Labor day was celebrated here with a dance. Toward morning the boys danced a break-down on the bald head of old Sutro. Blast him, I owe him a store bill.

Jim Blutkins is taking lessons in lying and political magnetism from old Sutro. He is preparing to run for the justice office, as a stepping stone to the presidency. He'd make a dandy member of the legislature. Sawed Off.

Land Crabs.

One of the commonest and the largest of the Christmas island land crabs is the well known robber crab, which Messrs. John and Perry Burns and T. is found in most of the tropical islands J. Grimes have been making boards for of the Indian and Pacific oceans. It sometimes reaches a length of two feet All of the farmers in this neighbor- and may measure seven inches across hood have their grain all ready for the the back. Its colors are of a very ing a bright red, upon which there are stripes of yellow, but in some cases a purplish blue is the prevailing tint.

The eyes are fixed on stalks which can be moved independently of one auother, and there are two pairs of feelers, one long, the other short ter pair are continually jerked up and down. There is a pair of powerful claws, then several walking legs. In general appearance these animals are much more like rather stout lobsters than crabs, and one's first encounter with one of these creatures in the middle of a forest far from the sea is productive of much astonishment on both sides.

Another species of land crab com mon in Christmas Island is a little bright red animal which in general shape is much like the common shore crab. This variety makes burrows in the ground, and in some places the soil is honeycombed with hundreds of holes. The crabs spend most of their time collecting dead leaves, which they carry in their claws, holding them up over their heads, and drag down into their burrows, into which they scuttle at the least alarm.-Pearson's Magazine.

A Grand Memory.

A highland girl, who had been in service in Dundee and had gone to a place farther south, called upon her old mistress on her way north to visit her friends.

She was invited to take dinner with the family, and her master asked a blessing on the ment as usual, when the girl sald;

"My, maister, ye maun ha'e a gran' memory. That's the grace ye said when I was here sax years syne."-London Telegraph.

A SMALL GREENHOUSE.

The Plan of Its Construction and Best Methods of Heating.

A small greenhouse about 8 by 10 leet is shown in the accompanying cut from Vick's Magazine, which thus describes it: It may be attached by one end to the dwelling house and connected by a door, or it may stand separate in some place where it will be as much as possible sheltered from prevailing winds. Wherever the spot may be selected, it should have the best of drainage-not only surface drainage away from it in every direction, but a good underground drain should be supplied, so that by no possibility would water stand in the house.

built by setting down posts at the corners and at the doorways, and one on each of the sides midway between the corners. Cedar posts should be used on account of durability. If there is only one door, eight posts would be required or ten if two doors.

The posts should be set firmly in the ground and cut off evenly at the top a

the height of 4 feet 6 inches and be boarded on each side to the height of three feet with matched boards, and the space between, which may be six or eight inches, should be filled in with sawdust, quite dry, or tan bark in the same condition. Above the boarding there may be 18 inches of glass.

The illustration shows two swinging sashes at the side. But it is not necessary that these should be provided, especially in a cold climate, but instead of one ventilator at the peak of the roof it may be betier to have two, one near each end and on opposite sides of the roof. No rafters will be needed in a small house like this. The sash bars will be fastened at the ridgepole and to the plate. The plate should be beveled on the inside to allow the water to run off.

This house may be fitted up with a bench on each side three feet wide and a walk in the center two feet wide. There should be a wooden extension at the north end of at least eight feet, giving a workroom eight feet square, with a door at the end entering it from the outside.

The heating of a house like this will depend on the climate. At the south a coal oil stove would serve the purpose. The most desirable way for a cold climate is first to provide a walled up pit or cellar beneath the workroom where may stand a small heater, with pipes running from it all around the inside of the greenbouse, below the bench, near the walls, to convey hot water. The cellar will also afford space for the storage of a small amount of coal. Three lengths of two inch pipe all around the house would probably give all the heat that would be required.

Rhododensirons For Easter, Plants such as the white illac. genista, spiraca, deutzia, Harris Illy, etc., are commonly forced for Easter decorations, and they all please every one, but a more frequent use of plants new but little used for such purposes would generally produce even greater admiration. It is not new to talk of forcing the rhododendron, but undoubtedly it is not common to see it. Yet a nice plant with six or more flower heads makes a beautiful specimen and, like the azalea, can be used again, planted out or kept for forcing another year. To those in the northern parts of this country where such plants do not do well planted outside the privilege to see them blooming indoors is great. About the time of blooming they like an abundance of water if the pot be well drained. Very little heat is required to bring them into bloom, though more than many others, about the temperature of a carnation house. says Mechan.

Roses and Vines on Pinzzas. The foliage of the rose is ordinarily sparse and for purposes of plazza screens needs to be supplemented by that of some other climber in harmony with if. This cannot be that of the wistaria or trumpet creeper or yet of the pipe vine, for these are all of the coarse, masculine form of plant covers, but instand something that is both delicate and substantial, as the honeysuckle, with its fine, leafy stems, producing a well disposed screen with flowers that are inconspicuous as compared with roses and keep coming all the season through with a fragrance of peculiar sweetness at evening when the plazza is most apt to be the outside resting place for the family.

Persimmons From Sood. Persimmen seeds are very easily sprouted if treated properly. If they have become very dry, it is possible that germination will be slow, or perhaps they will not grow at all. They should be mixed with sand, kept mois all winter and planted in the spring when the soil is in good condition. A depth of one or two inches is about light to cover the seeds, advises H. E. Van Deman in Rural New Yorker.
