SOCIAL EVENTS

Mrs. G. W. Grace entertained a number of friends last Thursday afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Jeannette Fairclough, recently of Cuba, Mo.

Willamette Falls Camp, Woodmen of the World, had one of those pleasant social gatherings last Friday night, for which the lodge is noted.

Last Monday night Meade Post, G. A. R., made an official visit to the Relief Corps, followed by a banquet.

The veterans were entertained with music and recitations and addresses by Mrs. S. M. McCown, Mrs. Jennie B. Harding, and Mrs. J. Shadle, president of the Corps.

At the conclusion of the program the members of the Relief Corps were escorted to the Electric Hotel by the Veterans, where an elaborate banquet was served under the direction of Jacob Caswell, the proprietor.

It was an eventful occasion, and several witty toasts received brilliant responses.

The farewell reception to Rev. R. A. Atkins at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday evening was a notably interesting social event.

A high-class literary and musical program was presented, and an excellent supper was served by the ladies of the church.

S. F. Scripture presided and closed the program with appropriate remarks. He was preceded by a short, felicitous address by Rev. P. K. Hammond, of the Episcopal church.

The musical program consisted of an instrumental solo by Mrs. E. E. Williams, vocal solo by Miss Mary Conyers, and a solo by O. A. Miller.

There were two recitations by little Imita Dixon, also recitations by Misses Carrie Seeley and Bonita Keston and Orville Hunt.

Mrs. A. Seamann entertained a number of friends to a very pleasant tea Saturday afternoon.

Rev. R. A. Atkins, Transferred to the Indiana Conference. Rev. R. A. Atkins leaves the Methodist Episcopal church in this city to enter upon the more exacting work in the East in the prime of manhood and the fullness of his mental powers, being 37 years of age.

Mr. Atkins is a Canadian by birth, having been born in Brant county, Ontario, in 1864. As a boy he toiled on his father's farm, but that did not prevent him from acquiring a good common school education.

Being ambitious, he established a general merchandise store in the city of Brantford, Ont., but the varied and broadening influences which surrounded him here opened to his view a field of usefulness more to his liking.

He disposed of his business and entered the Methodist ministry. He was assigned work in the mission field of the great Northwest territory. Having spent there four laborious years, he came to the United States.

The next five years were spent by Mr. Atkins in his chosen profession in the Puget Sound country. Being then transferred to the Oregon conference, he entered the Portland University, pursuing its course while stationed at Hillsboro. In 1899 he graduated from the Montana Wesleyan university, being accorded the degree for completing the full classical course.

In September, that same year, he was appointed by Bishop Vincent to the church in Oregon City. On Sunday, his work here will cease. Having been transferred to the Indiana conference, he will on Monday go Eastward to become pastor of the church at Brooklyn in that state.

At the beginning of his ministry, Mr. Atkins recognized that an understanding of the bible made a study of history imperative. The result of the years of assiduous toil thus imposed has been lectures of great interest which have been delivered before large audiences in this and other cities.

It is no little thing to say of a clergyman that at every point where he has ministered his departure has been regretted. But this can be truly said of Mr. Atkins. If ever he returns to the Coast, a host of loyal friends will bid him welcome.

Two Camp Meeting Goers. Sunday evening two young men, who were coarsely dressed, appeared at S. J. Vaughan's livery stable and asked for a bed. They said they had tramped during the day from a point in Linn county on the other side of Salem and were on the way to Portland to attend camp meeting.

Each carried a bible and tracts in his small bundle. Stony felt pity for the two weary country boys on a gospel mission bent, but as he keeps spare beds for horses only, he turned them over for further instruction.

As the Grand Snark says in the Arabian Nights lodge—to Officer Jim Shaw, who told them that the brethren of their faith here he might "deadhead" them were scarce, but he would give them a free bed in jail. They inspected this abode of wickedness, spoke to Shaw of Apostles Paul and Silas being imprisoned—he reverently having tipped his cap and let his cigar go on—asked whether there were any "kitters" in the blankets, shuddered at the thought of spending the night in such a den of bolted and barred malignity without letting "de folks" know it, found they could raise the four bits to take them to their sister on 4th and E. Anke is streets, where the lathered hung out, and took the first car.

Filter and Alum. MR. EDITOR:—Is the commission going to buy the filter that will cost $20,000 and take two men to run it besides the filter material, which will always be required? The Royal Baking Powder man defies any one to find the least trace of alum in that article.

Now what's the difference when we filter the water we use with alum? We are given to understand that several hundred cities have those filters. But they are very doubtful contrivances. If the supply pipe for the pump had been run outside of the basin, there would not have been such a clamor for filters.

Now, Mr. Editor, you and the rest of the Oregon City folks just leave that filter alone, and run the supply pipe for the pump to the middle of the river, or take the city lot on the corner of Main and Third streets and sink a well 20 or 30 feet in diameter, or go down to the Clackamas bottom near the river and sink a well in the gravel. Take the wheel and power that run the pump now to run electric power to pump the water from there; also to light the city. The water commissioners are gentlemen, but before they spend any of the people's money they should take a vote of the people on their project. A CITIZEN.

BOARD OF TRADE. A Lively Meeting That Meant Business Friday Night. President Cross called the Board of Trade meeting promptly to order last Friday evening, and J. E. Hedges was elected secretary pro-tem.

The report of the committee appointed to secure a guarantee of 150 cows for a cheese factory, next presented individual reports. The committee consisted of George T. Howard, J. W. Grout and G. W. Church.

President Cross also had been active in securing guarantees of milk for the proposed cheese factory. It was shown that 114 cows had been reasonably assured, and that there would be no trouble in securing the remainder if a route wagon were given further time to make a final report.

The road committee presented a report to the effect that the board recommended the expenditure of $3600 to be equally distributed in improving the Abernethy and Viola and the Lawton roads. Oregon City to raise $1200 of this amount, persons along the lines of the proposed improvements to subscribe $1200 and the county board of commissioners to be asked to donate the remaining one-third.

The report of the committee was adopted. It was voted that this money be expended under the direction of a road master to be appointed by the county board of commissioners.

A communication was read from the Sellwood sub-board of trade extending greetings, and asking for the co-operation of the Oregon City body in securing the location of the Lewis and Clark exposition at City View park.

The consensus of expressed opinion was that the location of the exposition at Sellwood would be greatly to the advantage of Oregon City, and a motion carried that a committee of seven be appointed by the chair to draft suitable resolutions expressing the sentiment of this body.

The following were named: G. B. Dimick, D. C. Latourette, T. F. Ryan, E. G. Caulfield, C. O. T. Williams, W. A. Huntley and T. L. Charman.

The matter of having a pamphlet, descriptive of the resources of Clackamas county printed, was generally discussed, and the chairman of the advertising committee was instructed to raise $250 for this purpose by subscription.

ROAR OF THE FALLS. Rev. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, who delighted large audiences at the Chautauqua in Gladstone park a few years ago, now has his Chicago congregation deeply invested in a Colorado mining scheme.

The Board of Trade has struck the right keynote, descriptive advertising and an effort to locate the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Sellwood. There are constant inquiries from every direction for printed matter describing the resources of Clackamas county, and the nearby location of the centennial exposition would be a boom to Oregon City.

While it is regretted that President McKinley could not visit Oregon, he will be remembered as a devoted husband.

People who give stuffed lodge and other news to the Oregon City edition of the Telegram, and expect the weekly papers to give them circulation, get left.

Speaking of desecrating Indian graves, David Gausfield tells of an attempt at grave-robbing, that took place about 40 years ago in Oregon City. Stephen D. Pope, a former student of Yale college, was teaching the local school. While thus engaged some of his former college chums came out to visit him.

The Yale boys concluded that they wanted some skeletons and Indian relics to take home with them. Dr. Barlow promised to pilot them to the Indian burying ground on the hill, but advised them of the danger of an attack by the watchful Indians. In the meantime Dr. Barlow notified David Gausfield and a few other boys of the intended raid on the grave yard. Just about the time they were fairly at work on a grave, the most unearthly yells came from the near vicinity, and the Easterners returned home without any Indian relics.

The Clackamas county forest rangers hold W. H. H. Dufur, superintendent of the Cascade forest reserve, in such high esteem that they are anxious to see him appointed United States marshal, although a change might throw them out of jobs. Mr. Dufur has many other friends in Clackamas county, who would be pleased to see him appointed to this position.
