The delegates, who attended the congressional convention at McMinnville, state that the numerous federal officeholders in evidence, made the Tongue forces impregnable. Tongue was nominated on the first ballot by receiving 93 votes. Brownell received 17 votes. George W. Swope made the nominating speech, which is said to have been the best before the convention. Senator Brownell was made the congressional committeeman for Clackamas county. George A. Steel, of this county, and Ben David, of Newberg, were elected delegates to the national convention.

Randolph Stricklin, a well known Clackamas county pioneer of 1854, died at his home at Highland Wednesday morning, aged 68. He crossed the plains and settled on a donation land at Highland in 1854, on which he resided continuously up to the time of his demise. Mr. Stricklin was married to Miss Allie Helms at Oregon City in 1857, who survives him. The body of an unknown young man was found in the river near the Magone place, late Saturday afternoon. His body was lodged or entangled in a set fish net, and his undershirt was arranged so that he was unable to move his arms. Deputy Fish Commissioner McCown, who was patrolling the river at this time fastened the body to the bank, pending the arrival of the coroner, who was on town visiting a patient. The body was removed to the morgue on Sunday, and on Monday Coroner Strickland held an inquest. The jury brought in a verdict of death by drowning with suicidal intent. The man was seen on the bank of the river a half hour previous to finding his body, and before going into the water had taken off his coat, hat and shoes. His clothing, worn, was of good quality, indicating that he had been in better circumstances. He was smooth shaven, and apparently about 23 or 24 years old. There was nothing in his clothing to indicate his identity, and none of the numerous visitors at the morgue could not in anyway identify the dead man.
