PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY

OREGON CITY, JULY 26, 1901. Is the latest edition of De Meillet's "Origin and Antiquity of Man" geological evidence is adduced to prove that 238,000 years have elapsed since man first appeared upon the earth.

There was when there was an overplus especially in the technical trades and professions, of the supply of qualified young men; but to-day conditions are entirely reversed. Clear proof of this was shown at the recent annual commencement exercises of the Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., when, out of 40 graduates, only a dozen were present to receive their diplomas.

Twenty nine years ago, when the monopolies and combines were but pulling babes, Wendell Phillips said in a speech: "I had the labor movement for two reasons, and one is that it is my only hope for democracy. At the time of the anti-slavery agitation I was not sure whether we would come out of the struggle with one republic or two, but republics I knew we should still be I am not so confident, indeed, that we shall come out of this storm as a republic unless the labor movement succeeds. Take a power like the Pennsylvania Central Railroad and the New York Central Railroad, and there is no legislature that can exist in its sight. As well expect a green vine to flourish in a dark cellar as to expect honesty to exist under the shadow of those upris trees. Unless there is a power in your movement, industrially and politically, the last knell of democratic liberty in this Union is struck; for as I said, there is no power in the state to resist such a giant as the Pennsylvania road. We have 38 one horse legislatures in this country, and we have got a man like Tom Scott, with three hundred and fifty million dollars in his hand, and if he walks through the states they have no power. Why, he need not move at all. He smokes as Grant does; a puff of the waite smoke out of his mouth upsets the legislature." What would Wendell Phillips say now?

The Medical World of Philadelphia, issued a circular soliciting advertising, from which the following extract is made: "It is unfortunate that business has to be so much disturbed every four years by a presidential election. After all it is only a contest over men. The real issues are frequently hidden; they are always overshadowed by the men who are candidates and false issues are frequently "trumped up" for political purposes. If we had the Swiss system of voting for measures as well as for men, our campaigns would be more educational, less disturbing, and more definite in results. For example, on the same ballot bearing the names of the candidates, questions could be submitted for direct vote, as follows: Shall the Philippines be treated the same as Cuba? Yes. No. Shall the tariff be removed from articles made by trusts? Yes. No. Shall U. S. senators be elected by direct vote of the people? Yes. No. Shall government paper money (greenbacks) be destroyed and replaced by bank notes? Yes. No. The vote on the questions submitted should be imperative instructions to the candidates elected; and then it would not make much difference which party would win.

THE SELF-MADE MAN.

What a sermonizing there is about the "self-made man!" Scarcely a paper one reads but that a Carnegie, a Yerkes, or some other nabob is held up to the youth of America as an example of the self-made man. We never hear of a poor man being a self-made man. Edison, who is probably comfortably rich, but not wealthy, is not held before the eyes of the struggling youth as a shining example that he might follow. Only the jobbers, stockbrokers, gamblers and labor sweaters are idolized, worshipped and pointed to as specimens of the highest attainments of laudable aspiration. We take strong exception to the theory that the self-made man is always a moneyed man. Ernest Jones, the great charist leader, was born amid riches. He was not a self-made man until he separated himself from them, took up the fight for human liberty and human rights, and suffered incarceration like a criminal because of his convictions. Had he never separated from his early environments he would have been unknown to history and to fame, but being possessed of a generous heart and actuated by a noble principle, he sprang into the arena where the fight was raging between mighty wrong and feeble right, ranging himself on the side of the latter, and making it stronger because of his efforts. Truly Ernest Jones was a self-made man.

Peter Krapotkin, the author, born of one of the oldest Russian families with the blood of a royal house flowing in his veins, is another self-made man. Had he been content to remain a Russian prince, the world would have laid itself at his feet, but like Ernest Jones, he knew the difference between right and wrong, and discarded his title and his aristocratic associates so that he could ally himself with the common people in their struggle for justice. This is sufficient to prove the man's nobility; a nobility acquired, but greater than that from which he voluntarily separated himself. Krapotkin is certainly a self-made man. Many other men could be cited as being self-made, who had but little of this world's wealth. Lloyd Garrison and others were self-made, and better made than the Carnegies, the Fricks, the Goulds, the Vanderbilts, the Rockefellers, the Yerkes and others of their kind.—International Woodworker.

SOCIALISM GROWING.

John Burns, the English working-man's friend and representative in parliament, who is called a socialist, but is so only to a limited extent, predicts that America will become socialistic, and hints that the effort to become so will result in another great war in this country. This is no wilder or more unreasonable prediction than one of the war of 1861-5 would have been 20 years before it occurred. Up until that war broke out—nay, even after it had been actually raging for months—there were millions of people who refused to believe that such a tremendous tragedy had occurred, or could occur. Men woke up every morning all over the North and rubbed their eyes thrice before they believed that the great tragedy was not a dream—even though their elder sons' seats were vacant at the breakfast table.

Let a plain, blunt statement be made here and now, causes of a great war are making as surely and rapidly now, if somewhat more under the surface, as they were made from 1820 to 1860. It may not come; we are wiser; we look back now on the War of Rebellion and say it was inevitable; no wisdom could have avoided it, and this is true. So, very likely, in 1915, the 233,000,000 people of this country will look back on bloodier fields than ever before in the world's history and say: "No, it could not be helped." Why? It will be asked. Answer: Because the government sold and surrendered itself to hogs, cormorants, vampires, humbugs, swindlers, rascals, grafters, gourmands, thieves and robbers. Mind, this is what they will say; will they be right? It is easier to look backward than to look ahead; but the wise man looks ahead.

Socialists—and after awhile when the good times are overdone with the lava of a panic, they will be militant, vengeful, not merely philosophical, argumentative socialists—are being manufactured by the scores or hundreds daily. Every time Morgan makes a new combination he makes a hundred socialists. Every time Schwab draws his $100,000—once a month—he raises blood in a million hearts that boil for mischief. Every time Carnegie gives away a million dollars he aids a million men to read their wrongs—real or imagined—even in the best, freest and happiest land on earth.

Bryanism will turn into socialism; populism has but a step to take to become socialism. The democrats are going to bid for the support and fodder and fees of the plutocrats against the republicans; many democratic voters will not go back; many more will come over to the growing army of socialism. By 1920, perhaps sooner, it will be a resistless tide. This is not a statement of what is desirable or hoped for; merely a slight forecast of things to be as surely as there is not a speedy and radical change in the policy and conduct of the dominant party in this country. But it is as impossible for that party, when its Hannas, McKinleys, Forakers, Allison, Elkinse, Deweys and the rest, to change its course, as it is for the leopard to change its spots.

The children of this country will have even a heavier task to perform than any of their ancestors had. There is a cloud in the American sky, hard-broad, on which, with a spy-glass, one may decipher the lettering of Macauley's prophecy—Evening Telegram, July 18.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

"Something New Under the Sun." All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a Treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures CATARRH, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. Write to Doctor Pierce for advice for every woman to follow. It costs nothing. Dr. Pierce invites sick women to consult him, by letter, free. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.
