CHAUTAUQUA AFTERMATH.

About $500 Short on Expenses—Interesting Features.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Willamette Valley Chautauqua Association held last Saturday, 320 out of the 423 shares of the stock were represented. The total receipts were something less than $3,000, leaving an incurred indebtedness of about $500. The following officers were elected: President, W. E. Hawley, re-elected; vice-president, C. H. Dye, re-elected; secretary, H. E. Cross; treasurer, T. F. Ryan; other members of the board of directors, W. E. Carr; George A. Harding, E. E. Charman, Colonel Robert A. Miller, Mrs. William Galloway. The meeting was not legal as the required 10 day notice was not given, and besides the hour of the gathering was changed on the day previous, so that many stockholders did not really know when to put in an appearance. An effort was made by some newly acquired pie eaters to shut off all the privileges of the early stockholders, who had made it possible for the institution to exist. However, through the efforts of Colonel Robert A. Miller and others the move was defeated.

There is no doubt but what the management can make up the deficiency next year by securing attractive talent for the program, and making a specialty of the sports events. The early season before the beginning of the assembly, was not encouraging to campers, and there were disappointments in the talent. However, under existing conditions, the 8th annual session was a success. The management of the ball games deserve commendation, for they were an attractive feature. Next year a disappointment like that occurring on the fourth of July as to ball games can be avoided. It also is hoped that a physical instructor will be secured next season, who does not devote his time to teaching girls dancing steps.

The Chautauqua has come to stay, and it will grow larger and broader in its field of usefulness. If any of the directors get tired of holding their job, they can step down and give the other stockholders a chance.

Company A scored a brilliant victory when they beat the Vancouver baseball team Saturday afternoon by a score of 9 to 6, considering the fact that the latter team had won the trophy from the Chemawas. Hodges and Rechner did good work as umpires at several Chautauqua games.

THE GRANGE.

Clackamas District Pomona—Hon. J. Voorhees Addressed Molalla No. 10.

Notwithstanding the busy season, Pomona Grange at Springwater was well attended. During the afternoon session, Mrs. Howard, Pomona lecturer, arose and called to the floor the two white-haired veterans, workers of the order, Chaplain Eaton and State Deputy Dr. Casto. With a short, touching, eloquent address she presented each of them, in behalf of Clackamas Pomona, with a booklet of solid gold, adapted for a watch chain ornament, bearing the inscription, in addition to the name, "O. P. G. P. of U. S." Mr. Zeek, worthy master of Eagle Creek Grange, strenuously urged the patrons to hold the October meeting of Pomona at Eagle Creek, to which request, notwithstanding the humorous efforts of Oswego to capture that opportunity for the exercise of hospitality and fraternity, the Grange by vote assented. Mr. Zeek advanced the proposition that a two-days' meeting be held at Eagle Creek. [As the brethren there are kind, and good livers, the suggestion is excellent.] The hospitality and bonhomie of the Springwater friends captured the hearts of their visitors, and when, at the end of the closed meeting, they were asked to express their appreciation of the same by a "rising vote" of thanks, they responded with a hearty earnestness indicating that to them this was no mere formality but something full of meaning. The open meeting in the evening was given to a literary and musical entertainment. The program was as follows: Instrumental music, Willie Clark; recitation, Willie Sellwood; recitation, Lorena Lay; instrumental music, Henry Shannon; recitation, Mrs. Johnson; recitation, Lora Stormer; vocal solo, Mrs. Nellie Cooper; recitation, G. R. Miller; encored and responded with another; reading, L. Le Mahieu; instrumental music, Leona Sansum; recitation, Mrs. G. R. Miller; solo, M. O. Brant; recitation, Frank Holm; solo, with guitar accompaniment, G. R. Miller; address, A. M. Shibley; recitation, Walter Pruden; he received an encore, to which he responded; quartette, Milwaukee Grange; recitation, Anna Holm; instrumental music. The best oratorical effort was by all odds the recitation by W. Pruden, son of Dr. Pruden. He has no small measure of histrionic talent and some day will make his mark. A free dance till midnight succeeded the entertainment. This was the young folks' turn, and well did they make use of it.

On Saturday, Past Master J. Voorhees, of Woodburn, made an instructive talk to Molalla Grange. He showed that the only manner in which the farmers can combat the grafters who devour them is to organize. In a year and a half, 100 mortgages have been foreclosed in Marion county, and more and more farmers will continue to go under. Since the farm returns only 2 per cent and money costs 8 per cent, the borrowing farmer must go broke. Nearly seven-eighths of the taxes are paid by real estate. Until the farmers have learned to unite for mutual protection against their enemies, the grafting politicians and their tools, they will continue to be fooled and robbed by them.

MITCHELL WAGONS

Best possible to build
 No wagon is or can be better than a Mitchell, because the cream of wood stock is used, only after being thoroughly seasoned. The wagon is well ironed, well painted, well proportioned, and runs the lightest of any. It is nearly 70 years since the first Mitchell wagon was built, and they have been built continuously ever since by the Mitchells. When you buy a Mitchell, you get the benefit of this 70 years' experience.

"NERVE WASTE."

One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste," by Dr. Sawyer, of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast sum of false teaching which prevails on this interesting subject. It contains in carefully considered and practically advised, and has the two great merits of wisdom and simplicity.

It is endorsed by both the religious and scientific press. The Chicago Advance says: "A re-reading of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment."

The book is $1.00 by mail, postpaid. One of the most interesting chapters—chapter XX, on Nerves and Nerve Tonic—has been printed separately as a sample chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp by the publishers, The Pacific Pub. Co., Box 255, San Francisco in plain sealed envelope.

Obeeyed Orders.
 One of the officials of the road had invited a party of gentlemen to take a little pleasure excursion over a part of the line on his private car. Before the appointed day he was taken sick and called in his chief aid commissary.

"Eph," he said, "I have asked these friends and can neither go with them nor disappoint them. I want you to give them the best there is in the larder and see that it is served as well as it would be at the best hotel in the world."

Eph scratched his head and looked troubled, but simply said, "Yes, sah." On the return several of the gentlemen congratulated the official upon having such a "man," and one or two intimated that if Eph ever wanted another position he would have no trouble in securing it.

Finally Eph reported, "It wa' a great outfit, sah," he assured his employer. "Yas, sah; dat's right, sah; a stupendous outfit, sah. De gen'men all done me proud, and I tells 'em it wa' you, sah."

Then Eph showed the bill, and it was a stunner for length and amount. He stood hat in hand until the official said: "Pretty steep, Eph; pretty steep. Nothing left out and nothing but the best."

"Dat's right, sah. I was fusticated mos' to deaf, sah, but I jes' says to myself, sah, dat dey was no greater eplec in de lan dan you is, and I bought and cooked and served, sah, jes' like it wa' you."—Detroit Free Press.

The Smothering Scene.
 As to stage appointments, there were no plush or velvet curtains or couches draped with satin in early days. The furniture was as unpretentious as the costumes. Indeed on one occasion when a lady was playing Desdemona to her husband's Othello a disastrous and at the same time ludicrous effect, though of course unheeded, had been imminent through the lack of even a nail or two to make an old stool steady.

It was the smothering scene, and the couch was made up of two chairs and a rickety stool covered, of course, with the simplest draperies—a red merino curtain trimmed with yellow worsted fringe. Imagine a Desdemona endeavoring to recline gracefully, all the while feeling portions of her couch sliding from under her. This is how the scene was played out:

Desdemona—Kill me tomorrow; let me live to-night. (I'm falling, dear!)

Othello—Say, if you stay—(Keep hold still.) Desdemona—But half an hour. (Oh, hold me!)

Othello—Being down, there is no pause. (I'll push the stool under.)

Desdemona—But while I say a prayer. (Do be quick, Robert, it is slipping.)

Othello—It is too late!

Which, indeed, it was, for the bed collapsed, and Desdemona's body lay upon the floor, her head upon the sole chair, which stuck to its post faithfully.—Gentleman's Magazine.

A Dreadful Moment.
 A conductor on the Park line had an experience the other day that is quite certain to cause him many uncomfortable minutes in the future. His car stopped at Spruce street to let a middle aged lady on, and as she took her seat the conductor gave the motorman two bells, and the car shot ahead. When the conductor entered the car, the woman in question was looking out of the window and did not see his outstretched hand.

"Fare, please," remarked the conductor.

The woman evidently did not hear him, for she did not turn her head. Neither did she hold out the necessary coin.

"Fare, please," said the conductor in a louder tone.

But the woman paid no heed. Then the conductor touched her on the shoulder and in a tone of voice that rang through the car exclaimed: "Your fare, please, lady!"

Then the woman turned hastily around and looked at the conductor. The knight of the bellcord gave one gasp and fled to the back platform.

The woman was his mother-in-law.—Omnia World-Herald.

The Two Senators.
 Congressman Jones of Virginia told this story of his father: Directly after the war Jones senior was sent to the state senate. An old slave who had belonged to him was also elected to the senate. The two drew adjoining seats. Senator Jones was very courteous and in addressing his former slave always called him senator. The old negro stood it for some time and finally said: "Massa William, I don't like dis senator business. Kain't I come down to yo' house and visit that cook of yours? I suthin' would like permission to visit yo' kitchen."

The request was granted, and while Senator Jones was in his library the other senator was down in the kitchen visiting the cook.
