Death of Mrs. Martha J. Shaw, a Prominent Pioneer.

Mrs. Martha J. Shaw, aged 75, and a pioneer of 1852, retired in her usual health at the home of her son, Officer Ed Shaw, Wednesday night. At four o'clock on the following morning she died suddenly without a previous warning, presumably from heart trouble. Mrs. Shaw was one of the most favorably known of early Clackamas county pioneers. She was born in Paris county, Kentucky, February, 1826, and was married to Jefferson R. Shaw in 1844, the latter dying in 1885. They immigrated to Oregon in 1852, and located a donation land claim, near the mouth of the Taualatin river, residing there until 1878, when they removed to Oregon City. The deceased left the following children: Samuel W. Shaw, West Lake, Idaho; Mrs. James B. Upton, Mrs. Minnie McKean, Mrs. Mary Heller, Portland; Jefferson R. and Ed L. Shaw and Mrs. C. D. Latourette, Oregon City.

Roar of The Falls.

The death of ex-President Harrison brings to the memory of many Oregon City people a day 12 or 13 years ago when that distinguished individual addressed a large crowd from the rear platform of his private car, with Babcock standing in plain view. It was a gala day and decorations were conspicuously displayed in the vicinity of depot. Hundreds of people came in from the country to see the president. Captain Apperson, who was register of the land office, gave the address of welcome. When the president's car pulled out, the applause was deafening. An unfortunate accident, however, occurred. Frank Albright grasped the president's hand for a farewell shake as the train was pulling out, and was thrown to the ground, receiving injuries, that confined him to his room for some time. President McKinley will be in Oregon in May, and will probably give us a real platform oration.

A long-distance message from Washington brings the information that Receiver Galloway will hold down his land office billet for awhile.
