OREGON CITY, FEB. 15, 1901.

In the face of a $180,000,000 private ship subsidy proposal at Washington...

JAMES A. GARFIELD happily summed up the service John Marshall performed for his country when he spoke of him as "that great judge who found the constitution paper and made it power; who found it a skeleton and clothed it with flesh and blood."

In 1896, convertible paper money to the face value of £744,000,000 was in circulation in the European world...

In Edward VII's kingdom, despite the passing artificial aid to prosperity of a big war, there are 1,008,005 paupers supported by public taxation...

The family that enjoys the throne of Great Britain is known as the Guelfs. They are a long-lived race; one of them, George III, dying in the 60th year of his reign...

UNLESS some vigorous pruning shall be done, of which there is no sign, the appropriations for the second session of the Fifty-sixth congress will reach $800,000,000.

Between Jan. 1 and Dec. 31, 1900, American manufactures of iron and steel amounting in value to $129,633,480 were sent abroad and profitably sold in foreign markets.

Since 1675, when the world's stock of gold and silver coins was about $1,250,000,000, three have been produced over $15,000,000,000 of the precious metals.

The radical difference between the Eastern methods of raising stock and those of the West, is shown by this excerpt from a contribution to the Breeder's Gazette, published in Indiana: "The successful feeder must mature his animal as rapidly as possible from birth to market..."

ing from 60 to 90 pounds. From the foregoing one can better comprehend why he selects 2500 to 3000-pound finished cattle to raise the 1200 to 1300 pound baby beef, or the 850 or 900-pound hog to raise the 200 to 250-pound pig."

If the re-organizers would spend more time opposing republican policies and less time denouncing the populists, they would serve the cause better. The populists came to the help of the democratic party when the re-organizers abandoned it and the latter are not in a position to boast of superior attachment to democratic principles.

Our age is retrospective. It builds the sepulchres of the fathers. It writes biographies, histories and criticism. The foregoing generations beheld God and Nature face to face; we through their eyes. Why should not we also enjoy an original relation to the universe?

E. L. GODKIN, the eminent editor, says in the New York Evening Post, that ministers should not pray for "the success of our armies." He thinks they might as well approach the throne of grace "with a petition that the enemy might have his optic nerve cut by a ball; that he might have his pelvis smashed; that he might be disemboweled; that he might lose one or two legs; that he might lie on the field 36 hours mortally wounded; that he might die of enteric fever; that his provisions and water might give out; that his house might be burned and his family left roofless and starving."

MULTITUDINOUS are the plans for reform, and for every plan there is a sponsor. We seem to forget that the evils we would reform are of slow growth; they have become a part of our national and social growth. To make radical change is but to bring in the wake of change evils as great as those we labored under before.

In 1788 the colonization of the unexplored continent of the Southern Seas began with the landing of Phillip's fleet at Port Jackson, now the great city of Sydney, with a cargo of criminals. Now at the moment of their consolidation into a united commonwealth, the people of Australia find themselves, man for man, the wealthiest of all nations in the world.

COMMONER PARAGRAPHS.

The following are excerpts from W. J. Bryan's newspaper: It is said that the new senator from Minnesota is an anti-imperialist and a Boer sympathizer. It remains to be seen whether the pie counter will impair his mental digestion.

The latest official report from Luzon conveyed the information that the "insurrection" is ended. It also conveyed the information that reinforcements were needed without delay.

The Chicago Record says that Cuba's debt is a puzzle. There is nothing strange about this, however, the world is full of such puzzles.

The banishment of the Manila editor who dared to criticize an army officer is calculated to make the Filipinos fall over each other in their haste to accept the liberal government proffered by the Taft commission.

STATE SOCIALISM.

The conservative party of England has proposed to the country an important measure of state socialism. In an address at a recent conservative banquet, the premier, Lord Salisbury, insisted that if the conservatives were to keep their hold on London they must take up the housing question. "They should," he said, "devote all the power they possess to getting rid of that which is really a scandal to our civilization—the sufferings which many of the working classes have to undergo in the most moderate, I might say, the most pitiable, accommodation."

It is a new matter altogether for the imperial parliament to undertake social reform in the cities at the expense of the taxpayers of the whole kingdom. From all indications it appears the proposed programme will be acceptable to the public. The Spectator in commenting upon it says: "It is a vital problem. Unhappily, there are at this moment thousands of children growing up in London and the great towns under conditions which do not allow them to become good citizens, morally and physically. Unless that state of things is stopped, and we cease to produce a slum population, the state is in danger of an invasion of the worst possible kind—the invasion of an unfit and demoralized population, not from outside, but from within. No doubt the destruction of slums is costly, but remember that the essential thing for getting rid of slums is not money, but care and trouble and keeping watch that England is not fouled by recklessness or laziness."

NO GOLD STANDARD.

The government of British India has failed in its attempt to establish the gold standard in the vast and populous country under its control, and has merely made gold coin a legal tender equally with silver. The present condition of scarcity of silver in Mexico and China, as well as in India, forces the "Silver Question" again into prominence, in spite of the methods and policy that have been employed, notably during the last eight or nine years, to permanently break down the equality of white metal with gold, as a standard money metal for use by the mints of the world.

The action of the Indian government is always subject to the approval of the British imperial government; and, as we are told "that there would be no currency question," in India, "if there were no home charges" (the sums which India must pay in London for expenses of government and interest on loans), we must look rather to the policy dictated by the Indian council of the British government residing in London, favoring the interests of Great Britain, than to the effect of that policy upon the interests of the people of India. Alternating prosperity and famine in the Indian dependency have pushed the home government to their wit's end to render effective the well-known assertion of Mr. Chamberlain, when he proclaimed in parliament in advocating a temporary subsidy for the West Indian possessions: "This country * * * almost lives upon its colonial empire."
