Barton Jack, who has been visiting for a few days at Marquam, states that the people of that section have a hope of getting free mail delivery at an early date. Silverton is working up the scheme, and desires to be the central station for that section. The idea is to extend the route 10 miles north of Silverton, which would take in the greater part of the Marquam district, and include Mount Angel, Scott's Mills, Monitor and Meridian. Should this prove a reality, it will be the first section in Clackamas county to get the benefits of a free mail delivery.

Judge Samuel S. White, an Oregon City pioneer of 1845, and the first probate judge of Clackamas county, died in Portland yesterday morning, aged 80. The deceased was born in Franklin county, Indiana, in 1811. His wife was the first white woman ever in Burlington, Ia., and her brother, Colonel Berryman Jennings was the first white teacher. In 1846, S. S. White was appointed probate judge by Governor Abernethy, and later was a member of the state legislature, county judge and a highly esteemed citizen of Clackamas county. He has resided in Portland since 1873. The deceased was an Indian war veteran. Mrs. White died a number of years ago, but his son, Eugene D. White survives him.

Ralph Jacobs, the well known pioneer, who had been for many years an important factor in the factor in the Oregon City woolen mills as well as former resident here, died in Portland last Saturday morning. He had recently returned from New York, but was slightly improved in health, suffering from a complication of diseases. The success attending his efforts from a small beginning is well known to the older residents of Clackamas county. He and his brother started into business in a small way, which prospered and grew. Later they purchase virtually the controlling stock in the woolen mills, and later established a wholesale clothing house in Portland. The deceased was for a number of years president of the Oregon City Manufacturing Company, but was succeeded by his son, Adolph R. Jacobs. Besides the son and widow, he left four daughters, Ruby, Hilda, Francis and Miriam. A carload of employees of the woolen mills went to Portland Monday morning to attend the funeral, foremen of the different departments acting as pall bearers.

C. Schuebel and W. S. U'Ren, have formed a law co-partnership, and will occupy the office of the former. Mr. U'Ren gives some interesting experiences of his trip to South Africa.

The fishermen of Oregon City and vicinity held a meeting at Justice McNulty's office Monday night, to decide on just what legislation is needed to protect their fishing interests. Nothing definite was accomplished, and it was decided to hold another meeting next Saturday night. It is expected that there will be a better attendance at the next gathering.

County School Superintendent J. C. Zinser has made an apportionment of county funds of $9 to each district. This is the first installment of the annual $90 allotment to each district. The next monthly meeting of the Clackamas County Teacher's Association will be held at Barlow on Saturday, January 20th. The program is now in course of preparation. This will be one of the live meetings of the association.

Livy Stipp is drawing up a bill to be presented by the Clackamas county delegation at the legislature, which provides for the settling up of an estate by the administrator, where the distributee cannot be found. It provides that such money can be turned over to the county treasurer, and held by him until the whereabouts of the distributee can be ascertained. This plan would enable an administrator to settle up an estate by depositing the balance with the county treasurer. The bill also will provide for emergencies in matters connected with small estates of minors.

The marriage of Lauretta M. Dawson and Harry D. Evans was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, in Butteville, Dec. 25, Rev. J. M. Barber officiating. Miss Agia Onimette and Miss Deborah Stephenson acted as bridesmaids, and Mr. John Scheurer and Mr. Lester Mathieu as best men. The affair was a very quiet one, only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties being present. A number of useful presents were received.—Aurora Borealis.

Special Notice.

Unearthed, exposed and made public; terrible tragedy; full details and names given; a blood stained bag and contents to be exposed Saturday evening, Jan. 12 at the Salvation Army hall, followed by a coffee and cake social.

Altogether it will be a remarkable affair, which all are invited to attend. How can you miss this?

The Redmen's Annual Banquet.

Wacheno Tribe, Improved Order of Redmen, installed their new officers Wednesday night, a list of which was recently printed. It was also the occasion of their annual banquet, and proved to be one of the notable festal occasions in the history of the tribe. Deputy Grand Sachem A. F. Aemus installed the newly elected officers. Toasts enlivened the elaborate banquet and addresses were made by Charles Woodward, J. H. Howard, Henry Meldrum, C. W. Kelly and others.

A Realistic Rain Storm.

There is occasion for a rain storm in the first act of "At the White Horse Tavern," which will be seen at Shively's Saturday, Jan. 12, and this alone is quite worth the journey and the price of admission to see. The storm begins with the usual effects of a darkened stage, thunder and lightning. Then the rain comes down—not the mere shadow on the "back drop," but real rain that splatters over everything, including the players. It runs from the roof of the tavern in great streams, and down the spout, and into the rain barrel it comes in a torrent that gurgles and splutters after the fashion of all large spouts leading to rain barrels. It runs from the umbrellas of the hapless tourists on the stage, and rivulets of it make trails all over the stage floor. It is said to be the best rain storm ever presented on the stage. Seats on sale at Huntley's, 50 and 75c.
