The commissioners are W. B. Chase and A. F. Sears, of Portland, and C. F. The following is from the the Salem

Journal:
"It is reported on good authority that the moter line which is operated between Portland and Oregon City, and recently extended to Canemah, will be extended to Salemas soon as practicable under the circum-tances which now exist.

This has been the object of this motor company, which is operated by the O. Et. & N., for a number of years, but on account of not being able to secure the premises of the Southern Pacific Company to cross it; railroad south of Ore-igon City, nothing could be accomplished. The truck has been crossed now and Native Sons Entertain Pioneer Visitors.

The most notable event in the history of McLoughlin Cabin No. 4, Native Sons of Oregon, was the reception tendered David McLoughlin and F. X. Matthieu. President Livy Stipp was master of ceremonies, and it was a memorable occasion of oratory, song and banqueting. Again the Native Sons demonstrated their ability to entertain. However, this was an unusual occasion. for among the guests were Mr. Matthieu, whose voice had been heard in trying his vote for the American government, and furthermore the only survivor of that history-making epoch. Also David McLoughlin, whose father had saved Oregon to the United States, by making it possible for the needy immigrants from the East to prosper here through his charities. In fact, Dr. McLoughlin probably deserves more credit for sav-ing Oregon than any other individual. During the evening reference was made to the advisability of erecting a monu-ment in honor of Oregon City's parent and benefactor, by Colonel Robert A. Miller, Father Hillebrand and others.

The orators of the evening were Mayor Dimick, who gave the address of well come; C. H. Dye, Hon. William Galloway, Captain J. T. Apperson, Colonet Robert A. Miller, Gordon E. Hayes, Father Hillebrand, William Vaughan and Mrs. Robert A. Miller. The speeches were all short, to the point, and substituting the speeches were all short, to the point, and sister Ruyal Snirit. Pratt, a daughter Dr. Forbes Barclay, an early associate of Dr. John McLoughlin. During Satur-Company A will play the Fontellas in Portland Sunday, and a return game day afternoon they were driven over the will be played on the Willamette field Chautauqua Baseball.

On Sunday David McLough-lin attended St. John's Catholic church, where his father worshipped many years ago, and in the afternoon was given a reception at the rooms of Father Hillebrand, to which all the members of the congregation were invited. He was entertained at luncheon by Father Hillebrand. Mr. McLoughlin left Wednesday for his home at Fort Hill. Idaho, and expressed his purpose of visiting Oregon again next year. of the people here. A letter was written that Mr. Mc-Loughlin had intended should be read before the pioneer meeting, but it was not presented at that time. This letter, not presented at that time. This letter, expressing Mr. McLonghlin's feelings, however, was read at this gathering, and the following extract is taken there-

The dried prunes averaged 32 to the pound.

This year Mr. Clemens expects to have 60,000 pounds of prunes, and will double the capacity of his drier. He ayers that whitewash is a great fertilizer, as it goes to the roots when washed off the trees by the rains. He uses a disc harrow drawn by four horses. The trees are kept carefully trimmed. In July, if the fruit is so crowded on the trees as to retard unitorally large development, it is thinned out. The orchard is on land about 500 feet above the Willamette river, and the heavy fog from the water prevents injury by spring frosts. O.her fruit-growers in that section are now trying the plan of whitewashing fruit rees, and paying more attention to cultivation and trimming.
