PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY

OREGON CITY, JULY 19, 1901.

CHARITY creates a multitude of sins. It is both immoral and unfair to use private property in order to alleviate the horrible evils that result from the institution of private property.—Ex.

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch says significantly: "Nearly every patient taken to the city hospital prostrated by the heat is a steady drinker. The fact may well be noted by young men whose habits are forming."

ANDREW Carnegie says the entire profit on England's trade with China is not over $3,500,000 a year, and pertinently asks her if it would be worth a great war, costing probably a thousand millions, to keep it."

It is not all romantic glamour and sunshine in Southern California. Near Lamanda a man had a peach orchard. One year he picked and hauled six carloads of peaches to Lamanda Station, handed them over to a commission firm and never received a dollar for the whole lot.

The following anecdote is sent to the London Mail by an officer serving in the Transvaal, where it has gone the rounds of the camps: "They tell a story of Botha and Kitchener meeting about the terms of peace last week. At the end Botha said, 'Well, I must be going.' Kitchener replied, 'No hurry; you haven't got to catch a train.' 'But that's just what I've got to do,' said Botha, and two days afterward a train was held up and looted on the Delagoa line, not very far from the place of meeting."

In the July North American Review, Harold Cox, an Englishman, points to the figures of British commerce for the past 47 years as conclusive refutation of the theory that excess of imports spells ruin. Since 1854 Great Britain's imports have exceeded her exports by the almost inconceivable amount of sixteen and a half billions of dollars.

WHAT promise of success do the professions offer the aspiring young man? Preat. Harper, of Rockefeller's Chicago University, said in an address to a graduating class: "You, who are now entering the world, will find that poverty will be the strongest opponent to overcome. You, who are entering life as lawyers, need only to look at the papers today to find that the average lawyer does not earn his salt. Those who will become physicians will find that their only companion for a few years to come will be the wolf at the door; while those who go forth to teach need only to witness the struggles of the school teachers in this city. The school board is beset with howls and wails for an increase of salaries."

THE decisions of the supreme court in the insular cases are bewildering. The new possessions are declared to be parts of the United States for some purposes, not for others. They are domestic in some senses, not in others. The line is drawn at the tariff. The trusts win out. Whether accidentally or not, this great court always in great cases takes the side of great capital. It did this in the Dred Scott case, which, as Justice Brown states, was overruled by public sentiment and war. It took the side of capital in the greenback case. So it did in the income tax case, and it is now supporting by a majority of one the trusts and the tariff.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

WHILE the Chautauqua Assembly at Gladstone Park was not a financial success, the program was carried out as advertised and the campers and those taking in the classes and the lectures were well satisfied. The baseball games seemed to help out wonderfully by bringing the occasional visitor to the grounds. The broader the program the better the visiting public will like and patronize it. Those who are not interested in the Chautauqua idea will not attend unless they are entertained, and the management should cater to them if it wants their patronage. The election of H. E. Cross, who has been connected with the association since the beginning, as secretary, was a good move and with a broader program the assembly will no doubt be a success in the future.

THE citizens of Oregon City and Clackamas county should do all possible to help along the Portland gentlemen who are pushing the Lewis & Clark Centennial for 1905. This progressive spirit and desire to let the East know that there is such a region as Oregon is a step in the right direction and although a big undertaking it will be of untold benefit to Oregon. The entertainment of the editors in Portland two years ago has helped Oregon along wonderfully, and this world's fair will cap the climax and bring Oregon and the Northwest coast before the eyes of the world in a light that can not but benefit every resident of this section. People is what we want and the best way is they come and see for themselves. By judicious advertising of this fair we should fill up all the vacant land on the Pacific coast in the next few years.

"MOTHER JONES" says: "Some years ago the silk manufacturers happened to notice that the daughters of the Pennsylvania coal miners had nothing to do. 'Such laziness must not be permitted,' said they, 'and anyway we feel it our duty to provide a means for the miner's family to have a larger income by giving his daughters work.' Silk factories were established in the coal mining district to take advantage of the cheap girl labor. The natural economic result followed. The wages required by the miner to support his family were reduced by the amount of the wages his daughters could earn throwing silk. His wages fell just that much, and the result is that the miner and his family have exactly the same income today as before his daughter's labor was given to the silk factory. It is simply a duplication of the story of the wages of the New England cotton mill operatives. At first the man alone worked, and his wages were enough to support the family, but as soon as his wife and children went into the mill to help him increase his income, his own wages fell off just that much, so that today his wages alone are insufficient to support the family, and his wife and children must work."

BRUTAL ENGLAND.

In the Pennsylvania Journal of October 18, 1775, Thomas Paine wrote: "When I reflect on the horrid cruelties exercised by Britain in the East Indies—how thousands perished by artificial famine—how religion and every manly principle of honor and honesty were sacrificed to luxury and pride—when I read of the wretched natives being blown away, for no other crime than because, sickened with the miserable scene, they refused to fight—when I reflect on these and a thousand instances of similar barbarity, I firmly believe that the Almighty, in compassion to mankind, will curtail the power of Britain."

More than a century of time does not seem to have humanized John Bull. Says the N. Y. World: "Of the Boer prisoners expatriated to Bermuda in defiance of the laws of war and of humanity, two were so old and feeble that they had to crawl ashore and several were children of eight and ten! Add to this the admitted horrors of those pest camps where the British are permitting disease and exposure to ravage the women and the children of the foes they cannot conquer in such war as manly men wage, and you get some measure of the despicable and the abhorrent phases of Britain's great crime and shame."

APPEAL TO WOMAN.

The socialist program is so simple—so highly moral and so supremely necessary! Now a few people control all the capital of the country. Now a few rich persons gain a personal benefit from our social power—then, the whole people would gain the benefits and advancement of our national economic and political power. Now social injustice reigns, then equity would be established. Now our national life perishes, then it would be awakened to new life.

I want to ask you women of these United States one question. Is there so base a mother in this country who would choose a slave's life for her children? Is there a mother in her high-born privilege so untrue in all this land that she will not aid in the emancipation of the working class? Is there a mother who so mocks and blasphemes the Most High God that she will not heed the universal call to save mankind from crimes so monstrous as these times do put upon the race? I think not. I know the mother's heart; I know the mother's agony over the dread future of her children; I know the bounty of the universal mother love. Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find. Do not think the finding shall come in the unseen future. It is in the everlasting now that the stream of the noble enthusiasm, the privilege of the lofty work, the attainment to impersonal endeavor is its own reward.—Martha Moore-Avery, of Boston.

An Exposition Magazine.

The July number of "The National Magazine," printed on the Pan American Exposition grounds, is superb in contents and appearance, and is filled from cover to cover with beautiful illustrations. The opening article, "Affairs at Washington," by Joe Mitchell Chapelle, gives a brilliant resume of the month's doings at the national capital, and several interesting and profusely illustrated articles are devoted to various phases of the exposition. In "American Life—The Life of Action" is contrasted the future of the American and the European college graduate. "The Texas Oil Fields" tells of the recent exploitation of the oil regions of the Lone Star State; "The Rise of Thomas W. Lawson" treats biographically of the career of a picturesque figure in New England financial circles; and "The Future of Cut-Over Timber Lands" shows present day possibilities for home building in the middle west.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under the Sun." All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. The powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed, the powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.
