A dispatch from Baker City to the Eugene Daily Guard states that the business manager of the proposed big daily paper in Portland, has gone East to purchase the plant. Arthur Cooper, formerly city editor of the Denver Times, is to be the business manager of the new paper, sent a card to Captain White, chairman of the democratic state central committee, stating that everything had been arranged and that the paper was now an assured fact. The new paper is to enter the race with a capital of $250,000, none of which is furnished or subscribed by Portland or Oregon people. All Portland is asked to do is to secure in advance 10,000 paid up subscriptions for the period of one year. The money is not to be paid to the new concern, but will be placed in a bank, awaiting performance of certain conditions by the newspaper men, one of which is the erection of plant costing approximately $100,000. Then a portion of the subscription money will not be paid, but will be held as a further guarantee that the paper will operate for a year's time of the subscription. It is stated that F. W. Lawrence, brother of Andrew Lawrence, managing editor of the Chicago American, has been secured as managing editor. The last paper named is Hearst's in Chicago. The editor-in-chief is to be Willis Thompson, for 10 years city editor of the Denver Republican. The substance of the dispatch sounds very large, and the public will await its realization.

A Case of A Double Wedding.

Leroy Case, whose home is virtually in Oregon City, was one of the four contracting parties in a double wedding, that recently took place in Albany. The following features of the affair are from the Albany Democrat.

General interest was taken in the marriage of two of Albany's accomplished and popular young ladies, the Misses Stafford. The event occurred Wednesday evening, August 7th, at the homes of the brides' father, Ex-County Assessor Stafford in the presence of nearly 100 relatives and friends. Dr. C. E. Tilton, who has opened an office in Ashland, and Miss Grace Stafford, and the other couple, M. L. Case, a jeweler of Pullman, Wash., and Miss Winifred Stafford, were united in marriage in a very pretty ceremony. Mrs. Dr. Winnard played the wedding march and the ring ceremony, the responses being made simultaneously, Rev. Dr. Wire officiated, assisted by Dr. D. T. Summerville. The bridal gowns were just alike—white organdy over white silk, trimmed with lace and ribbon. Each carried a bouquet of white carnations. The parlors were in green and white. There was a wealth of white carnations, festoons of smilax and banks of flowers. The supper was one of simple elegance. The presents, duplicates in most instances, were beautiful, valuable, in great number and variety. Noticeable among these was a gift to each couple of a check for $1,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Stafford. The brides are among the most estimable young women of Albany. Mr. and Mrs. Tilton will reside in Ashland.

Mr. Case was a member of Company I, Oregon Volunteers, and was in the Philippines seven months. A short time after his return he entered the jewelry business in Salem, and afterwards located in Pullman, Wash., where he has a prosperous business.

Great Reduction in Men's and Boys' Summer Hats

FALLS SAUNTERINGS.

In Clackamas county there are 7,562 persons of school age, between the ages 4 and 20 drawing school money. Of this number 5,688 were actually in school during the past year. This is a remarkable good showing for a large county with a diversified territory, and local people have cause to feel congratulated on the standard of public school conditions. Something over a month ago this paper printed a list of pupils, who had received eighth grade certificates from the county superintendent during the past year. The showing was a creditable one, considering the rigid examination which the pupils are required to pass under recent amendments to the school law. And the rigid examination is a just one; pupils should be capable, before they are permitted to advance from the eighth grade. It is regretted that a very few Clackamas county schools permitted classes of eighth grade pupils to graduate without taking the required county examination.

The melancholy sounds of squeaky gramophones in public places in the cool of the evening, is a reminder of the wail of a dying Thomas cat, that has had his tail scorched in hades.

There is a scarcity of people at the beaches, while thousands have gone to the mountains in every direction. Clackamas county has the greatest opportunities in the world for mountain resorts, the only obstacle in the way being road improvement. There are a number of hot springs in the forest reserve, notable among them being the springs at the headwaters of the Clackamas river, easily reached by a wagon road that could be constructed along the north fork of the Molalla river at reasonable cost. Along the line of such road would be found many ideal camping places fanned by ocean breezes from the coast.

The actual baseball enthusiast, who plays in the game, has a hot time these August days.

There is estimated to be nearly 200 members of the Oregon City Volunteer department, holding membership in five companies. Out of this number not over 30 are men that respond to calls, and do active work at fires. The majority are simply ornamental sticks, escaping their just proportion of road and poll tax, amounting in the aggregate, under the new laws to $4 per head. The man who works at the mills for $1.50 per day and supports a family, has to pay this $4 poll tax unless, by chance, he is a member of the fire department, or belongs to the militia. It would be a matter of economy for the city authorities to officially recognize only six members of each company, and pay each individual the sum of $1, when he shall respond to a fire call. Citizens will be climbing over each others shoulders no to join the fire companies in order to escape the poll tax assessment.

Some of the boys are wondering, whether it would be better to work out the road poll tax on the streets, or put up the $3 in hard money.

C. N. Greenman, the Indian war veteran and pioneer expressman, who celebrated his 70th birthday last week, is an example of a conservative, sober successful business career. Mr. Greenman has been continuously in the transfer business since 1865, and his career has been one of uniform, upright business.

It is apparent that there will be a shortage in the potato crop of Clackamas county on account of the continued dry weather, but there will be an immense yield of grain, hops and fruits.

success. He has not plunged into wild speculations, nor is he physically or mentally incapacitated from managing his own affairs. This is the kind of success that counts.

The conviction of a man for over-driving a local livery team, which was made to stick in the justice court last week, was a victory for humane organization and a vindication of the rightful opposition of cruelty to animals. The law does not require that an animal shall be killed in order that justice be meted out to the offender. Starving or the beating of animals, also comes within the pale of statutes. It will henceforth be noted that these laws will be more vigorously enforced in Clackamas county.
