Ocarrio, Malheur county, stating that he intended to plant 200 acres in addition to his orchard already growing, in view of the assured prospects for a better market by the co-operation plan. Mr. Galloway is now confident that 75 per cent of the growers of the Northwest will be secured to enter into the plans of the co-operative organization. Mr. Galloway said:

"Our plan was adopted from the one which proved so successful under the management of the California Association. During the season of 1898, California exported direct to Europe less than 6,000,000 pounds of dried prunes, while in 1899, under the co-operative plan 22,000,000 pounds were exported by December 31, and it is believed that the total exportation by the time the season closes will be 24,000,000 pounds, or 1000 12-ton carloads. There are in Europe, as well as in the Eastern states, millions of wage-earners and middle-class people, who want our cured prunes at a price which they can afford to pay. By the plan of bringing the producer and consumer into closer relations, we can profitably supply the consumer with dried prunes at much less prices than they are now paying. This is the class that we desire to reach principally for a profitable market. With many carloads of fruit, terms can be easily made with the railroad companies for cheap traffic rates. When large quantities of fruit are to be shipped, it is no trouble to get rates."

Dairying.

Since the attention of Willamette valley farmers has been turned to the opportunities that await them in the line of dairying, the prosperous towns in that section are vying with one another in the matter of establishing creameries and encouraging farmers to take up this profitable industry.

The Aurora Borealis calls the attention of its readers to the fact that nearly every town in the state has established a creamery, or is about to do so, and points out the benefits that will accrue if one is built and operated in Aurora. The Woodburn Independent is giving every assistance to the farmers in that vicinity who have united to build a creamery, and says that the enterprise is well under way and beyond the reach of failure.

The Southern Pacific is doing everything in its power to help the growing enterprise along. General Freight and Passenger Agent C. H. Markham is keeping himself informed on the progress of the various creameries, and has given the subject of dairy farming much thought and study.

Now, comparing the showing made by the Albany Co-operative Creamery with that of the average creamery in the best dairy country in the United States, it will be seen that the 32,222 pounds of milk from seven cows brought the Linn county farmer for his butter fat $58 more last year than the Freeborn county farmer received for his 23,000 pounds of milk from seven and eight cows, or an increase of $8.33 per cow.
