The party given by Mrs. N. W. Lawrence and Miss Imogen Harding at the Armory Friday night, was one of the notable successes of the season.

In the proceedings of the council meeting printed last week, it should have read that the addresses of E. G. Gausfield and E. D. Kelly were earnest, instead of "bitter."

It is believed that the scheme to incorporate Clackamas Station has fallen through, on account of the fact that the people are unable to agree on the boundaries of the proposed city.

Real estate sales are becoming more numerous in various sections of the country, indications that the new immigration is coming this way, as many of the buyers are strangers.

The Milwaukie school under the charge of Ara McLoughlin, principal, and Miss Kathryn Casto, one of the grade teachers, visited the mills and factories in the city Monday.

About a half dozen transfers of real estate have taken place in the vicinity of Canby, during the past two or three weeks, the purchasers in each case, invariably being eastern people.

Monday's Oregonian contained a very creditable picture and sketch of Hon. Gilbert Hedges, the Clackamas county member of the legislature, who was elected on the citizens' ticket.

Miss Jessamine Dutcher, formerly of this city, was married to Frank Strahl in the Taylor street M. E. Church, Portland, on Christmas Day. Prof F. Beisel of the city played the wedding march.

The city council held an adjourned meeting Friday night to consider the sewer question, but practically nothing was accomplished. The contractors still demand the full amount of the claim, $1670, for extra work on Center street. The work has not yet been received by the street committee.

Lou Young made a trip to the Mill Creek ranch Monday. He and his brother, George H. Young, sold the 30 head of goats on their ranch to A. W. France. The animals brought $550 per head.

Oreston, the five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Brown, is having a serious time with his eye. The child was chopping some rose vines with an ax, when one of the branches drew across his face in such a manner that a thorn pierced the pupil of the eye. It is thought by the attending physicians that his eyesight will be restored.

John Angell, an early resident of Oregon City, who died in Portland, was buried here Saturday. The pall-bearers were: George A. Harding, Charles Barclay, Henry Meldrum and Charles Burns, of Oregon City; J. A. Arnet and William Warren, of Portland. John Angell was formerly a real estate dealer of Portland, and later a prominent mining promoter of Southern Oregon. He spent his boyhood days in Oregon City, the majority being chums of the deceased's boyhood days.

The New Year's services at St. John's Catholic church attracted a large congregation. A number of non-Catholics were present. The sermon of the vicar, Rev. Hillebrand, was received with rapt attention by the auditors. The speaker drew a bright picture of the glorious future in store for the church in this country, whose bishoprics within our borders have increased to 70, and dwelt feelingly on the fact that the growth of the spirit of religious tolerance has been marked in the 19th century.

Died, near Marquam, Oregon, December 25, 1900, Andrew Joerg, a native of Germany, aged 69 years. Mr. Joerg attended a Christmas dinner with neighbors and was apparently in good health when he returned to his home with the family in the evening. He went to the barn to put away the team, and failing to return, one of his sons went to look for him. He was found in an unconscious condition and died soon afterward. Deceased leaves a widow and two sons. The interment was at Miller cemetery, L. E. Pedersen, of this city, officiating.

Clackamas county was well represented at the Teachers' State Convention, held in Albany last week, and made its presence felt. Following were members of the party: Misses Fannie G. Gary, Mr. Mantz, L. H. Vincent, George Strickland and County Superintendent J. C. Zinser. The next meeting of the Teachers' Association will be held at Eugene.

Miss Mary Miles was married to Stephen Hicklin, of Seattle, Wednesday morning at the residence of bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Miles, in Oregon City, Jan. 1, 1901, Rev. A. J. Montgomery officiating. Only a few immediate relatives were present at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hicklin left on the morning train for Seattle, where they will reside in the future. Mr. Hicklin was formerly a fireman in the pulp mills, but is now engaged in business at Seattle. Mrs. Hicklin is prominent in musical circles, and will be missed by many friends in the city.

Holms-Blanchard.

On New Year's day a very pretty wedding took place at the home of Thos. Blanchard, Sr., when the beautiful and accomplished daughter, Miss Clara, was united in marriage with Lester Holms, a prominent business man of Canby. A number of friends and relatives were present.

At 12 o'clock as the wedding march was played by Miss Randall, the happy couple took their place under an arch of ivy and snowdrops. Miss Eva Todd and James Blanchard acting as bridesmaid and groomsmen. Rev. Dunlap of Canby, pronounced the impressive ring ceremony and after congratulations and best wishes, the guests, led by the newly wedded pair, repaired to the dining room where a bounteous feast was spread.

Mr. and Mrs. Holms were the recipients of many handsome and useful presents. They will reside in Canby where they will be at home to their friends after January 15th.

Mrs. White's Party.

Mrs. W. A. White gave a social party New Year's eve in honor of Abel Meresse, of Forest Grove. The evening was passed pleasantly with social games, after which refreshments were served. Abel Meresse won the prize for the best guess. The following characters were represented: Will Shively, bookworm; George Swafford, reporter; Wilfred White, newsman; Traiton Dye, minister; Emery Dye, lawyer; Abel Meresse, taxidermist; Clark Williams, nothing; Happy Roake, lunatic; Grace McDonnald, reporter; Nellie Swafford, music composer; Ivy Roake, florist; Echo Samson, jeweler; Grace Marshall, The Enterprise; Jean White, jack-of-all-trades; Phil Gabbert, hivery.

FRATERNAL NOTES.

Multnomah Lodge No. 1, A. F. & A. M., had an installation of officers Thursday night, it being St. John's Day. Past Worshipful Master J. E. Hedges installed the following officers: Worshipful Master, J. H. Walker; senior warden, F. T. Griffith; junior warden, R. C. Ganong; treasurer, W. E. Carl; secretary, Thomas F. Ryan; senior deacon, Charles Humphrey; junior deacon, George T. Howard; senior steward, F. C. Miller; junior steward, J. P. Keating; tyler, A. W. Frances. After the lodge hall was burned a number of years ago, the lodge incurred a heavy debt in erecting a new structure, but the indebtedness is nearly all paid off.

The local Artisan Assembly is prospering and several new members were initiated at the last meeting.

McLoughlin Cabin, No. 4, Native Sons of Oregon, will initiate five new members at the next regular meeting. Grand President Sol Blumauer will be present at the next meeting.

LOCAL COMMENT.

Oregon City talent is coming to the front in the literary world. Eva Emery Dye's books are meeting with remarkable success; Edwin Markham, who was born in Oregon City, is still making fame, despite adverse lies from the critics. Father De Roo's "History of America before Columbus" is receiving commendation comment from critical circles. Mrs. Higginson, who spent her school days in Oregon City, has already made a reputation for herself in the literary world.

It is evident that Clackamas county will soon have her quota of creameries and cheese factories, which will be wealth-producers. However, it is a wonder that more farmers do not establish henneries. It takes less capital to start the business, enabling every farmer to operate his own outfit. The price of eggs has been beyond the reach of many would-be customers on account of the scarcity and high price for several months past. It pays even to produce eggs when prices are low.

The new city council may have opportunity to practice reform and retrenchment in more ways than one. In fact, it is not believed that the opportunities will be wanting.

United States Senator Simon has gone to Washington, but United States Senator McBride will be with us during the winter months, or at least with the members of the legislature.

The new city council have an opportunity to make a record for themselves on the score of an economic manner of administering.
