At the regular meeting of the city council Wednesday night the fire and water committee reported that they were to have a definite final answer from the Portland General Electric Company in regard to a reduction of the cost of lighting the city. The committee, endorsed by the council, now demand that rights be furnished for $6 50, that being the average price paid by other Oregon cities. Unless these demands are acceded to the city may take the lights discontinued, and may take steps to put in a plant of its own. The proposed center street improvement was knocked out on account of the majority of the resident property holders, remonstrating. All the councilmen favored the petition of the remonstrators, except Albright. The matter of the city printing was left with the finance committee, who were given authority to act. The petition to open the alley through block 82 was referred to the street committee. One of the most remarkable but least-noticed facts in connection with the war in Transvaal is the extreme youth of a large part of General DeWet's army. When hostilities broke out almost every grown man enlisted, even the enfeebled, but the pace has been too rapid for the venerable burghers. As they were killed or incapacitated their places have gradually been taken by mere school children, many only thirteen or fourteen years of age. Under the title of "The Youngest Soldiers in the World," in the June Cosmopolitan Allen Sangree throws more light on the make-up and life of General DeWet's commandoes than anything hitherto published. The naive, simple letter from fourteen-year-old Denys Reitz to his father, the secretary of state of the Transvaal Republic, has seldom been equalled for vital interest by any carefully written article on the war. An appeal from an order of County Judge Ryan, appointing T. G. Jonrud of Kelso, executor of the will of Juns Kristensen, on April 29, has been filed by G. D. Dunning, an undertaker in Portland. Kristensen died in St. Vincent's Hospital, April 14, leaving several hundred dollars' worth of real and personal property, near Kelso, in Clackamas County. Dunning looked after the burial of Kristensen and was granted letters of administration by the Multnomah county probate court, on the ground that he was a creditor. Subsequently T. G. Jonrud presented the will of the late Kristensen for probate in Clackamas County, and was appointed executor, at the same time Dunning asked to be appointed administrator, and his petition was denied. He now asks the Circuit court to set aside the order of the Clackamas county probate court and make him administrator. Jonrud also claims to be a creditor of the estate. John D. Jordan, of Molalla, is in the city on a visit the guest of E. A. Parker. Mr. Jordan is one of Albany's old timers. He came to Oregon in 1852 in the same ox-train with Harvey Scott and his sister Jennie, now the famous Mrs. Dunning. Years afterwards when Harvey had assumed materially in knocking out workman's suffrage Mrs. Dunning remarked to Mr. Jordan that he would have done a good thing if he had killed Harvey on the way out here. In 1854 Mr. Jordan came to Albany and opened up the first harness shop here. He also taught the first singing school here and admits that he was somewhat of a flirt. There was a fine lot of young people here then, and refers pleasantly to Sammy Young, Maggie Smith and others. In 1858 he went east, and coming back located in Salem, where he resided until a few years ago and when leaving here sold his shop to Dave Thompson, father of E. L. Thompson. He tells of many interesting events of those times.—Albany Democrat.

Resolutions of Respect.

To the Commander and Comrades of Meade Post No. 2. Your committee appointed to prepare a tribute of respect to our late Comrade Mahlon E. Willoughby, respectfully submit the following: Mahlon E. Willoughby was born in the state of Ohio, in the year of 1833, and died at Santa Monica, Cal., on May 3rd, 1901, at the age of 68 years. His early life was spent in his native state, where he carried on the business of a stone cutter. He enlisted in the war for the Union in June, 1862, as private in Company G, 121st Ohio Inf., Vols., and by good conduct on the field rose by successive grades to the rank of captain, and being mustered out as such at the close of the war. He became a member of Meade Post No. 2, in April 1890, and continued a faithful member of that organization until his death. His comrades who survive him desire to record their appreciation of his faithfulness to all the obligations of comradeship, and of his kindly and generous feeling toward all who wore the blue. While his health permitted he was always in his place in the Post, and discharged the duties of the various offices he held in the G. A. R., with fidelity, and was always ready to do all in his power to uphold and extend the principles of the order. We recognize in the departure of our late comrade that this Post and the department of Oregon has suffered a loss and are also reminded that for us the final muster out cannot be long delayed. C. A. WILLIAMS, J. DOREMUS, GEORGE A. HARDING, Committee.
